The final schedule of prizes has been issued. A feature of this schedule is the three prizes offered for the best display of cut roses, with accessories, covering 200 square feet of space. To these liberal cash prizes have been added, a gold medal for first, a silver medal for second and a bronze medal for third prizes. For the first time in the history of the Rose Society a scale of points has been adopted to guide the judges in this competition: Fifty points for quality, twenty points for varieties, thirty points for accessories. A number of special prizes also have been offered since the preliminary schedule was issued. The prize list may be obtained from, and entries made to, Fred Cowperthwaite, 1614 Ludlow street.

The Change in the Market.

There is room for wide difference of opinion as to why the market declined at the end of February. One thoughtful observer said that it always declined at the beginning of Lent; that after a week or ten days of decline business went on quite smoothly at the new level of price. Another said it was not the arrival of Lent that caused the change, but the arrival of more flowers. Still another said that Lent really had little to do with it; that the trouble was caused by the exciting conditions rampant in the big world, conditions that affected our business at this time. Yet still another asserted that the effect of Lent was a thing of the past.

A curious part of the change from extreme activity to only fair activity—which by comparison seemed dullness—was the use made of it by the city buyers. The first Saturday in Lent closed with quite a little unsold stock left on hand. This was unusual and disquieting. They felt badly about it, quite naturally. So as early in the following week as possible, each and every buyer called on his friends in the wholesale districts to point out the need for an immediate reduction in prices, as a matter of self-preservation for all.

The powerful argument that prices are invariably settled the world over by the laws of supply and demand passed unheeded. The earnest statement that growers could not be expected to keep on growing good stock unless fair prices were realized by their flowers, proved equally futile. One clever buyer said that the poor people, on whom dependence is placed in the spring, would not have any money with which to buy flowers, owing to the high cost of living. Food must come first—with food prices sky-scraping where would flowers be? Perishable products must be sold for what they will bring, and that will not be much this spring. These jeremiads of blues come to most of us at times. Luckily, they do not last. We all know that in their way flowers are a necessity to vast numbers of people; that, while everything has its ups and downs, our business has quite as good a chance as many others, and a better chance than some others.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held in the rooms in Horticultural hall March 6. A traffic manager of the Wells-Fargo express company was expected to discuss matters pertaining to the transportation of cut flowers and plants, but did not appear. The discussion therefore was informal. Mr. Wilson, of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke. The following members were elected: Harry Waterer, A. F. W. Vick, Louis Gruninger, Jr.; Edward

A Floral Barometer.

It so chanced that opportunity offered for this week's study the window of W. H. Ferguson & Son. The impressions given by this window, with its fine setting for display, always helped in forming a correct idea of the market conditions. When flowers were scarce at the holidays, the Christmas color was shown in beautiful red baskets. When one or more varieties of flowers became plentiful, they were temptingly displayed in this window. The window itself has great natural advantages. Its size and the unusual width of the street on which it fronts both aid in enhancing the display. The street is so wide that there is perfect light, undimmed by reflection or shadow.

Last week's arrangement, while simple, was effective. Two vases of orchids, Cattleya Trianæ, were in the foreground. The deep blue vase on the east side was filled with highly colored flowers; the paler vase on the west side with flowers of lighter shade.

Behind the cattleyas, in striking contrast, were two large, dark colored bowls of Golden Spur daffodils, while the rear of the window was filled with Cibotium Schiedei, its graceful fronds drooping in the center over a bowl of Enchantress carnations. The distances between the varieties heightened the contrast. The vases were well filled, but not overcrowded.

Various Notes.

A fire of unknown origin damaged the greenhouses and destroyed the handsome collection of orchids, palms and other plants of George H. McFadden, at Villa Nova, Pa., March 2. The fire started late in the afternoon. David Aiken is gardener. The loss is heavy.

Joseph Beavis & Son (and grandson), on the Limekiln pike, have done exceptionally well with Killarney and White Killarney this season. Their crops, both past and future, amazed the experts.

J. Otto Thilow has returned from his western trip, which extended as far as Hawaii.

J. M. Deutscher says Lent belongs to the past, florally speaking.

More Reminiscences.

As I prepare my copy for The Review this week my memory goes back to the days of the old Maryland Horticultural Society; and to what better use can we devote a part of our column than to tell some of the younger men in the trade something of the past romance of the business in which they are engaged? The personnel of this society was composed of laymen and those in the trade, for commercial reasons. The society usually gave four exhibitions a year, two in the spring and two in the fall, but these were more on the order of social functions than flower shows. The laymen members were men of wealth, who had their own greenhouses and who employed gardeners. Time and expense were not considered by them; the main object was to get the prizes. These shows were opportunities for the gardener and his patrons to meet and talk flowers, and in this way more was done to advance the art than one would imagine.

It would be a treat to some of the boys today to hear W. D. Brakenbridge, R. J. Halliday, the elder William Fowler, John Edward Feast, R. J. Halliday II, W. B. Sands or James Pentland, at the head of a party of ladies explaining the exhibition, or telling of the advantages of some particular plant, or perhaps giving some advice as to how a country place should be laid out and what, in his estimation, would be the best shrubbery to use. They were men well qualified to talk on any subject pertaining to flowers, as they had all served an apprenticeship of five and, in many cases, seven years in Scotland, England or Germany, where, after a day's work in the graperies, the stove or vegetable houses, they wrestled with Asa Gray in the bothies at night.

Now, while the florist of that day was in the business for the money just as he is today, the production of fine specimens came first, and every man had his hobby—some special thing that he liked better than others. I well remember a house 16x60 used for growing roses in 5 and 6-inch pots for the spring market. This house had a solid border along one side, and on this border the roses were grown. Along the roof of the house I have seen bunches of Black Hamburg grapes eighteen inches long. At certain times of the year the vines had to come down and, besides being trimmed, the canes had to be stripped of their bark and then painted with a solution, which I have forgotten, but it contained sulphur.

John Cook today is still hale and hearty. His hobby was roses, and everyone knows what this hobby of his has meant to the trade, not only at home but all over the country, in new roses put upon the market. I have just heard that he has a new one, not yet named, that will surpass anything he has done yet. I hope to visit him in the near future, and I will then tell you all about our friend and the roses he loves so well.

St. Patrick's Day Possibilities.

I heard a great deal about the increased volume of business done at St. Valentine's day, and this increase was due to the efforts of the florists themselves. I have always maintained that every holiday, from Thanksgiving right up to Memorial day, could be made a flower day, if the retailers would just get together and, by coöperative advertising, make the public take notice of the days. St. Patrick's day will be our next holiday. Why could not the retailers of our city get together, exchange ideas and lay out a plan of campaign? My suggestion would be for every florist on that occasion to have an Irish picture window. He should spend a little thought on it. He should feature anything Irish in it, such as the harp, plenty of shamrocks, the old high hat, clay pipes, green ribbon—in fact, anything that is strictly Irish. If everyone would do this, and the public were to see at every turn an attractive window on this day, there undoubtedly would be many who would send friends St. Patrick's day remembrances. Many who have not a drop of Irish blood in their veins would send the novelties, perhaps as a joke. Then you know the box man can make a clover-leaf box of green just as easily as he can a red heart-shaped box for Valentine's day. Try it once, to see if in time you will not be as busy St. Patrick's day as on others of the smaller holidays of the season. The daily press will take notice of such a movement. The important part, in my estimation, is for all to pull together. The business all over town will be bettered.

Various Notes.

While there are not so many of the larger entertainments, such as dinners, teas, receptions and dances, I am told that there was no falling off in business during the first two weeks of Lent. It is a little quiet, but before long things in the society world get back to normal.

There is some complaint about roses; that is, the better quality blooms are scarce. Good white roses were hard to get last week, but on the whole the supply is about equal to the demand. Bulbous stock is plentiful and good. Mr. Moss is sending in fine callas. Mr. Erdman has a fine cut of sweet peas. His Yarrawa peas are specially fine, with good, stout stems measuring eighteen inches and the flowers two to two and one-half inches in diameter. Tate.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The bottom fell out of the cut flower market before February ended. Last week was one of great depression, therefore, and prices broke suddenly and without warning. The week's end saw everyone loaded with the accumulations, and with the demand, even from the big buyers, far below anticipation. There seemed to be a surplus of everything, with the exception of American Beauties. The selects of these were still held at 75 cents each, and there were but few of them. General business was far below the average of the corresponding week of a year ago.

Apart from Beauties and Hadley, all other varieties of roses are selling at great reductions, far below the average prices of the last two months. Excellent stock of the No. 1 grade were selling March 3 at $20 per thousand. The short-stemmed No. 2 blooms were offered in large lots and at half this quotation.

Shipments of carnations are growing in volume and prices are down to $2 per hundred. Only the selected and special varieties sell above that figure. Many of the medium grades were disposed of as low as $10 and under per thousand. Violets fell to the lowest figures of the year. The street men were favored with mild weather and were out in droves. Their figure was $1 per thousand, or $1 to $2 for boxes of two to three thousand. One violet wholesaler had 75,000 in his iceboxes, unsold, at 3 o'clock March 3. Another prominent surplus exhibit was of daffodils, and tulips, sweet peas and freesias were not far behind.

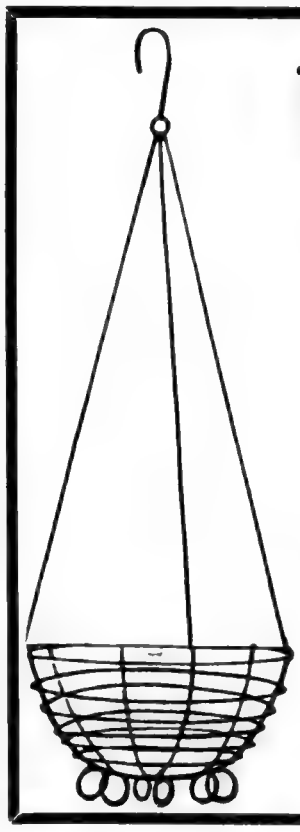
Longiflorum lilies were offered at $6 March 3. There was an immense supply of them; also callas and rubrums, at greatly reduced prices. Valley was firm at the usual quotations. Tulips are much more satisfactory in quality and are in wonderful variety. There is no market for the inferior gardenias, especially as the best now realize only $3 per dozen. The best cattleyas did not sell above 50 cents each, and from this level ranged down to $3 per dozen. There are enough arriving for the somewhat limited demand. Lilacs and acacias are extra fine. Spring flowers are abundant, including pansies, daisies, mignonette, forget-me-nots, snapdragons and calendulas.



Various Notes.

An article in one of the leading New York dailies had a good word for the street merchants. It said:

LET THE FLOWER VENDERS SELL!

Along Fifth avenue and Broadway yesterday there were any number of flower venders. It was quite spring-ey and they seemed to be doing exceptionally well. Once or twice we saw an officer insist that they move along and in each case the man moved uncomplainingly. We thought through it all that they should be encouraged, rather than lose the picturesqueness of it. In every city abroad flower sellers are permitted. Other venders are not. Flowers do not have the commercial touch that, say, laces or pistachio nuts have. Why, then, object to them?

Do not forget that rose night is next Monday, March 12, at the regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club, in the rooms in the Grand Opera House building. The club will have more than 500 regular members before the flower show opens, March 15, and has already over $15,000 in the treasury.

Everything is ready for the opening of the New York International Flower Show March 15. This is the last notice before the doors open, and already its success is assured. The final schedule has been mailed; $15,000 worth of space has been sold; over $4,000 worth of advertisements has been contracted for in the souvenir; 20,000 trade tickets have been sold. G. E. M. Stumpp and Max Schling will have novel and extensive displays.

The annual banquet of the Florists' Club will take place at the Biltmore hotel March 17. It will be an elaborate affair, with many surprises. Messrs. Miller, T. B. de Forest and their committee anticipate a notable success.

The dyed flowers for St. Patrick's day will be conspicuous by their absence this year, thanks to the scarcity of dyes and the growing disfavor in which this abnormality is held.

Clarence Slinn is established in his new headquarters, at 112 West Twenty-eighth street. Many improvements are arranged for. Some of his confreres call him the violet king.

The Cadieux Co. has opened its new store at 37 West Twenty-eighth street. It is neatly furnished and is close to Broadway.

Among the visitors last week in New York were Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Schiller, of Chicago, on their honeymoon trip.

John Donaldson, of Patchogue, and his son, Alexander, left March 3 by boat for a visit with a friend at Richmond, Va.

The Kervan Co. has installed a duplicate engine and its adjuncts in connection with the large cold storage system, so as to be prepared for any possible emergency.

Charles Schultheis, who has been with the Growers' Cut Flower Co. for some months, will return to his position at College Point, L. I., in his father's greenhouses, preliminary to entering Cornell in the fall.

The first parrot tulips of the season were on sale at J. J. Coan's March 3. He will have the usual big supply of shamrocks.

The executive committee of the Florists' Club met last week at Secretary Young's office. G. E. M. Stumpp is chairman. This committee will have charge of all arrangements for the meeting of the S. A. F. in August. The chairmen of the various committees make up the executive committee. There were present E. C. Vick, secretary; John G. Esler, A. L. Miller, C. H. Brown, P. B. Rigby, T. B. de Forest, F. R. Pierson, F. H. Traendly, P. F. Kessler. Business in behalf of the convention will begin in earnest as soon as the flower show closes.

The officers of the association are: President, C. Sakelos; vice-president, P. Theophine; treasurer, G. Rondires; secretary, C. Thomas; assistant secretary, M. Andriopulos; board of directors, Geo. The Market.

The market is loaded with bulbous stock. Roses are in short supply and carnations are about equal to the demand. Lent seems to have little effect on trade this year. Valley and lilies are plentiful, but greens are scarce.

Detroit Versus Cleveland Bowlers.

Detroit	1552	1552	1640
Cleveland	1548	1629	1637

Cleveland won three out of four games at Detroit last month. One game was missing in the contest, but out of the seven played Cleveland won four games, and therefore are the winners of the Michigan Cut Flower Co. trophy. After the bowling match the Detroit boys were given a dinner at Weber's. F. A. F.

The Market.

Generally speaking, last week's business was satisfactory to the wholesale flower market. Although the Lenten season made itself felt by the lack of social functions requiring large quantities of flowers, the demand was good and, while prices dropped somewhat, the volume of business done was good.

Large quantities of tulips, daffodils, sweet peas and violets arrived, but they dragged heavily even at bottom prices,

FLOWERING PLANTS FOR JULY.

Sometime in July we expect to hold a local flower show and I would like to help make it a success. Can you give me a list of flowering plants suitable to exhibit in pots with a group of palms and ferns? I have a greenhouse and coldframes for growing them in. Any information you can give me will be appreciated. A. D. M.—Ill.

Some of the plants suitable for your purpose are: Lilium auratum, L. speciosum and L. regale; Trachelium cæruleum; standard heliotropes; fuchsias, especially standards; tuberous-rooted begonias; achimenes; hydrangeas, more particularly late-flowered French varieties; Allamanda Hendersoni and A. Williamsi; dipladenias and Clerodendron Balfouri. Geraniums, if well flowered, could be used, those in standard form being the best for dotting in groups. Fancy-leaved caladiums would be found useful, also some other colored-leaved plants, if allowable. C. W.

La Fayette, Ind.—William H. Robinson, whose specialties have been fruit, honey and eggs, is finding the florists' department of his business increasingly important. He finds a good sale for all he can grow.

The Market.

With only an occasional good day to break the monotony, it can be truly said that the market now is in something of a slump. All kinds of flowers are arriving in abundance and it is increasingly difficult to make satisfactory clearances, even at low prices. March 3 business improved, but it has fallen away again this week. Roses have made a considerable decline. American Beauties are not numerous, but there are few calls for them, Hadley and Russell taking their place and being preferred by the majority of buyers. All roses are of excellent quality. Whites continue to be druggy. Short-stemmed flowers of all colors now are down to $10 per thousand. Carnations have not weakened so much as roses. The general average is $1.50 to $2.50 per hundred, with a few strictly fancy varieties like Laddie, Rosalia, Pink Sensation, etc., making $6 to $8. The warmer weather has sent in a flood of violets, and sweet peas are in tremendous supply. White flowers with 18 to 20-inch stems make $2 per hundred. There are numbers of short-stemmed flowers which bring little more than that per thousand.

Easter lilies are in reduced supply and clean up better. Dutch bulbous flowers are abundant. The poorest sellers are pure white tulips and Dutch hyacinths. Some good freesias are still seen and Spanish irises from one or two growers have arrived to supplement the Iris tingitana. These flowers have made $2 to $4 per dozen. There is an abundant supply of English primroses, pansies, forget-me-nots, calendulas and wallflowers. Of anemones the arrivals are far in excess of the demand. Callas are druggy; so are lily of the valley and mignonette. Snapdragons are not yet excessively plentiful, but yellow marguerites are much more abundant. The best grade flowers still make $3 to $4 per hundred. Gardenias are less abundant and a little dearer, but there is a good supply of cattleyas, dendrobiums and other orchids.

Various Notes.

The Ranson Conservatories, of Arlington, are getting a splendid crop of sweet

Peter Pederzini, for four and one-half years gardener to Dr. Joel Goldthwait, Hyde Park, will start in business at Medford April 1. Daniel Iliffe will build an even-span house 30x100, also boiler room, work room, etc. Carnations and a general line of stock will be grown.

John Barr will plant 2,500 of the new rose-pink carnation, Albert Roper, next season. It is a splendid summer, as well as winter, variety and holds its color finely.

Boston delegates to the Davey tree convention at Kent, O., consisting of J. G. Duguid, James Donald and Robert Cameron, left March 7.

W. J. Patterson, of Wollaston, finds La Reine tulip to be a most profitable variety. He also has good Couronne d'Or, Yellow Prince, campernelles, Golden Spurs and grape hyacinths.

Patten & Co. will give Carnation Belle Washburn a further trial next season. It has given them some fine flowers this year, with few burst calyxes. Peerless Pink with them looks well, also Alice, Matchless, White Wonder and Pink Delight. The demand for cuttings of the last-named variety is stronger than ever. For Nancy the call is also heavy, but with Patten & Co. it has so far not proved specially profitable. This concern does a heavy business in rooted cuttings, for which it has a high reputation.

I am sorry to report that W. A. Riggs, of Auburndale, is still on the sick list. Mr. Riggs has had a hard winter with rheumatism, which he is gradually shaking off. His son makes an efficient salesman in the market and is well liked. The ramblers, genistas and other Easter plants all look well. At present a fine line of bulb stock in pans is being sold.

C. S. Andem, of Putnam, Conn., continues to receive splendid shipments of irises. He also is strong on Roman anemones and carnations.

The meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, March 13, comes one week earlier than usual. A large attendance is looked for, to hear the lecture by Leonard Barron, of Garden City, N. Y., entitled "Looking Backward and Forward." There will be special displays of sweet peas and roses, and a discussion of the proposed prohibition of imports of nursery stock.

J. K. Chandler & Son, of Tewksbury, have been cutting Spanish irises for a month now. They are the first local growers to bring in this popular bulbous flower. They also have anemones in quantity and pick from 8,000 to 15,000 violets daily.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, is sending in some specially fine spikes of phalænopsis, also Dendrobium Wardianum and cattleyas, in addition to his regular supplies of gardenias.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, are large bulb specialists. They are receiving heavy shipments of Silver Spur, Victoria, Golden Spur and other narcissi; also Murillo, Couronne d'Or, La Reine, White Hawk, Flamingo and other tulips. White Hawk is a beautiful, pure white tulip, but it is hard to sell while white roses are abundant and cheap.

The big spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which opens March 21, is being eagerly looked forward to by local growers, and entries are so numerous that the management will be taxed to find space for everything. The Farquhar & Co. display promises to be a particularly notable one. Thomas Roland and all other big growers will also contribute their best. The show is being more largely advertised than any of its predecessors. Visitors are promised a "glimpse of paradise."

lets to this market last week; these were disposed of at 20 cents per hundred and were cheaper still in thousand lots. At these prices the glut was cleaned up nicely. Sweet peas, too, were in large supply. Extra fancy Spencer varieties cleaned up daily, but the common varieties dragged and only exceedingly low prices moved them. Roses sold well, but the supply was limited. Beauties, Russells and Ophelias had a good call, but these were off crop. Carnations were in splendid crop and choice stock sold at $3 per hundred. The demand was mostly for the Enchantress varieties, but all light shades sold well.

There were plenty of Easter lilies, callas, freesias, tulips and Dutch hyacinths. Valley was scarce. Paper Whites were overabundant and sold as low as $2 per hundred. Smilax, asparagus, galax and flat ferns were in good demand.

The local rose growers say the present shortage of roses should make the supply large for Easter sales.

Various Notes.

Fred W. Ude, Jr., of Kirkwood, Mo., returned recently from Vero, Fla., where he spent the greater part of the winter on his farm. He says the big frost this winter killed nearly everything on his place.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club held a meeting March 2 at the home of President Bourdet and decided to hold the club's monthly meeting March 8 at the Missouri Botanical Garden.

Thomas C. Carr, the Union Market florist, has a big force of men at work preparing his stands for the spring plant trade. The cut flower department reports an increased business as compared with last year. This department is in charge of Miss Marie Richardson, an exceptionally good artist in design work.

The pretty floral palace of Fred Foster, at 703 Olive street, had an exceptionally busy week. The tasteful window displays attracted many buyers. Mr. Foster disposed of thousands of bunches of violets last week.

Miss Loomis, of the Davis Floral Co., Pine Bluff, Ark., was a visitor to the St. Louis market last week. She says trade has been excellent all winter.

The portraits of J. F. Ammann and Fred H. Weber in last week's issue of The Review were highly pleasing to the trade here and were commended by all who saw them.

The home of Edward Rodgers, on Marmaduke avenue, was burned March 2. Mr. Rodgers, who is with the Young Tool Co., of Casey, Ill., and his wife and two children suffered exposure to the cold until taken in by neighbors. The property was a total loss.

The executive committee of the spring flower show, headed by Chairman Bourdet, attended the meeting of the County Growers' Association at the Eleven Mile House, March 7, in the interest of the show.

A. J. Butterfield, of Farmington, Mo., was a recent visitor in the wholesale district. Mr. Butterfield is consigning a fine cut of Enchantress, Beacon and Rose-pink Enchantress carnations to the St. Louis market. Dan Cupid has been camping on his trail for some time and Mr. Butterfield now announces that he will be married the latter part of this month.

H. E. Humiston, representing the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., Chicago, called on the growers here last week. He reports that the Magic fertilizers are having a great run among the growers in the west.

Oscar Kuehn, who has charge of the wire department of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., has everything in running order to supply the trade with wire designs of every description.

Max Schiller, who has charge of the floral displays at the Missouri Botanical Garden, will have for this month a wonderful display of 1,800 cinerarias in various colors. The background for these will be made up of snapdragons and marguerites. Several of the newer types of freesias will also be shown.

Dr. George T. Moore, director of the Missouri Botanical Garden, and George H. Pring and Alexander Lurie, also of the Botanical Garden, are in great demand for lectures before the various clubs and societies throughout the city.

The big spring flower show, to be held in the Armory, at the northeast corner of Market street and Grand avenue, will open Thursday afternoon, March 15. The members of the various committees, who have been working hard for the last year for the success of the show, say everything is in readiness for the opening. Many visitors are expected to visit the show. The reception committee, headed by J. J. Beneke and Frank Gorly, and the entertainment committee, headed by John S. Carter, are ready to take all visitors in hand and try to make things pleasant during their stay in St. Louis.

neral work and there was a good demand for flowers for social purposes, notwithstanding that it is Lent. Flowers for the sick formed a large part of the week's trade.

The weather last week was all that could be desired, as there were days of sunshine, which had a noticeably fine effect on all kinds of stock, not only in improving the quality but also in increasing the quantity. Roses, especially, are in abundant supply and of fine quality. There are some Mrs. Charles Russell roses on the market that are nearly perfect, and these take the place of American Beauties. Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Sunburst, Ward and Richmond are of splendid quality. Prices for roses are holding up well. Carnations are in good supply and move well. Easter lilies and callas are more plentiful, but are cleaned up daily in funeral work. Fancy stock in sweet peas is selling well. Home-

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, June 19 to 21, 1917.

HENRY SPIELMAN, of Spielman Bros., Adrian, Mich., died February 22, at the age of 47.

THE Hollanders still are booking orders wherever they may, but with no assurance of being able to ship the goods.

THE catalogues contain the usual lists of flower seeds just as though the usual imports from Germany had come across.

THE price of table potatoes and of onions has fallen sharply within the week, but seed potatoes have not weakened in price.

J. C. LEONARD, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, is paying a visit to the company's warehouses at Columbus and Marshall, Wis.

THERE is a general belief that several millions of Dutch gladiolus bulbs will arrive late in the season. But they should be readily salable until at least July 1.

WE hear of German flower seeds on personally conducted excursions, but the total must be small in comparison to the quantities that came over when the regular ways were open.

THE Georgia Seed & Grocery Co., Forsyth, Ga., will hereafter do business as the Rhodes Seed Co. W. K. Rhodes, the proprietor, is moving to a new corner location and plans a complete seed stock.

WHAT process of reasoning leads to the use of full-page mail order seed ads in the largest metropolitan Sunday papers? Some of those published March 4, by D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, cost as much as $1,000 each.

THE lily bulb business at the moment does not appear to afford possibilities for profit commensurate with higher costs of doing business and the risks involved. There are so many sellers after the orders that the large buyers are not certain where the price inducements will stop, or which ones safely may be closed with.

BECAUSE of the embargoes on freight and the delays on shipments in transit, the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, is advising customers to order stock shipped by express, the difference in rate, figured by the pound, being for most points only ½ cent to 1 cent more than by freight. To aid customers in meeting the extra expense, the company is charging 25 cents less per bushel on onion sets where these are ordered by express.

THE months of January and February usually determine the size of the mail order season, as nearly all seedsmen have as much in March as the staff is able to handle and increases in the height of the rush are difficult. January did not show even results, for the reason that many catalogues were late, but February has been unusually good with all the mail order seedsmen. The high prices of vegetables are causing a great increase in the number of garden makers.

preme court on the liability of a retail seedsman for failure of seed sold to grow.

The defendant, doing business as Totten's Vermilion Seed House, sold the plaintiff a quantity of Early Murdock seed corn, which the plaintiff planted without making any test of it. Claiming that only a small percentage of the seed germinated and that the seller had warranted its growing qualities, the plaintiff brought suit for damages. The seed house's counsel sought to secure dismissal of the suit on the ground that the facts alleged by the plaintiff were insufficient to show any valid claim. The trial court overruled this demurrer, but the Supreme court, on appeal, reversed the judgment, deciding the point in the seedsman's favor.

The Catalogue Warranty.

The plaintiff relied on statements in the defendant's catalogue as amounting to a warranty of the germinating qualities of the seed, those statements being as follows:

My seeds are all good, and I want every purchaser to know, as near as possible, just what he will get when he sends in his order. * * * All seeds are thoroughly tested. The value of tested seeds cannot be overestimated. You are assured that the seeds are full of life and, with normal conditions, you will get a perfect stand of plants. * * * I guarantee all seeds sent out from this house. All seeds are carefully tested by me before shipment is made. Therefore I am willing to guarantee a satisfactory test. Ten days after you receive the goods will be allowed you to make a thorough test. Test them any old way you like and, if not satisfied, let me know and I will refund your money. * * * You should carefully test your seed. * * * If seeds are not as represented and do not test out satisfactorily to you, we take it back and you get your money and no kicking.

Referring to the particular variety of corn, the catalogue stated:

All ears are well matured, kernels germinate quickly, and send up good, strong plants right from the start. * * * It is good, and I know you will like it.

The plaintiff based his right to recover damages on the theory that, the corn having been sold for seed, there was an implied warranty that it was suitable for the purpose for which it was sold, and would grow when planted. He further claimed that the reference to tests in the catalogue was merely suggestive to the customer, and not a condition attached to the seedsman's warranty. Isolated parts of the catalogue were quoted to sustain this latter position, but the Supreme court said:

Guaranteed "Test," Not Growth.

"Whether this language, if unqualified by other portions of the contract, would bear the construction placed upon it by the plaintiff it is unnecessary to determine. The entire contract must be read together, and when so read, it does not support the plaintiff's contention. While the language of the warranty is broad, so far as the general quality of the corn is concerned, it is limited in respect to the rights of the plaintiff and the liability the defendant is willing to assume. The defendant 'guarantees' that the corn will test satisfactorily, not that it will grow if planted in the field. It is well understood that by testing corn is meant the planting of a small quantity of it in a hotbed or other place where it is protected from outdoor weather conditions. It is merely a test of the germinating powers of the seed under favorable conditions, and it may well be that a vender of seed corn would be willing to refund the purchase money in case it would not test satisfactorily when he would not be willing to warrant, either expressly or impliedly, that it would grow when planted in the field and become liable for the value of a field of corn in case the seed should not grow. By expressly warranting the corn to test satisfactorily, he limited his warranty to the results of a test, and by agreeing to refund the purchase money in case a test did not show satisfactory results, he limited his liability to the amount of the purchase money.

Express and Implied Warranties.

"It is a well-settled principle of law as applied to sales that an implied warranty arises only when there is no express warranty, and that an express warranty always excludes an implied warranty.

"Under the terms of the contract, * * * the plaintiff had it in his power to protect himself from any loss whatever except the trifling expense of testing the corn. * * * Had he availed himself of his rights under the terms of the contract, and as the defendant urged him to do, by testing the corn within ten days after he purchased it, he would have ascertained that it was not fit for seed and would not only have been able to return it and have had his purchase money returned to him, but also could have procured other seed before planting time. Having failed to make the test, as provided for in the contract, and having planted the same without testing it, he assumed the risk

POSSIBILITIES IN SEED FLAX.

The production of flaxseed in the United States since 1909 has been less than the demand, and in Bulletin No. 785 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, "Seed Flax Production," it is shown that under certain conditions it may be profitable to pay more attention to this crop.

In this country the production of flaxseed has always been a pioneer industry because the crop does well on new land, is readily marketable and brings a high price in proportion to its bulk. At the present time it is grown most extensively in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana. But it can be grown under a wide variety of conditions, and there is no reason why more flax should not be raised on old land in the upper Mississippi valley. The bulletin warns prospective growers, however, that east of Minneapolis and Duluth there are few markets where flax can be sold in less than carload lots, and east of Chicago none at all.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

Willis S. Pino, of Providence, R. I., inaugurates the seed season with doubled store capacity, new fixtures, new stocks and bright prospects.

Halliday Bros., of East Providence, R. I., fortunate in securing seed potatoes, are supplying their trade pro rata. It is noted that seeds sold in packets are as liberally filled as usual.

W. E. Barrett & Co., Providence, R. I., have taken over the business of the Providence Seed Co., the building occupied by it being razed to make way for a skyscraper. W. A. Brown, for many years manager of the extinct house, now is head of the supply department of W. E. Barrett & Co.

Franklin & Crosby, Danielson, Conn., report an early run of seed orders checked somewhat by another snowfall.

Ross Bros. Co., of Worcester, Mass., were patriotic on Washington's birthday and gave all hands a holiday, busy

The Market.

Business has improved somewhat since the last writing. Business during the middle of last week was rather slow, but the first and the last of the week were good. The demand this week is excellent. Roses and carnations are in good supply. The sweet pea cut is extremely heavy. Easter lilies have shortened considerably; in fact, they are scarce. A fair supply of callas and rubrum lilies is available. Daffodils, tulips and hyacinths are in fair supply. Other offerings include valley, orchids and snapdragons.

The supply of plumosus and Sprengeri, while better than it was, still is inadequate. Smilax has become scarce.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett have returned from their trip to Florida. Mr. Gillett is enthusiastic about that state, especially the territory around Palm Beach and at C. J. Ohmer's place. During the recent cold spell in Florida Mr. Ohmer's place was untouched by the frost.

C. E. Critchell has been having a good demand for his boxwoods since the supply of asparagus shortened.

W. J. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was in this city last week.

Honorable mention was given to James Currie for antirrhinums, callas and a cineraria.

President Bradley spoke on the growing of bulbous stock. It was arranged to hold the annual fall show November

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

From all information now available, it seems that the volume of business done by the flower stores last month fully equaled that of any previous February, and had not a spell of stormy weather reduced sales during the last ten days, a new record would have been made. The cold weather prevented a threatened glut in cut stock and bulbous offerings, so possibly it did more good than harm. Seedsmen report satisfactory results from their spring catalogues, and the nurserymen have been busier than ever before. Unless some public calamity interferes, the prospects for a year of good business are bright—brighter now than they were when the new year started.

Various Notes.

The new greenhouse at Wilsonville is nearly completed and has been partly set to Cecile Brunner roses. It will be operated by Fred and Leo Wiedemann, under the title of Wiedemann Floral Co. The house is 56x200. About twenty acres of land will be devoted to the growing of hardy stock. The Wiedemann boys claim that the soil is of excellent quality for growing roses and for general greenhouse use. They are both experienced growers and have the best wishes of the trade for success in their new undertaking.

Miss Lida Albright, who has been with the store of Niklas & Son for several years, will leave soon for New York to visit her sister. The date of her return depends upon how well she likes New York.

Joseph Huserick, the wire-worker, planned to take a trip in February to Idaho and Montana towns, but was unable to go on account of the illness of his wife, who is in the hospital for an operation.

E. H. White, the dahlia grower, announces that the Willamette Dahlia & Floral Co. has been succeeded by the White Floral Gardens, with office and show garden at Albena avenue and Portland boulevard. This location is near a public park and a mile nearer the center of the city than the former establishment. Associated with Mr. White is E. A. Shephard. The partners have built a small propagating house and will grow many dahlias from cuttings, which Mr. White says are best for large flowers and long stems. The spring catalogue of the new concern lists a large variety of dahlias, gladioli and miscellaneous perennials.

The greenhouse of August Webber, at Fifty-fourth avenue and One hundred and second street, southeast, was damaged by fire February 21. Sparks from the heating plant started the trouble and caused a damage estimated at $250. There was no insurance. S. W. W.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

A flying visit to this beautiful place found everyone busy and prospects good. Eastern visitors are filling the principal hotels and staying with friends in Montecito and other residence sections. Both florists and nurserymen appear to be thriving. While some stock is grown locally, the majority of it is shipped in from Los Angeles and San Francisco, the northern city being responsible for most of the roses.

Arthur Gleave's store always looks bright and attractive and he reports business excellent; in fact, he says it is difficult at times to keep up with it. Early morning visitors were E. W. McLellan and Miss McLellan, of Burlingame, who stopped off for a day, en route to Los Angeles. Mr. McLellan says the men are just beginning to cut the best Russells they ever had, and while he was in Mr. Gleave's store a magnificent box of roses from the San Francisco store was opened.

Verhelle Bros., of Kentia Nurseries, continue to ship large quantities of fine kentias. It is said that George Verhelle does not make so many trips to Los Angeles since getting married about three months ago.

Paul Starger seems to be shaking down into place with E. T. Underhill, who is opening up a new nursery at Montecito, where they have big landscape contracts on.

E. D. Rowe also has a good deal of work along this line and is a busy man.

Albert Beverley, as usual, greets all visitors with a smile and makes their stay an enjoyable one. He is the novelty man of Santa Barbara and has al-

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Fashion show week led to a big demand for all classes of greens and the cheaper, more showy flowers. Several of the larger stores used asparagus and orange marigolds to good effect, while daffodils and cornflowers were used by others. Renters of palms and other decorative stock were busy and, taken altogether, this business added quite a little to the total for the week. Outside of this, funeral work has been plentiful and the better weather has led to more transient business. In spite of better weather conditions, good stock still remains scarce, though daffodils are better and more plentiful. Violets are at their best now and arriving in immense numbers. Orchids are practically out of the market for some reason; it is difficult to account for the great scarcity.

Cecile Brunner roses are extremely scarce. Roses are shorter than those of a week ago. Field-grown carnations are scarce, but the indoor-grown varieties are a little more plentiful. Small spring flowers come slowly this year. Some fine poppy anemones were among this week's offerings. Fruit blossoms continue to arrive, but soon will be over. Plants are not selling quite so well, except good ferns, which are in big demand. All classes of greens are shortening in supply.

Various Notes.

On a visit to Hills' Nursery recently, I found the new house full to overflowing, yet Mr. Hills says he is still short of stock to fill orders. Mr. Hills makes it a point never to ship stock until it is ready and up to standard in the various sizes, and this accounts for his being sold out closely when other growers have stock on hand. His new fern is magnificent, rapidly making the large specimens for which this nursery is famous. I noted some extra fine 10-inch stock just ready and a fine lot of forced stock of almonds in bloom. As usual at this time of year, the beds of shamrocks for St. Patrick's day look like green lawns.

The Santa Cruz Evergreen Co. is evidently extending its sphere of operation, some of the week's shipments going as far east as Minnesota. Large quantities of Mexican ivy of fine quality are now being shipped.

Arnold Ringier and Mrs. Ringier, of Chicago, left Los Angeles for a trip to San Francisco this week. The other well known eastern visitors apparently are having a good time motoring over the fine boulevards and taking in the points of interest.

fellows who think that the parting will only be temporary.

Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., has been entertaining eastern friends by taking them out to points of interest and places of scenic beauty, incidentally enjoying the change from his business himself. The reputation of the "house of quality and service" is being well maintained by Paul Miller during Mr. Sperry's absence.

De Forest W. Ludwig, of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., is still on his honeymoon—or moons, several having passed since the happy event. The couple have not been able to draw themselves away from the charms of Los Angeles.

S. Murata & Co. are busy shipping plants and seeds, in addition to cut flowers. Large quantities of bulbous stock, azaleas and rhododendrons are moving freely, the shipment going to the desert sections principally. Valley has been short in supply, but now is coming in more freely.

W. Armacost & Co. are sending in excellent bulbous stock in pots, especially hyacinths.

Albert Goldenson was married February 24 to Miss Minnie Jacobs. The couple are now at home to their friends at 1140 South Berendo street.

John Moody Connon, lately of the Connon Floral Co., St. Louis, who for some time has been in the city with his wife and children, March 1 left here for San Francisco, en route to his Idaho ranch. Mr. Connon expects to stay about a month in the northern city.

ORCHIDS OF FERRARI BROS.

The accompanying reproduction of a photograph, taken recently in one of the orchid houses of Ferrari Bros., San Francisco, will be especially interesting to eastern growers. Here are shown 20,000 blooms of spray varieties. The firm of Ferrari Bros. has only been growing orchids on a commercial basis for a short time, but already has attained considerable prominence among the Pacific coast growers. This firm's houses are one of the principal sources of the supply of orchids for the San Francisco market, where the small-flowered spray varieties are much more largely used than is the case in the east.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Stock is more plentiful following the rain and, with social functions comparatively few in number on account of Lent, there is little likelihood of a shortage of flowers in the near future. Roses are beginning to come in abundantly, after having been on the short side of the market for several weeks. The quality has not deteriorated in favor of quantity; the blooms are splendid for the most part and the increased offerings are readily absorbed without any noticeable change in prices. There is a strong call for Russell and Ophelia. Bulbous stock is shown in profusion, but the strong demand seems to take care of unlimited quantities of daffodils, freesias, hyacinths, tulips, jonquils and narcissi. Offerings of marguerites, forget-me-nots, snapdragons, etc., are well received. Anemones are coming in more freely.

There is little change in the carnation situation, nor in the violet supply and demand. Both flowers are abundant and maintain a reasonable degrees of popularity. The call for sweet peas shows no signs of weakening. The supply of valley is about equal to the demand, and the same is true of gardenias. More orchids could be used some days. Wild flowers constitute a factor not to be overlooked. Wonderful California poppies are beginning to put in an appearance, as well as buttercups, irises, etc. Acacia is particularly good this year and fruit blossoms are all that can be desired. Both have been used extensively for decorative purposes.

Ferns are still in light supply. Excellent flowering plants are to be seen, including azaleas, cinerarias, cyclamens, rhododendrons, tulips, hyacinths and Easter lilies. The outlook for Easter stock leaves no ground for complaint, all seasonables being in promising condition at present.

Various Notes.

Four large designs for the Funston funeral rushed the force at B. M. Joseph's February 23. All were completed and delivered at the City hall by midnight. On a telegraphic order received at 4 o'clock, a set piece requiring a specially constructed frame was made, representing the seal of the state of Kansas. It came out wonderfully well under the personal direction of F. J. Bertrand, flowers being obtainable to reproduce the exact coloring of the sunflower border and the complicated center. For the San Francisco fire department a large urn was made of galax leaves, valley and Easter lilies. For the officers of the decedent's staff a large panel of orchids, valley, hydrangeas and galax leaves was made.

MacRorie & McLaren reported considerable work for the Funston funeral.

The chrysanthemum growers down the peninsula usually begin planting during March, but owing to the continued cold weather this winter the planting will probably be a little later this year than in former seasons. So far as can be ascertained at present, the acreage will be about the same as last year, with possibly a slight increase.

orchids could be used some days. Wild flowers constitute a factor not to be overlooked. Wonderful California poppies are beginning to put in an appearance, as well as buttercups, irises, etc. Acacia is particularly good this year and fruit blossoms are all that can be desired. Both have been used extensively for decorative purposes.

Ferns are still in light supply. Excellent flowering plants are to be seen, including azaleas, cinerarias, cyclamens, rhododendrons, tulips, hyacinths and Easter lilies. The outlook for Easter stock leaves no ground for complaint, all seasonables being in promising condition at present.

Various Notes.

Four large designs for the Funston funeral rushed the force at B. M. Joseph's February 23. All were completed and delivered at the City hall by midnight. On a telegraphic order received at 4 o'clock, a set piece requiring a specially constructed frame was made, representing the seal of the state of Kansas. It came out wonderfully well under the personal direction of F. J. Bertrand, flowers being obtainable to reproduce the exact coloring of the sunflower border and the complicated center. For the San Francisco fire department a large urn was made of galax leaves, valley and Easter lilies. For the officers of the decedent's staff a large panel of orchids, valley, hydrangeas and galax leaves was made.

MacRorie & McLaren reported considerable work for the Funston funeral.

The chrysanthemum growers down the peninsula usually begin planting during March, but owing to the continued cold weather this winter the planting will probably be a little later this year than in former seasons. So far as can be ascertained at present, the acreage will be about the same as last year, with possibly a slight increase.

Arnold Ringier has been calling on the western trade in the interests of the W. W. Barnard Co., of Chicago. He had visited southern California before reaching San Francisco. He formerly made this territory regularly every year and has many friends here, but this is his first visit in six years. Being a great S. F. booster, he is assured a warm welcome.

Frank Pelicano is bringing in some fine flowering plants in basket sizes, his cyclamens and primroses being particularly fine.

T. Mosco says flowering plants are having a splendid call at his store, especially tulips, hyacinths and azaleas.

R. T. Brown, of Queens, N. Y., passed through San Francisco a few days ago, en route to Eureka, Cal.

Domoto Bros. are having great success with flowering plants this season. Every morning they put in a big display at their rooms on Bush street, and by night it is cleared out. Splendid specimens of Azaleas Hinodegiri and Yodogawa were noted the other day. Easter lilies, rhododendrons and magnolias figure prominently in the daily plant offerings. Mr. Domoto considers prospects for Easter promising, conditions being favorable for an ample stock of fine quality.

Manager Shellgrain, of J. B. Boland's store, says funeral work has been the principal item of late, although counter trade holds up fairly well.

Two students of the University of California the other night paid the penalty for their exuberant spirits, which led them to remove a hanging fern from in front of a store in Alameda. Pleading guilty to the charge of malicious mischief, they were sentenced to publicly restore the property to the original place. While amused spectators looked on, the students carried the plant back to the store.

A report from Yreka, Cal., says that Anderson Bros., of Alpine, Mich., will plant a large acreage for seed farming in the vicinity of Granada. Peas, beans and all kinds of garden seeds, it is said, will be grown for the market, and later a large acreage will be devoted to alfalfa seed.

The Woodside Nursery Co. has filed articles of incorporation, with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are S. Enomoto, J. J. Graves, W. C. Graves, E. A. Fotheringham and G. G. Biro.

S. H.-G.

Wenatchee, Wash.—William E. Mills, William Peters and L. I. Milot have incorporated the Milot-Mills Co. The authorized capital stock is $30,000.

San Rafael, Cal.—The California Dahlia Society, of which Newell F. Vanderbilt, of this city, is secretary, has recently issued its second bulletin. The society is composed of amateur and professional gardeners as well as members of the trade. It was organized in San Francisco last July and is making a vigorous growth.

Sawtelle, Cal.—Walter Armacost, whose establishment here always is a point of interest for trade visitors because of its 100,000 square feet of glass devoted to roses and the large area in asparagus, recently was visited by E. C. Amling and H. N. Bruns, of Chicago, who have been vacationing at Orange, Cal. Mr. Armacost guided the party into the mountains with a camping outfit one afternoon and cooked an open-air dinner, one of the kind for which he has more than a local reputation.

TOPPING HARDY PERENNIALS.

Of the following, state which, if any, should be topped in commercial growing: Achilleas, aquilegias, coreopsis, Campanula Medium, physostegias, stokesias. Also, give instructions for planting and temperature for geums and statices. I have made a complete failure of both of these. E. N. T.—Ill.

None of the perennials named should be topped, or you will get few flowers from them; in fact, there are few hardy herbaceous perennials which ever need topping.

Geums, such as coccineum and that fine form Mrs. Bradshaw, and statices, such as latifolia, can be started from seeds now in an ordinary greenhouse. They are comparatively easy of germination. You can also sow in a coldframe in summer. By watering carefully and giving some shade from bright sun you will get a better and quicker germination. All the perennials named should prove hardy in your latitude. C. W.

Reno, Nev.—W. J. Doering has taken over the Stoddard greenhouses and will operate them in connection with his nursery business.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

BETWEEN the decrease of saloons and the increase of munitions factories, the day laborer for nursery work is rapidly becoming extinct.

C. A. SIMPSON is head of a nursery business recently incorporated at Monticello, Fla., under the name of United Nurseries Co. The authorized capital is $12,000.

MANY a nurseryman is on the anxious seat over his spring imports. The German U-boat blockade, if it has not destroyed the chance of receiving the stock, has made prompt arrival doubtful and has raised the question of the probable condition of the stock and its acceptance.

THE salesmen for the Holland exporters of nursery stock at present in the United States are having a hard time of it. The spring shipments have been so delayed and there is such great uncertainty as to their coming forward that the travelers are reluctant to meet their customers.

LIME-SULPHUR WASH.

A good lime-sulphur wash may be made for immediate use by the following formula:

Stone lime	20 pounds
Sulphur (flour or flowers)	15 pounds
Water to make	50 gallons

Heat in a cooking barrel or vessel about one-third of the total quantity of water required. When the water is hot add all the lime and at once add all the sulphur, which previously should have been made into a thick paste with water. After the lime has slaked, about another third of the water should be added, preferably hot, and the cooking should be continued for one hour, when the final dilution may be made, using either hot or cold water, as is most convenient. The boiling due to the slaking of the lime thoroughly mixes the ingredients at the start, but subsequent stirring is necessary if the wash is cooked by direct heat in kettles. If cooked by steam, no stirring will be necessary. After the wash has been prepared it must be well strained as it is being run into the spray tank. It may be cooked in large kettles, or preferably by steam in barrels or tanks. This wash should be applied promptly after preparation, since, as made by this formula, there is crystallization of the sulphur and hardening of the sediment upon cooling.

ORIGINATING NEW PEONIES.

In propagating peonies, you can depend but little on the plants' promises. Some of them are the greatest liars in the vegetable kingdom. On one occasion a member of the staff of a leading newspaper visited me and we found among my seedlings a glorious, large, double, variegated flower. Said he, "Let me name that." "All right," said I, and he called it Exquisite. The next year that fraudulent plant had an insignificant single flower and ever afterward it persisted in its meanness. Another one, Sunbeam, was beautifully silvered, sparkling in the sun, but the effort was too much for it and it never came out in that dress again. Golden Wedding was a beautiful golden flower and I said, "Just what I have been looking for!" But the gold seemed too costly and became a muddy yellow.

Out of the thousands of peonies I have raised, I have about ten now on probation and I doubt whether I shall get more than two that I shall wish to bear my name.

Many think that if their children behave well at home they will be good anywhere. But I have known of peonies that did well where they originated and yet got the sulks when moved.

Yet some of our growers are meeting with splendid success. Rosenfield gave us Golden Harvest, Richardson left us some fine ones, Shaylor has some of promise and the Brands, of Faribault, Minn., are almost working miracles. At last summer's meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society there was the finest exhibition of peonies I ever saw. I had attended several of the national shows in Chicago and Boston, but never beheld anything to compare with the Minnesota society's display. The Brands have been in the businesss about twenty years. D. W. C. Ruff, of St. Paul, has a splendid collection of French varieties. He showed one that cost $40 and

Do It Now!

Go over your Rose Houses carefully and estimate the plants you need for replanting this Spring, and place your order. Roses are going to be scarce. The Manetti situation is such that those who get it are fortunate, and the demand is far greater than the limited supply. We have sold over 100,000 grafted Roses in the last two weeks. We have 200,000 more to sell. There is considerable building contemplated. "Changing from Carnations to Roses" is a frequent explanation made when placing an order. If you are short at planting time it will be your fault and not ours. The growing of grafted Roses is an industry in itself. At Cromwell the large quantity of Roses grown for cut flowers makes it possible to get scions that are first-class. We want your Rose Plant order, and we want to be able to say "yes" to your inquiry. Estimate your requirements and write us.

he sold a lot of high-priced ones to eastern parties. The Brands showed about a dozen sorts, which held their own along with the finest.

In their methods of hybridizing the Brands spare no expense. They do not save more than one in a thousand, and even then, knowing the tricky nature of the genus, they put them all on probation until they are confirmed and ready to join the goodly company of the faithful. One, Mary Brand I think it is called, is the finest and largest light red I ever saw.

Of course, originating new sorts is attended with great expense and so the Brands ask high prices for some of the gilt-edged ones. But they have plenty of ground and they use it, meanwhile using but little manure. They also have plenty of time and they take it, and many plants of great promise must go on the rubbish pile. Only the long tested ones pass muster. C. S. Harrison.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

A retrospect of last week's business is most encouraging. In spite of the advance of food prices, as published in last week's Review, and notwithstanding the higher cost of necessities, the demand for flowers increases. Counter trade has been good, and although the Lenten season has slightly affected decorative and corsage work, the activity in other lines has counterbalanced this. Funeral work has been so heavy that in many cases the florists have found it necessary to work all night to fill orders.

The supply has increased in all lines, except roses, which continue to be as scarce as before, and of only mediocre quality. Carnations of good quality are ample enough to meet an active demand. They bring from $2 to $4, the whites predominating in popularity. Snapdragons of fair quality are beginning to make a good showing, especially the yellow varieties. Violets are arriving in quantities sufficient enough for the fair demand. Sweet peas are good and plentiful, especially the short-stemmed stock. Freesias and calendulas are satisfactory. Paper Whites are about over for the season and receive little attention.

Bulbous stock has been abundant and has been good property. Hyacinths and jonquils are in favor, but tulips have not received much attention. Bright, sunny weather should bring in more stock in the near future. The subject of greens is a matter for conjecture. Greens are by no means an insignificant item, with the demand becoming greater and the supply shorter. Plumosus and Sprengeri are so rare, and fern leaves of such inferior quality, that to put up good work is a difficult proposition.

THE WONDERFUL "EASTER GREETING"

Three years ago we placed Easter Greeting before the Florists. It met with wonderful sale. Last Easter it became a factor in Easter business. It has proven one of the quickest and easiest sellers of any plant grown. No other plant has the long season of bloom and therefore the long selling season. It sells when in bloom and that means from March 20 to October 1. Note spread of above plants in 6-inch pots. No florist can afford to be without it.

WE OFFER FINE STOCK FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT

An attractive full-page advertisement by florists in a Sunday paper last year was most effective in making Mothers' day one of the biggest flower days of the year. A similar scheme is on foot at present, and many of the retail florists have signed up for an advertising proposition. Last year, and the year before that, the supply of flowers on this day was completely exhausted and it was necessary to turn down numerous orders. Therefore it appears to be necessary when boosting for business to boost also for more stock for this occasion. MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The condition of the local market has shown quite a change during the last week. The change was not for the better, however. The demand lightened materially and the general supply was heavier than it had been. This, of course, had a tendency to result in an overabundance of stock. There was not an item on which there was any scarcity last week, and prices, of course, immediately began to decline. The supply of roses was large, and there were even enough Russells of the shorter grades to supply the demand. The quality of the stock is excellent and those who purchased roses got more than their money's worth in every instance. Carnations were more than plentiful, as well as sweet peas and violets. Despite their good quality, it was necessary to move these classes of stock in large quantities at special prices, in order to keep the market cleaned up fairly well.

Bulbous stock last week was also plentiful and sold readily. The demand for plants of this kind, principally tulips, hyacinths and daffodils, has been exceptionally brisk, and large quantities of these have been disposed of to good advantage. There is, of course, practically no change in the valley situation. Seconds are cleaning up daily at $4, while the few firsts that come in are bringing $6. Lent probably is responsible, to some extent, for the decrease in the demand; but from all indications the Easter business will more than make up for the temporary decline.

Club's Carnation Show.

Thursday, March 1, the Milwaukee Florists' Club staged a carnation exhibition at its rooms. A large number of exhibits were made and the attendance was exceptionally good. There is no doubt that the exhibition brought tradesmen into closer harmony, and it is surely well worth repeating at an early date.

Gullett & Sons, of Lincoln, Ill., exhibited a fine vase of Nebraska, which is a most promising red. The J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., of Joliet, Ill., showed its new carnation, Superb. This carnation has a pleasing color and should find a ready market. The Greenwood Carnation Co., of North Milwaukee, had fine blooms of Good Cheer and Nancy; also a vase of mixed seedlings, some of which should make good sellers. Sylvester & Son showed a vase of their splendid Pink Sensation, and also some red seedlings which had exceptionally large flowers. The C. C. Pollworth Co. exhibited White Wonder, Beacon and Mrs. C. W. Ward. This concern also had some light pink roses, as well as variegated sports of Mrs. Ward.

The Schroeder Floral Co. showed good blooms of Nancy and Akehurst. It also had a few flowers of Princess Dagmar, a good dark red, and a vase of Zweifel's new seedling, Edna, which is a promising red. Gustav Pohl had a vase of assorted carnations. A. Reinhardt exhibited well grown White Enchantress, Enchantress Supreme, White Wonder and Beacon carnations. The Mueller Greenhouse Co. exhibited White Wonder and Beacon, which were exceptionally fine stock. The Heitman-Oestreicher Co. displayed White Wonder, Victory, Enchantress and Troubadour. The last-named is about the shade of Winsor. J. Livingstone, gardener for Fred Vogel, Jr., had a vase of cerise seedlings and three different amaryllis seedlings. These flowers measured nine and one-half inches in diameter and aroused quite a sensation.

MILWAUKEE NOTES.

Various Notes.

The Schroeder Floral Co., Twenty-fourth street and Pease avenue, suffered a loss from a fire at the greenhouses March 4. The fire started in the boiler room and destroyed most of it, as well as the end of one house. Considering the possibilities and the extremely cold weather at the time, the damage done was small compared with what it might have been. William R. Schroeder, the president, soon had the burned section under cover, and the damage to stock plants will probably be light. The loss was covered by insurance. This concern lost quite a few lights of glass last summer when a hail storm swept this vicinity.

J. L. Schiller, who has been ill at the hospital for some time with intestinal trouble, submitted to another operation March 3. This makes the fourth operation Mr. Schiller has undergone since he was taken ill this last time. While the operation is naturally of a serious nature, it is hoped that it will be instrumental in bringing about a complete recovery. H. J. S.

CROMWELL, CONN.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., made the first shipment of young rose stock February 19. Among the labor-saving machinery installed last summer was a steam shovel, which is used for turning and loading compost during the summer, and loading coal trucks during the winter. It does the work of thirty men.

Wallace R. Pierson is being congratulated by his friends on the arrival of Wallace R. Pierson, Jr., February 18.

Robert K. Karlstrom has returned from a trip to New Orleans, where he spent a month fighting off neuralgia.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Last week found the market well stocked and business a bit slow. Carnations are in a glut, coming in much faster than they can be sold. Not much can be said for the quality of carnations in this vicinity. Sweet peas arrive in great quantities, the best coming from Saginaw. The local growers apparently have the quantity but not the quality. Choice snapdragons come in each day and find a ready sale. Roses are of splendid quality. There are plenty of spring flowers, which retail easily.

Various Notes.

The Detroit Florists' Bowling Club lost one game to the Cleveland bowlers, at Cleveland, last week. This defeat gave the Cleveland Florists' Bowling Club possession of the cup, the Cleveland team winning four out of seven games.

John Breitmeyer's Sons' Jefferson avenue store is almost ready for business. Those who have seen it say it is most attractive. H. T.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Last week saw a greater influx of bulbous stock, especially of hyacinths, which heretofore have not been too plentiful. Carnations now are plentiful and of good quality. Sweet peas are sufficient for the demand and of good quality. The Spencers, of course, are the most popular. Violets are of good quality and roses have improved greatly. The prices of most flowers keep up well. The volume of business is good, but not rushing. Growers are looking for a good spring trade.

Various Notes.

The Newark Rotary Club, of which Henry Strobell is the florist member, had an exhibit in the ballroom of the Robert Treat hotel last week, each member giving an exhibit of his line of goods.

Charles J. Connolly reports much funeral work at the present time.

Charles Luthy is doing a good business at his store at 363 Springfield avenue. R. B. M.

ROOTED CARNATION CUTTINGS

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

We are now booking orders for our new seedling Superb, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

Superb is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a flesh pink and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

AVIATOR

If you want scarlet carnations for Christmas, grow Aviator, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

COAL SITUATION EASING.

Coal dealers state that the break in the recent cold spell has resulted in a much smaller demand being made for fuel, although prices had not decreased to any large extent. According to one well known wholesale dealer, the profits that the independents have been reaping since last fall soon will diminish materially. In another two weeks there will be marked change in the situation, he predicted. As a result of the comparatively mild weather, more standard coal is being received and less of the independent fuel is being purchased. Premiums soon will be a thing of the past, is the general belief.

WANT BOILER LAW CHANGED.

The newly organized Columbus Florists' Association, of which Alfred C. Hottes is president, has sent the members of the Ohio legislature a letter in which it is stated the trade wishes "to bring to your attention the great hardship inflicted upon the greenhouse owners by Section 1058-1, a law which makes it necessary to maintain a licensed boiler operator for steam boilers of thirty horsepower or over.

"We, therefore, take the liberty of bringing to your notice some of the difficulties encountered in complying with the law.

"First: We feel it absolutely necessary that a fireman should be an experienced grower. We could recount many cases in which great losses have been incurred by employing expert boiler operators, but men ignorant of the importance of ventilation, plant humidity, the correct temperatures and the other difficulties encountered in growing a great variety of plants in the modern commercial greenhouse.

"Second: A great many of the establishments are not large enough to afford the expense of hiring additional licensed boiler operators. The enforcement of the present law may necessitate the closing of some of these smaller ranges.

"Third: Many growers operate their own boilers during the day. The present law makes it impossible for a man to do this now, even in cases of extreme emergency.

"Fourth: Many of the florists are also vegetable growers; additional boiler service would necessitate increased prices, which would be added to the cost of food. Prices are sure to be raised if high-priced operators are necessary.

"Fifth: Greenhouses need a fireman only six months during the year. Consequently we cannot get good men, because we cannot offer continuous employment.

"Sixth: Greenhouses are located away from districts of dense population. There is little danger to human life by explosions.

"The florists and vegetable growers feel that it was not the intention of the present law to include greenhouse owners. We would urge that the following paragraph be added to Section 1058-1:

"'Providing, however, that nothing herein shall apply to bona fide owners of greenhouses and hothouses.'"

CAST IRON BOILERS WASTE FUEL

I had a cast iron 8-section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel-saver. My coal bill to heat 5000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I had only 2050 sq. ft. of glass, heated with the 8-section cast iron boiler.

Your boiler burns any kind of fuel. I would not have another boiler than a Kroeschell, and will recommend whenever I get a chance.

smokeless, at a cost of about $7.25 per ton. Hard coal of the stove size can be bought for about $10.50 per ton. The boiler will burn either. Which is the cheaper? The mine-run, I think, is of poor quality, running not more than ten or fifteen per cent lump coal; the remainder consists of fine screenings and dirt. I have to get up two or three times during the night to fire up. It is my opinion that hard stove coal would be the cheaper, and would keep fire all night without my getting up to look after it. quality, we would consider it cheaper than the hard coal at the prices mentioned, but if the smokeless grade is largely composed of screenings, better results will undoubtedly be secured from the same money expended in hard coal. The extra labor of firing with the fine coal should also be considered.

STEAM FOR SMALL HOUSE.

I intend to build a small house, 21x50, and should like to know whether a 2½-inch flow pipe will be large enough to feed all the returns and keep the house at a temperature of 68 degrees when the outside temperature is 20 degrees below zero. The house will be exposed on all sides. It will be of even-span construction. There will be forty-eight inches of glass in the sides. The height will be seven feet to the eaves and thirteen and one-half feet to the ridge. The house will be heated by steam and will be about fifty feet from the boiler.

J. A. W.—Ill.

To heat the house in question, a 2½-inch flow pipe will be of ample size. In addition, there should be a coil of thirteen 1¼-inch pipes upon each wall. These should start at the middle of the end of the house farthest from the boiler and run each way to the corners of the house and then on the side walls back to the boiler, with which each coil should be connected by means of a 1½-inch pipe.

The 2½-inch flow should be carried overhead to the farther end of the house, about three feet below the ridge. If bottom heat is desired under the middle bench, a part of the returns may be placed there, but a sufficient number should be used to provide 336 square feet of radiation in the returns.

Chester, Pa.—Having acquired his partner's interest in a florists' business here, Sidney H. Bullwinkle says he is negotiating for the purchase of ground on which to erect a range of houses. The store is at 8 West Seventh street.

Waukegan, Ill.—Speaking for publication in a local daily, anent the supply of French and Dutch bulbs, Matt P. Dilger the other day said: "I have made several attempts to place orders for these bulbs and have failed. In each instance I have been advised that the tulip and narcissus bulbs are being used as a food in Holland and in France. I have never tasted this new food, although I have handled thousands of the bulbs, but I would not be surprised if they tasted as good as do onion bulbs, which we eat."

in maintaining beautiful, weed-free paths, gutters, tennis courts, roads, right of ways, etc.

Atlas is a scientific chemical. It is sprinkled over the area to be cleaned (diluted with 20 parts water). Weeds and other vegetation die in a few days—and stay dead all year, because Atlas soaks down to the very roots.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds is becoming extremely abundant, but this was more or less expected. Spring flowers are more than plentiful. Roses, although arriving in larger shipments, still hold to their prices. American Beauties, as usual, cling to the scarce side. Some extra fine Russells may be had. Orchids, valley and violets continue to sell well. Funeral work and several large dinners have consumed a great part of the increased supply.

Various Notes.

March 4 a fire started on the third floor of the building in which S. A. Anderson is located. The fire department, fortunately, arrived quickly and checked the fire before it had made much headway. Water leaking through the floors caused some damage to the store, but mostly in the office.

J. Mahoney, who is with George T. Boucher, of Rochester, was in town March 4.

March 1 the Lenox Flower Shop had its formal opening, on Delaware avenue.

George Messing, who specializes in bedding plants, gladioli, asters, and vegetables, is erecting another house at his place on Lincoln parkway.

Jerry Roach, of Beaver, Pa., formerly with W. J. Palmer & Son, visited Buffalo last week. Mr. and Mrs. David Scott, of Corfu, also were recent visitors. A. E.

Mankato, Minn.—The Windmiller Co. is planning many improvements to its large establishment this spring. The management proposes to add a new front to the building and have a handsome entrance erected leading into the greenhouse grounds. The company reports this winter the coldest in its experience, measured by the quantity of coal required to heat the range. During January the coal bill was $900.

The Market.

Although it is Lent, business is as brisk as ever, thanks to a large quantity of funeral work. The retailers report that their business so far has been up to the average. Cut flowers of all kinds are offered from department store counters. Roses are in much larger supply this week, but move well. The prices have declined. Carnations and lilies are in heavy supply, but a large per cent of them are used in funeral work. The Lenten season seems to have little effect on the sale of cut flowers and blooming plants.

Various Notes.

The trade regrets to hear of the death, February 27, of August Luther, detailed notice of which is given in this week's obituary.

Fred Fromholdt's car was in a smash-up last week. The damages amounted to about $125; no one was hurt severely.

The Alpha Floral Co. lost one of its new cars by theft last week. This concern reports the largest February business in its existence.

Edward Ellsworth has already succumbed to the spring fever—he went fishing last week.

The wholesale houses report plenty of stock of all kinds on hand, with prices lower.

John Stevens is cutting an exceptionally large crop of carnations.

W. J. Barnes has his greenhouses filled with bedding stock and plants for Easter.

T. J. Noll & Co. are featuring a fine lot of Easter baskets for the trade.

Adolph Mohr is now sending in good cinerarias in 5 and 6-inch pots.

Business across the state line is exceptionally good, especially in funeral work.

Edgar Bungar has his place in good shape for the spring bedding business. His vincas and dracænas are always good. W. J. B.

When August Luther's will was probated last week, it was found that resentment had smoldered in the old gentleman's breast for many years. The resentment was directed against the daughter-in-law, whom the decedent blamed for taking his son away from him. The will cuts off the son with a smaller sum and provides carefully against the daughter-in-law ever inheriting any of the $75,000 estate. The son believes his father repented of the will's provision on his deathbed. It is said that Mr. and Mrs. Luther will try to break the will.

Woodsfield, O.—A severe loss at the De Witt greenhouses was narrowly averted last month because of the coal shortage. At the time, Mr. De Witt was unable to procure coal, and it was only because he cut up fence posts and gathered old lumber that he was able to keep the temperature above the danger point.

But not if you are equipped with the STANDARD THERMOSTAT. The Standard Thermostat protects you from just such dangers. It will ring a bell at your bedside when danger is near.

EXPENSE VS. JOY

In working out our patented square paper pot and dirt band we considered a number of good points, but never reckoned with this feature. A customer writes that the assembling of our locking manila board pot affords his family as much amusement as a game of flinch. After supper the children gather around the table and make sport of setting up our pots and bands. The finished pots are tossed into the clothes basket, and so speedily is the work done that there is constantly a pot in the air. A race can easily be had, as our bands and pots are machine-counted into bundles of 250 each.

Contrast this method of assembling with the slow and tedious task of forming paper strips into "pots," then count the difference in the cost of setting up our manila board locking pots and bands by the children and the nailing up or folding of strips of paper into pots and bands by the men. One is labor, the other amusement. One is expense, the other joy. To make sure,

Buy the Ramsburg Locking Pot, made of Manila Board

But if you want paper strips we can furnish them. Write us your needs. We have in stock plain manila paper bands in sizes 2, 2½ and 3-inch, which are machine-scored for easy folding. The scoring gives a square, perfect band, and saves much time in folding, while the cost is less than plain strips are sold for.

TESTIMONIALS—While it is no longer considered good taste to flourish testimonials, we wish to verify a few statements by giving extracts from letters reaching us with orders every day: "Have used ——— plain bands, but want something easier to fold." "Have used other bands and pots, but want something better." "Have used ———, but no more strips for me." "Your locking pots and bands are the finest we have seen," etc. The introduction of the paper strip as a dirt band has opened the way for something better, and we have it. Send a postal for samples and prices. Both our bands and pots are made of manila board. Put all of your spring plants into them and double your profits. The square pot produces better plants with less labor and less expense.

The Market.

Last week was rather slow, funeral work being the only activity. There consequently is a plethora of all kinds of cut flowers, especially bulbous stock. Prices are about normal, with a slight reduction in the bulbous offerings. Hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, etc., in pots and pans are experiencing a fair call.

Various Notes.

At Chipman's greenhouses, Woonsocket, the men are cutting large numbers of callas.

Alexander H. Johnson has leased to Hugo H. De Wildt the office and greenhouses at 521 Elmwood avenue for one year.

William Doel, of Pascoag, has received a letter from his brother, Herbert Doel, who is fighting for England, stating that he is on a dreadnought in the North sea.

Miss M. O'Connor, bookkeeper for Johnston Bros., has been on the sick list. The firm has added another car to the delivery department.

A. Kupfer is arranging to build an addition to his greenhouses.

G. Battinelli has closed his store at 192 Atwells avenue and left the city.

M. F. Pollock has removed from 2 Franklin street to 6 Beacon avenue.

William Seymour, who for the last few years has been in charge of the Samuel Church estate at Bristol, is critically ill.

Maurice Fuld, of New York, last week addressed the Fortnightly Club of Woonsocket on "The Joy of Gardening."

Oscar Schultz was a business visitor to Boston last week.

Thomas J. Gibson has completed another house, 18x60 feet.

The "Dandy" Transplanting Carrying Pot.

Patent Pending

Made from 30-guage galvanized steel, a practical and efficient tool for transplanting any kind of plants along with the same soil in which they were grown. It does away with planting in any kind of pots or bands and is used repeatedly, and year after year, as these bands are practically indestructible if cleaned and put away after using.

They speak for themselves to any grower and will soon become a necessary tool for every greenhouse.

For transplanting such plants as melons, cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbage and other vegetables, they are absolutely reliable and inexpensive. With a few of these Pots a grower can set out thousands of plants in a season, year after year.

The band is simply put around the plant, the seam hooks clasped together and then pressed into the soil around the plant. This is easy, as the thin steel does not require much pressure to be inserted into the ground. Then with a slight turn or shake the soil and roots are broken loose from the bed and the plant and soil carried to the field and deposited from the Pot into the excavation made ready to receive them. As plants transplanted this way are not root cramped or choked in a hard lump like other pot-grown plants, the weather being favorable, they will grow on without a check.

Prices of Bands, ready for use, F. O. B. Leavenworth, are as follows:

	Per 100	Doz.	Sample by Mail		Per 100	Doz.	Sample by Mail

The Market.

Despite the fact that it is Lent, there has been no noticeable decrease in the demand for flowers and plants. Funeral work has been heavy and the automobile show last week proved a big factor in keeping the market well cleaned up.

Never in the history of the oldest florists has the cold weather continued as long as it has this winter, but from a growing and productive standpoint it has been one of the best ever seen. While the increase in the cost of fuel has been hard to bear, business has been so good that it has offset the extra expense to a certain extent. Without a doubt everybody will have a good profit that will keep the wolf away from the door for some time to come.

Various Notes.

C. E. Baldwin, of the Fernery, is in Chicago this week on business.

Lewis Henderson had the decorations for the automobile show held at the Auditorium last week.

Miss Reba McNamara is having a good run of corsage work for theater goers.

The Herman Bros. Co., of Council Bluffs, is consigning excellent sweet peas to the Parker Flower Shop.

Lee Larmon, the Fontenelle hotel florist, had an appropriate window for auto show week.

Robert Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., was among recent visitors.

The Florists' Club members got together over in the Bluffs March 2 and bowled three exciting games with the Bluffs boys. The losers, Omaha, put up a hard fight, but nevertheless went down to defeat for three games straight. Mr. Foster, with the losing side, was high man with a total of 519.

WORCESTER, MASS.

Retail business has been good lately and has only decreased a little under the influence of Lent. Bulbous stock is plentiful and sells well. Cyclamens are still on the market and a few prefer them to other plants. Plenty of azaleas are being sold. Roses and violets retain their popularity.

H. F. A. Lange reports business excellent. Mr. Lange had the decorations for a large banquet last week. It was carried out in spring flowers.

Harry I. Randall reports business good and looks for a record-breaking Easter trade. Mr. Randall will remove to 18 Pearl street about April 1.

The Worcester County Horticultural Society held its annual spring flower show March 7 and 8. The society was without the services of Albert H. Lange, who usually had charge of the arrangements. Mr. Lange was on the March jury at Fitchburg and could not be present. H. L.

The Market.

Business has been unusually heavy. There has been much stock to work with, but it has been easily disposed of; in fact, some days it has been hard to pick up enough to go the rounds. Roses are still in short crop, with the demand heavy. Ophelia roses are not so plentiful as they should be, and those that arrive are picked up early. White Killarney and Killarney are more conspicuous, but when there are enough Ophelias Killarneys go begging. A number of Richmond, Russell and Rhea Reid roses are seen, but the cuts of these are small. Beauties are scarce and hard to get at any price. Carnations are quite plentiful, but it seems that none are left over.

Bulbous stock is abundant, with indications of a good supply at Easter. This stock in pots sells well. Azaleas are not good; they were all badly damaged in transportation. There will be quite a scarcity of them at Easter. Many sweet peas are moved. Violets are in heavy demand and at times it is hard to get enough to go around, both singles and doubles. Cut freesias are popular and many are disposed of in corsage work. Valley continues scarce, with the prices high. Lilies are more in evidence, especially the ones in pots.

Various Notes.

Charles Roth says he is well satisfied with trade at the greenhouses.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is pleased with its new location. It is still doing business at the old quarters, where the force has been busy with decorations and corsage work.

Underwood Bros. report good business in all lines.

The Franklin Park Floral Co. has been doing well, but predicts that stock will be scarce at Easter in many lines of stock.

Stephens & Son have been stepping lively at all times. They report stock scarce.

The Livingston Seed Co. is doing a lively business in its seed department. The buyer has had a hard time procuring enough stock for the cut flower department. J. M.

The two insertions sold everything I had.—H. M. Morris, Rantoul, Ill.

Duplication Proves Satisfaction

Mr. P. H. Burton, of Glenside, Pa., was so highly gratified by the results he achieved with his first Metropolitan greenhouse that he specifically instructed us to plan his new one identically the same as the other.

After a whole year of experience with Metropolitan construction, he decided that no change could possibly improve upon it.

His duplication proves his satisfaction.

We can do as well for you.

ANTS IN SEED BOXES.

We are having a lot of trouble with ants in our seed flats. They destroy the seed. We have tried several nicotine preparations, but cannot get rid of them. Can you tell us of something to destroy them? R. H. L.—Md.

Mix a little powdered cyanide of potassium and sugar together and put it on small pieces of paper on flats where the ants trouble you. They will eat this greedily and will soon die. Use care in breaking up the cyanide crystals and in handling it, as it is a most deadly poison. Do not place it where it will be within the reach of children. Sprinkling the surface soil with Vermine will drive away the ants, but it is not advisable to use this where small seeds are germinating. C. W.

ROCHELLE PAPER POTS AND BANDS

Our Square Paper Pots are the Original Improved DOUBLE Bottom Square Paper Pots that we have sold for FIVE YEARS.

They are by far the BEST POT on the market today.

They are made with one tack. No glue.

By ACTUAL TEST they can be made up MORE THAN TWICE AS FAST as a stamped out pot can be folded, assembled and "locked."

They are made of the same new, tough paper that has made our Square Paper Pots and Square Dirt Bands FAMOUS, after FIVE YEARS' TEST by the U. S. Government, the Canadian Government, International Expositions, large numbers of State Agricultural Experiment Stations, City Parks, Public Institutions and many thousands of Superintendents, Florists and Truckers in all parts of the country and Canada.

"Enclosed please find a postoffice money order, for which please send us 10,000 3-in. Square Paper Pots by freight to Yantic, Conn." Avery Bros., Norwich Town, Conn.

(Avery Bros. got 5000 of our 3-in. Pots in 1913, 5000 in 1914, 7000 in 1915, 10,000 in 1916 and 10,000 this year. They know the merits of our Pots.)

"Kindly send us by express 20,000 Paper Pots, size 3-in., for which I inclose check." George Foulsham, Supt., Lenox, Mass.

(Mr. Foulsham orders our Paper Pots regularly every year and says "We grow sweet peas and all our annuals in them.")

"Send by freight 5000 3-in. Square Paper Pots, 8000 4-in. Square Paper Pots." G. E. Hunt, Florist, Rutland, Vt.

(Mr. Hunt orders our Paper Pots each year and knows they are the best there are.)

CREASED DIRT BANDS

1—Should a Dirt Band be CREASED and the ENDS held together until it is set in place? Yes.

OUR DIRT BANDS ARE CREASED and the ENDS HELD TOGETHER.

NOT "LOCKED"

2—Should the ends of Dirt Bands be "LOCKED?" NO. Because "locking" does not serve any purpose and is a serious detriment.

If the ends are "LOCKED" the band has to be TORN OFF when the plant is taken out.

After the bands are filled and watered the soil settles tight against the insides and they cannot be unlocked.

TEARING the ends of the bands apart will break many of the "balls" or cubes of soil.

Get a "locked" band, lock it and try tearing it apart.

Ours are made to SLIP APART easily, without tearing, to let the plant out.

Our bands are made of the same special, tough paper that has been PROVED 5 YEARS to be perfect for the purpose.

They are the BEST Band on the market, but also the CHEAPEST.

Mr. H. B. Weaver of Bird-in-Hand, Pa., grows Carnations, Mignonettes, Sweet Peas and other cut flowers. He says of our Dirt Bands: "I believe any one using these bands will become a regular customer."

(He got 5000 Dirt Bands in 1913, 60,000 in 1914, 70,000 in 1915, 50,000 in 1916 and has just ordered 60,000 for 1917.)

Mr. J. M. Gager, Willimantic, Conn., says: "The crop from the plants raised in your Dirt Bands PAID ME THE BEST of any crop of tomatoes grown SINCE I HAVE BEEN IN THE BUSINESS."

(Mr. Gager has just ordered 10,000 4-in. bands for this year.)

Mr. Herbert W. Coulter, Avon, Mass., says: "I am so well pleased with the Dirt Bands that I DO NOT SEE HOW A MARKET GARDENER CAN AFFORD TO GROW PLANTS WITHOUT THEM."

To show the wide use of our Pots and Bands by Government, State, City and Public Institutions we might say that while we are writing this advertisement (Feb. 17th) one mail, just opened, brought us orders from South Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station, Brookings, S. D. (They got 10,000 of our Paper Pots last year and expect to use 20,000 this year) and Board of Regents of Normal Schools, Whitewater, Wis., and inquiries for prices from New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University and University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

We have probably sold 5 times as many of our Square Paper Pots and Dirt Bands as all other firms put together.

"S-U-B-S-T-I-T-U-T-E" SPELLS "INFERIORITY"

That is a safe general rule; in the case of CYPRESS as THE Greenhouse Lumber it is an absolute truism. Small wonder that those who urge the "substitute" have but the one cry, "cheaper." But the substitute is NOT "cheaper," except as to initial cost.

The only businesslike way to figure material costs in Greenhouse building is BY THE YEAR.

There's nothing consolingly "cheap" about repair and replacement bills. The truly cheapest greenhouse is the one that shows the least totals—at the end of a term of years—first cost and up-keep together.

By that rule CYPRESS for greenhouse construction has all other woods beaten at the start. It is the absolute cheapest, figured by the years of its life. If built of heart Cypress, with "Pecky" Cypress for certain parts, the wood cannot be substituted by any other material ever grown or made. Talk of a "substitute" is worse than bosh. It is not quite square. If contractors would say: "We can build you a greenhouse of cheaper wood," that would do, for the so-called "substitutes" are all cheaper in first cost. BUT MORE EXPENSIVE IN THE END. Do you care? You bet you do—you're a business man as well as a flower grower. "The Building Age," August, 1912, issue, page 409, in specifications for a small greenhouse, says: "These timbers should be made of Cypress, for on account of its straight grain, strength and durability, this has been found to be THE WOOD BEST ADAPTED FOR GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION."

GET ACTION on our Cypress Pocket Library; the booklets are absolutely free. Write for one, or a dozen. Vol. 3—(nothing but greenhouses) is the first one you want. CHASE A POSTAL AFTER IT. NOW. Also ask for Vol. 36, the book on carpentry, both instructive and interesting. Vol. 37 is the Silo Book.

This is Proof for You—

—proof that the AGMCO houses are lighter, brighter, tighter than other houses.

You know the value of light in a greenhouse—you wouldn't spend your good money for glass if light wasn't of prime importance. And you can't find a lighter greenhouse than this one anywhere in the world. Look it over—roof, ridge, purlins, interior posts, cross braces, side walls, every joint, bend, bolt, fitting is radiantly white—not a dead dull white, but a bright, dazzling white that intensifies every ray of light as a snow bank on a sunlight day will do. This means more stock—better stock—and more money for the grower.

—and tighter? Prove it for yourself. Write to Carl Erickson, of Princeton, Ill., the aggressively progressive owner of this house. Just ask HIM if it's tight, light and bright—if it's not the finest bit of greenhouse construction HE EVER saw (and you can make sure he's seen a lot, used a lot and knows a lot of greenhouse constructions). You can see in this picture what he thinks of the AGMCO bracing. He knows that it will do with 100% efficiency, not only what it is put there to do, but that it will carry an excess load without in the least decreasing its fitness. These are a few reasons why Carl Erickson finds this house "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." He has the AGMCO habit. You'd better get it, too, and NOW.

On account of a large purchase of materials at a close price, we are in a peculiarly good position to make you a particularly tempting figure. Don't beat yourself out of a chance to save some money. Get our price and compare it with that of others, but——get it now.

NO TOLL FROM CHICAGO

Easter Stock, 1917

On time and in fine shape. Can ship any time, and it would be to your advantage, if you have glass, to have stock shipped a week or two before Easter, as there is much less danger of bruising the buds on blooming stock. Then too, it will make a much better appearance developing after shipment.

State whether to be in or out of pots. Three, four, five and six-inch stock, grown in pots, can be shipped in paper pots and save express. Azaleas, large Roses and Hydrangeas must be left in pots.

"Hamburg Late White" CHRYSANTHEMUM

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America

Picture was taken December 10, 1916, and will give a good idea of the symmetrical form of flowers of "Hamburg Late White." These flowers were cut from plants grown from single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean, white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but by selecting later buds most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select a late bud as the later buds come somewhat fuller. By selecting late buds flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready for April, 1917, delivery and all orders will be filled in rotation.

Rooted Cuttings, $12 per 100, $100 per 1000; 2-in. pots, $15 per 100, $125 per 1000

SPRING FASHIONS CALL FOR COLORS

Wedding bouquets this season are a riot of color, due perhaps to the expectation of a shortage of valley, and this artistic New York retailer says decorations and designs all show the break from precedent in the matter of color combinations.

By MAX SCHLING

SPRING weddings are just like spring itself: They always come again, but every year, the same as April weather, they change style, bring different dresses and different flowers. Only the bridegrooms have always the same thoughts about the brides, but the brides have not the same thoughts about flowers and other things necessary for the wedding ceremony. It is quite wonderful what weddings do to flowers.

There was a scarcity of the little bulblets which give us the real bridal flower, the lily of the valley, but that does not harm. There are so many other pretty, delicate flowers for bridal bouquets and for the different bridesmaids that we do not miss lily of the valley exactly.

Bouquets changed altogether this year. Bridal bouquets made out of lily of the valley only, or with the stately white orchids, are not seen so much as they used to be.

New Ideas.

We have now bouquets out of all kinds of spring blossoms. In one bouquet alone you can see combined, just like a happy family, flowers like white pansies, white Roman hyacinths, creamy white peach blossoms or double Japanese cherries, white primroses, lilac and many others.

While some of the brides carry the regular shower, clinging over the arm and falling down over the gown, you see some of the tall, slim brides carrying a bouquet spray-like, falling backwards, almost forming a part of the body. Brides, flowers and dress seem to be one harmonious whole and the flowers for this combination are just the same as used for almost any other bouquet.

There is a spray of lilies, there are two or three gardenias, there is a bunch of white violets, a few sprigs of lilac, dainty Narcissus poeticus, white baby primroses, delicate as baby's breath. Mixed up among themselves, they still harmonize, one improving the other, and still not one taking the character of its neighbor.

Bouquets of Bright Blossoms.

Bridesmaids' bouquets, something entirely new, you find made out of spring blossoms of almost every conceivable color. The artist does not consider strictly matched colors for his bouquets. He can take anything in his hands and it seems as if every flower would find its own way to the other flowers, and no matter what colors, they all, when put together, have one tone, the tone of harmony and happiness, and they fit into the decorations just as well.

The decorations are not any more as they used to be—just a bower and a lot of palms with a heavy, set background; ribbons drawn along the aisle, a big bunch of Easter lilies on each aisle post or each pew, and a fancy tree-form shape above the aisle, just like an arbor behind our grandfather's farmhouse.

No, you will find it entirely different. The church is free and clear. Nothing obstructs our view. From the farthest corner we can see clear over the whole festive place. A delicate curtain of green is falling from the walls. Two large candelabra with wax lights on each side of the candelabra; roses fastened just as if climbing up; and, instead of the bower, two nice, high, standard trees of beautiful tea roses just to set off the curtain of green.

Church Wedding Decoration with Standard Roses and Hydrangeas.

White Brides!

The bride in her white gown has no more white background such as they used to make, so that you could not tell in former time if the bride in her white gown was a part of the white background of lily of the valley, white roses or whatever white flowers had been used and which you see less and less everywhere. Just the same as we use for trimming gowns, a contrast; just the same as we try to find a harmonizing effect in decorating our homes, just the same we should try to give the bride, in her white dress, a color which not only will be pleasing to the eye, but which also takes away the almost sad impression which the white flowers give us, regardless that we should not feel sad at a wedding.

The flower show will give us a chance to see all the colors. We will come into that big hall, and no matter how many flowers there will be, much art individually is pent up in each little space of each exhibitor, regardless that one exhibitor mostly disregards the color combination of his neighbors. Trying to look at his neighbor's and his own exhibit as individuals, we, when we come in from the outside, will be impressed with all that as one exhibit. No matter from which side we look at the flowers and how many exhibits we observe at the same time, somehow we will not notice that each one is built or put up by different hands, guided by different minds. It will seem to us that the whole has been put up by one master mind. Only the fact that always beauty harmonizes with beauty causes this effect.

Beauty in the Mind.

No matter what combinations we will select for weddings, if the mind that guides the hands that do the decoration has only beauty in it; as long as every individual flower is pretty, the whole, finished, bouquets, decoration, even if made by different hands, will always form a fitting setting for the happy faces of our brides.

So far we did not miss so very much the absence, or the shortage of lily of the valley from the market. That should not mean to say that there is no lily of the valley. Yes, it is still plentiful, but at a price where the ordinary human being, who has not dollars in sufficient quantities at his disposal, has to look for something to substitute. And it was a happy thought to start these mixed spring flower bouquets.

The New Corsages.

But that is not all. The best is the new corsages. It is quite wonderful how the mixed spring flower corsages look. It is quite far away from Easter and already you can see at fashionable luncheons and dinners the forerunners of these beautiful corsages. Why, they are prettier than orchids, and samples, made up to take Easter orders in advance, were not only taken up quite readily, but there were orders placed immediately for them far in advance for Easter.

"Why should we wait until Easter to have something so pretty? We can use it right now," is what the ladies said, and placed orders for immediate delivery.

Never Too Late to Mend.

It is never too early to have the good of life and instead of single plants of large azaleas, genistas, acacias and mimosas, the same mixture has been decided on as a proper Easter gift. Simple, natural bark jardinieres, filled with primroses, mignonette and other delicate flowers, seem to bring us a whiff of fresh air and impress in us the thought that we have in front of us a part of an old-fashioned garden. They keep much better than the strongly forced stove-house plants, of which everyone is afraid that they might be too expensive because everyone claims on account of the war there are none coming in from Europe. As if we would need Europe so badly! Our own growers with the modern greenhouses grow all we want. There is the possibility left that when conditions are normal, we only will begin to appreciate what our own home industry is doing for us. And we do hope to be independent in flowers as in many other things from our competitors across the ocean.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

PREPARING FOR EASTER TRADE.

[An address delivered by David Walker at the meeting of the Kentucky Society of Florists, held at Louisville, Ky., March 7.]

Four weeks from next Sunday being Easter, it behooves us to be up and about. The first and most vital part of efficiency being preparedness, let us not be caught napping in the eleventh hour. We want to have everything necessary ready and at the fingers' ends.

Preparedness embraces a large scope of small details, namely: the early ordering of stock, the having on hand of lots of boxes made up, designs mossed, plants trimmed, baskets filled, extra tubes and casings for your delivery machines, plenty of wrapping paper, twine, stationery, change in the register and plenty of extra help.

In the hustle, bustle and worry of the last hours of Easter trade, the florist who looked far enough ahead into these minor details fares best with the customer and himself. At this season of the year transient patrons are plentiful, so have good stock to show them at fairly reasonable prices, which, tendered with courteous attention, may be the means of making a lasting regular customer.

If your neighbor can afford to buy good stock and gets new trade by it, you would better think it over. A reasonable profit on small orders holds customers and is more profitable in the long run than a big profit once.

Clear Deck for Action.

Wires, stakes and other tools of the trade are necessary, but keep them out of sight. In other words, clear the deck for action.

Anything out of the ordinary, such as novelties in basket goods and basket arrangements, draws attention and creates a lasting impression.

Make constant changes in your windows, as customers soon tire of the same thing. Try the effect of something out of the ordinary, such as a fine specimen plant, and let it be sufficiently distinct.

Hydrangeas are most satisfactory sellers. They last well and give satisfaction. Pansies and maidenhair make up an artistic thought and are inexpensive. A striking contrast in ribbon or plants is all right, but a poor match in the same color is bad. The white matting baskets are fine for filling with hyacinths and choice bulbous stock.

American Beauties have a fine effect in plain Roman ware of a tall pattern, there being no flowers painted on this to conflict with and sometimes spoil the effect of the roses. Jonquils and forget-me-nots loosely arranged make a pretty table decoration or bouquet.

Make Prompt Deliveries.

As far as possible, as the weather gets warmer, make deliveries early in the morning or late of evenings. Always aim to have your flowering plants in bloom when you are trying to sell them, as it will be of little use entering into a lengthy argument with a customer in regard to superior or equal merits of a plant not in flower. The average customer considers such the same as buying a cat in a sack. They want to see a flowering plant in good bloom.

Poor plants are not desirable at any time, but when, unfortunately, a number are on hand they can be sold at lower prices than those that are asked for good plants. They should be disposed of in that way, but they should never be mixed in with choice plants and delivered to a customer who pays for good stock.

The rush in quest of the dollar within reach should not detract at the present time from staple articles, which, if given the care they deserve, will amply repay for the trouble later on. Cyclamens, when well grown, are good sellers, but poor ones are hard to dispose of at any price, so put the good ones where they can be seen, and store the others away and save room and bad impressions on your prospective buyer.

Artistic Grouping Helps.

Less ribbon on Easter plants and more artistic grouping works up nicely and helps to move off stock that might go bad.

Newspapers thoroughly soaked for several days before use make an excellent packing material for cut flowers.

Although hardy plants, forced spiræas must not stand about in dry or drafty positions.

Although many flowers are used with violets in corsages, they are supposed to be best when used alone. Never forget to use tin foil when making your corsages, as a pair of soiled gloves, or a ruined waist or coat may mean a lost customer.

When possible use the foliage of lilies of the valley with the flowers, as no other green is so suitable.

There is scope for originality even in such a small matter as decorating an Easter azalea, which, when carrying a full head of flowers in the somewhat dry atmosphere of the store, must be kept well moist at the roots.

Tell customers to keep these as well as spiræas well watered or in a saucer of water.

Despite Rush, Watch Details.

When plants or baskets are ordered, find out the customer's pleasure in regard to time and manner of delivery and comply thereunto. In the rush of the next thirty days something might be overlooked, but under no circumstances let yourself be short of room.

Made-up baskets should not be arranged in jumbles, but should have plenty of room with an eye to harmony.

Look up last Easter's orders and be prepared for a similar demand. Too much stock in the windows and not enough in the icebox is almost as bad as opposite conditions.

Though effective by daylight, be careful how you associate blue and yellow flowers for decorations by artificial light.

Orchids require perhaps more careful arranging than any other flowers, but they are beautiful when properly handled.

Well established pansies in small, flat dishes are excellent Easter plants. The colors are diversified and the flowers last well in good condition.

Birchbark boxes and different sorts of baskets are peculiarly well adapted for showing such plants as Primula obconica.

Keep Stock Sold in Water.

Keep flowers in water until the last minute before required for use or delivery, as it is impossible to tell how they may be treated when they reach their destination.

Treat your customer as well if he spends a dollar as if he had spent ten.

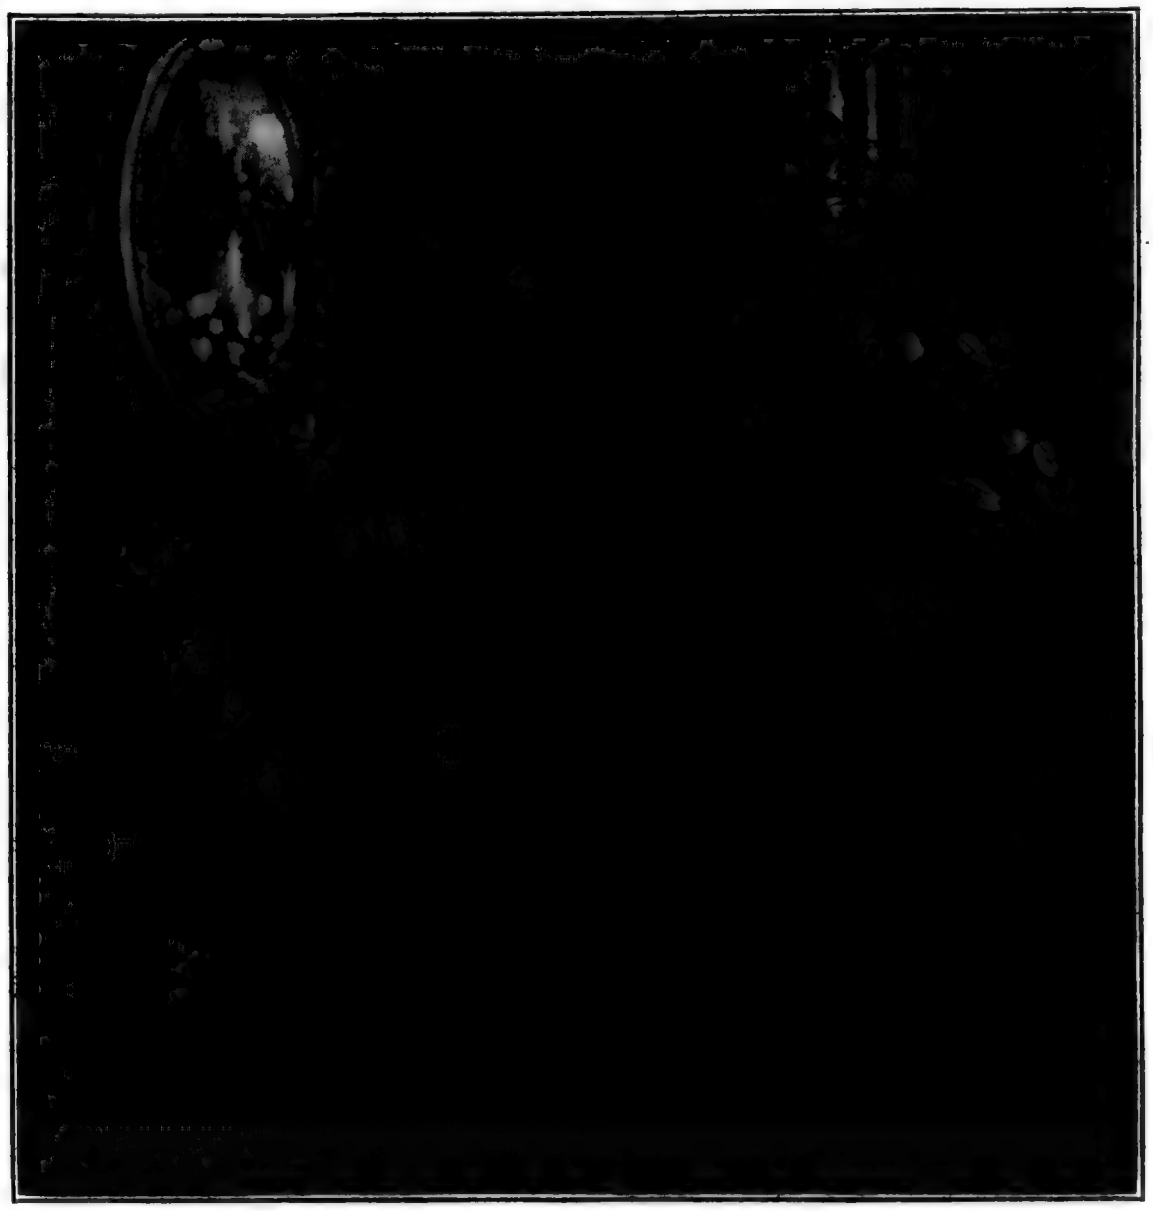
Consider no transaction closed until the buyer is thoroughly satisfied. Don't persuade the people to buy something they do not want, as it is far better to have an assortment and they will find something they do want.

Make as few mistakes as possible and be willing to rectify those unavoidable.

Be liberal, honest and friendly, with courtesy as a motto and good cheer an asset.

Have a homelike atmosphere about your place, with polite and courteous sales people. Your main idea must be to serve as well as to sell, and, if these specifications are carried out thoroughly, I believe this Easter will be a Waterloo to previous Easter records.

PROPER ICEBOX TEMPERATURE.



Please inform me what temperature should be maintained in a refrigerator to keep the flowers in a salable condition for the longest period possible. Should the flowers be placed in water all the time, or just now and then for two or three hours at a time?

D. M.—Ark.

When a refrigerator is used for all kinds of cut flowers, the temperature should be from 40 to 45 degrees. The standard temperature is 42 degrees. In this temperature cut flowers should last for a considerable length of time. The best way of prolonging the life of flowers is to keep them as free from drafts as possible. Each morning cut the stems a little and replace them in vases filled with water.

In the summer time, when outdoor stock is plentiful, difficulty often arises from bad odors, caused by the rotting of the foliage and stems. This can be entirely overcome by the careful use of about two or three drops of formaldehyde to about three quarts of water. This water must be changed daily.

TO PRESERVE DISPLAY STOCK.

What causes my flowers and plants to wilt quickly after they are placed in the display window? I have an arrangement whereby the stock is kept on display there, but even carnations and chrysanthemums remain in a salable condition less than twenty-four hours. Some of them show signs of going to sleep almost immediately. The stock is protected from the direct sunlight by an awning. No gas is used, but the store is heated by a base-burner. The temperature in the window is cool. The flowers and plants are well watered.

E. L. P.—Wis.

The main cause of the wilting of flowers and plants in your store window is the too dry atmosphere. I think one great trouble is that the base-burner renders the air far too dry for a flower store. Flowers and plants need a moist atmosphere and they cannot be kept in good condition unless the atmosphere is cool and moist.

As a remedy for carnations and other flowers I would suggest an enclosed window, with a sliding door. Maintain a good ventilation. This will give the air in the window enough moisture to keep the cut flowers and plants in a far better condition. The dry atmosphere takes out every bit of moisture from the flowers and makes them unsalable.

Another suggestion is that you use earthenware vases in the place of galvanized or tin holders. The water becomes warm and unsuitable for retaining the freshness of flowers in metal receptacles. A tiled bottom in the window would make for coolness and is better adapted to flowers than wood, both for retaining freshness and from a decorative point of view. H. J. H.

A WREATH OF BEAUTIES.

There is a little story attached to the photograph that goes with this description. The story illustrates the confidence shown in the floral artist, a confidence that rivals that so usually displayed in the family doctor. It seems that Herbert S. Bell, who manages the uptown store of J. J. Habermehl's Sons, traveled 500 miles to arrange this wreath. It was pretty tall, taller even than Mr. Bell. It was composed of 150 American Beauties. Their loveliness was enhanced by a great bow of ribbon.

SPRING WEDDING WORK.

The illustration on page 15 shows a portion of a church decoration by Max Schling, New York, for a spring wedding in a Plainfield, N. J., church.

The main part consisted of two standard Dorothy Perkins roses, each twelve feet high, standing in a bed of blue hydrangeas with Dorothy Perkins roses climbing on the stems, two standard blue hydrangeas of the same height and two standard hydrangeas nine feet high. The background was of smilax with pale wistaria tied in. The decoration was natural, simple and impressive.

THE BIG BLOW AT NEWCASTLE

BENTHEY RANGE DESTROYED.

Lynch Place Damaged.

Late in the afternoon of Sunday, March 11, a tornado struck the city of Newcastle, Ind., widely known in the trade as the home of numerous large growers, and the morning papers of March 12 throughout the United States carried stories of many deaths and widespread destruction. A paragraph of the press report said:

"Newcastle is known as the City of Roses because of its production of the beautiful American Beauty roses. The town has boasted of its acres of hothouses. Many of these were directly in the path of the storm and the frail construction of the glass-covered buildings fell easy prey to the wind. Thousands of dollars' damage was done to growing flowers and other plants."

Two Places Hit.

The fact is that only two places were hit. The establishment of Frederick J. Benthey, consisting of about 110,000 square feet of glass, was directly in the path of the storm. It was crushed flat, as complete a wreck, probably, as ever was made of a large greenhouse range anywhere in this country.

The P. J. Lynch place, consisting of about 50,000 feet of glass, conducted under the name of Heller Bros. Co., was so hard hit that nearly every pane of glass was broken and much of the structural material torn asunder.

None of the other greenhouse establishments suffered serious loss. The range of the South Park Floral Co., Myer Heller, president, lost only about $500 in broken glass, although it is only a short distance from the Lynch place. P. J. Olinger, who has 400,000 feet of glass, is off at the other side of the city and did not lose even one light of glass. The Peter Weiland place, with another large area of glass, is beyond the Lynch and Heller ranges and in line from Benthey's, but the storm veered and passed Weiland without damage. Wm. Dittman is only a block from the Lynch and Heller places, but, like Heller, escaped with the loss of a few panes of glass in his big Beauty houses.

The Benthey Loss.

The Benthey place consisted of ten 300-foot houses in roses and two shorter propagating houses. All that stands is the service building. The wreck of the greenhouses is complete. The storm was of a character to crush the houses rather than to lift them. While there were cyclonic storms in the neighborhood that day, the blow which fell on Newcastle was a tornado, described by the weather bureau as the spur of a cyclone. It flattened the greenhouses, breaking down all twelve in the Benthey range, destroying glass and structural material. Five of the houses were 13 years old, two 12 years old, three 10 years old and the propagating houses were modern. The place is estimated to have been worth $40,000. The loss may be $35,000. A part of the loss is covered by storm insurance, but it is thought $15,000 of the cost of rebuilding the houses will fall on the owner, in addition to the loss of stock and sales. A portion of the young stock was saved by removal to the Dittman range and no doubt there will be possibilities of salvage in the bench plants, which are of the best varieties. It is understood the range will be rebuilt at once.

Other Losses.

The losses on residence property along the path of the storm were large. Myer Heller, who is a large property owner in Newcastle, besides being head of a department store, estimates that it will take $20,000 to repair the damage his renting buildings sustained.

How It Looked to a Grower.

I was picking sweet peas in the greenhouses when I saw a storm coming. I thought it time to close the ventilators and ran to the house. No sooner had I reached it than a roaring sound resembling that of a freight train came and lasted a little more than two minutes. When it subsided I looked out at the greenhouses and could see nothing wrong with the exception of about a dozen hotbed sashes.

At the Lynch place, a distance of about 1,000 yards from where I am located, which was in the path of the tornado, not more than 100 to 150 lights of glass remain intact. Glass was blown in all directions, blowing down the boiler room and nearly killing one of the employees. The bars at these houses nearly all remain standing, except where they were struck by some flying object, such as part of the roof of the near-by rolling mill that was destroyed. Mr. Lynch has $3,000 insurance, but said his loss will be at least $15,000 more.

Dittman's greenhouses were also unharmed and I understand Mr. Lynch and the Bentheys have rented it and are moving most of their stock into it as fast as they possibly can, although last night was a bad night for it, as it rained heavily all night, the rain freezing to the ground and trees as it fell. To think of having been so close to the path of the tornado and to have escaped without damage! It certainly was a miracle. The only thing that is bothering us is the telephone being out of order. Also, a number of the men and women failed to come to work.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, whom I found yesterday at the Lynch place, stated, "This is the worst I ever have seen. I have seen a number of greenhouses blown down in my day, but none so completely as the Benthey houses." Here almost everything is flat to the ground, except the benches, which remain standing. The boiler-room and two small houses built in the last three or four years remain standing, although the gables were blown in completely on these houses, leaving the roof with about one-half the glass in it.

Of the ten large houses which were built first little remains standing, not even the iron gutters, the outside gutter at the south end being completely down, with the posts either broken off or bent over and leaning against the bench.

F. J. Benthey, whom I found at his place, told me he had only $5,000 insurance against wind. With the price of glass at $5 to $6 per box, this would not even pay one-half the price of the glass alone.

They were busy here removing all the young stock. They were keeping a continuous fire in the boilers, as the main pipes all remained intact. Only at one place did I discover a leak. I might state that the rose plants in the benches can all be removed and heeled in and used again, although I do not know if it is their intention to do this.

The South Park Floral Co. houses, of which Myer Heller is proprietor, were just south of the storm, although several gables were blown in, some of the ventilators were thrown over and the first house to the north suffered severely from flying objects. The Dittman houses, on the opposite side of the street at the south end, were uninjured. He has been wanting to rent his houses for some time, and it will be an advantage to both the Bentheys and Mr. Lynch, as some of his houses were empty and ready to be occupied again. At the Olinger place no damage was done, this being north of the path of the storm about one mile. Peter Weiland.

RECONSTRUCTING COLDFRAMES.

We intend to replace the wooden sides of some coldframes with concrete this season and we wish to get some information as to the proper thickness of the walls and the necessary reinforcing. We are also in doubt whether to make the frames wide enough for two sashes, with a center wall, or only wide enough for one set of sashes. Can you help us out? H. S.—Mo.

If the frames are to be used during the winter months, we would prefer to have them wide enough to carry a row of hotbed sashes on each side of the ridge. In case they are only to be used as coldframes late in the season, frames wide enough for a single row of sashes will be satisfactory.

The walls should be set deep enough in the ground to provide a good foundation, so that they will not be acted on by frost. Three inches will answer as the thickness of the top of the wall and four to six inches for the bottom. Although reinforcing is not necessary, it is a good plan to run a ¼-inch steel rod about one inch below the top of the wall on all sides. Especially with the wide frames, it will be a simple matter to heat them with steam or hot water. T.

PROPAGATING FICUS ELASTICA.

If it is not too much trouble, will you describe the best method of rooting Ficus elastica cuttings? Please mention the kind of soil and the best location in the greenhouse for the purpose—whether dark or partly shaded. Is any bottom heat required? Should 2-leaf cuttings be used, or tops only? J. F. V.—Pa.

There is no doubt that Ficus elastica is one of the best sellers, one of the most popular of house plants. H. A. Siebrecht is authority for the statement that, according to the closest estimate available, "from 80,000 to 100,000 rubber plants are sold in America in a single year." Among the evidences of the great demand for the plant are the numerous inquiries about the methods of propagating it. The Review has answered such inquiries frequently and the following directions are largely a repetition of suggestions given in former replies.

The propagation of Ficus elastica by means of cuttings is generally considered, in this country, a somewhat uncertain process, as the cuttings sometimes fail to root when there is no apparent reason for such failure. However, it is still the most common method in some parts of Europe. Late spring is a favorable time for the work. Some growers prefer single-eye cuttings, with only one or two leaves. Other growers advise the use of cuttings seven or eight inches long, always the latest growth and cut just below a joint, retaining several leaves. These cuttings are inserted in 2-inch pots of sand and loam. The pots are plunged in some suitable material, and a steady bottom heat of 75 to 80 degrees is maintained. The leaves are drawn up and tied to a small stake, so as to save space and facilitate watering. After the first watering, the cuttings are kept only moderately moist. They should be well rooted before being shifted.

However, a much more common and more successful method of propagating rubber plants, at least in America, is the so-called mossing or ringing operation, which is performed on the tops of the stock plants, so that the roots are formed on the "cuttings" before the latter are severed from the parent plant. This system can be employed at almost any season of the year, but spring and early summer are the most favorable periods. The process consists simply of cutting the stem partly through, at any desired length, preferably below a leaf. Stick a couple of toothpicks or any small pieces of wood into the incision to keep it open. Then bind sphagnum moss tightly over, above and below the cut made. Keep it constantly moist, and to ensure this keep the stock plants in a warm, moist and shaded house, where they can be freely syringed. Just as soon as roots are seen peeping through the moss, cut the tops off and pot them.

Clarence, N. Y.—E. A. Muchow is investigating heating with kerosene or crude oil as an escape from the clutches of the coal barons.

Van Wert, O.—Scharff Bros., who are jobbers of tobacco stems as well as being florists, say stems continue to rise in price, being worth $15 to $18 per ton in carload lots. They are now bought up by manufacturers of cheap cigarettes and also by fertilizer companies, which extract the potash they contain.

Reading, Pa.—March 15 the members of the Reading Florists' Association journeyed to Lancaster, where they were guests of the Lancaster County Florists' Club. An inspection of establishments at Lancaster was part of the day's program. In the evening a bowling match took place between the organizations. It was expected that many of the members of the local association would leave March 17 for the New York show.

CHICAGO CLUB HOLDS NOVELTY SHOW

STUDENTS AS GUESTS.

Fine Exhibits.

There may have been novelty shows where the number of exhibits was larger, the variety greater, or the attendance better, but never has there been a novelty show where there was more enthusiasm than in the one held in conjunction with the regular monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, at the Morrison hotel, March 8. From the time the first visitors arrived, at 4 p. m., through the excellent dinner with the accompanying speeches and until, fatigued by animated discussions and debates, the meeting was called to an end shortly before midnight, was this spirit detectable.

The afternoon hours were spent in viewing the various exhibits which had been previously arranged under the management of Guy French and to which the public was invited.

A delegation from the University of Illinois, consisting of fourteen students in the floricultural courses and Professor H. B. Dorner and Assistant Professor Hecht, were the special guests of the club. C. C. Pollworth and H. V. Hunkel, of Milwaukee, both of whom staged exhibits, also were present.

The Banquet.

At 6:30 the members and guests adjourned to the dining hall, where a fine dinner was awaiting them.

At the conclusion of the meal, Fred Lautenschlager introduced Philip J. Foley, who extended a welcome to the visitors and expressed his pleasure in seeing such a large number of members present.

Professor H. B. Dorner next addressed the club on the work that was being done in floriculture at the University of Illinois. He spoke of the great advances made by science in the breeding of flowers, and said that at the university there are men constantly at work on the laws and problems of plant growing. In relation to this selection and pedigree breeding, he said that he could remember at La Fayette, Ind., not many years ago, there were grown in the houses carnations of all the hues and colors of Jacob's coat, but how certain strains had been eliminated, until today only a comparatively small number of color strains are grown. There are many ills, he further stated, which in former years were viewed with the utmost alarm, but which are now quickly being relieved by the man who is doing the breeding work and who so selects his plants as to propagate the disease-resisting varieties. As examples of ills which no longer are dreaded he mentioned carnation and snapdragon rust. From the possibilities thus opened, the breeder has before him a great future. Viewed from another perspective, growing to please the public, he said that he also thought there still are great possibilities in working up the character of the plants, their color and fragrance. This work, he stated, always had a peculiar fascination for him. Professor Dorner briefly referred to the good time the few who had attended the state florists' meeting at Champaign had enjoyed. In conclusion, he reminded all that the university greenhouses are for their benefit and that he hoped all will make use of such help as the university offers. He urged that all who can do so come to Champaign and see the work that is being done and give to him their valued advice or criticism, or on the other hand to bring their problems before him, so that the university can serve in solving them.

President William H. Amling next appointed committees to report the various exhibits, as follows: Committee on roses: W. Keimel, Joseph Kohaut, Ernst Amling; on bulbous stock, Albert H. Schneider, Edward H. Goldenstein, Albert Erickson; on carnations, Professor H. B. Dorner, W. F. Dunteman, Fred Schramm.

The Meeting.

The speeches over, the members took a brief breathing spell before President Amling called the business meeting to order. Over 100 members were present. This being the first meeting he has been able to attend since his election as president, he opened with a consideration of what should be accomplished by the club in the next year. He urged upon all members the duty of attending the meetings, and said that it was disappointing, indeed, when the club committees worked so hard, to find members staying at home, expounding pessimistic views, but still unwilling to give that coöperation which would make for an amelioration of conditions. He pleaded that all do their best in increasing the membership list and said that if all would take as their byword the slogan of the great Chicago market, "I Will," the coming year can not help but be a banner one. For, he concluded, "United we stand, divided we fall," and "In unity there is strength."

Applications were received from H. G. MacLellan, Hammond, Ind.; E. A. Bebb, Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association; Eugene C. Bowen, 3167 Broadway, and Hilmer V. Swenson, 624 South Michigan avenue. The following were elected to membership: John Sinner, M. C. Wright, Arthur M. Luedtke, George F. Kastelink, Charles Niemann and T. E. Walters. Fred Lautenschlager gave a preliminary report on the work done by the posterette committee, which showed sales of 83,084 posters and 362,395 posterettes, amounting to $1,751.60, or an approximate profit of $1,178.85. He said that the committee had decided that it was unnecessary to do anything for Easter, this being an acknowledged flower day, and that it suggested awaiting the action of the S. A. F. directors, who will meet in New York March 15, before doing anything as concerns Mothers' day. A vote of thanks was extended to the committee, as well as a voucher for $100 payable to Fred Lautenschlager for the successful work done.

A motion was passed that President Amling be empowered to appoint a substitute to attend the S. A. F. directors' meeting in New York should he be unable to go, if this were in accordance with the by-laws of the S. A. F. H. N. Bruns was appointed chairman of a committee to entertain the S. A. F. directors who come through Chicago. A letter was read from Mrs. Lyman A. Walton, president of the Chicago chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation Society of America, asking for coöperation and petitioning the florists of this city not to sell wild flowers. It was decided to endorse this request. Guy French asked for the sentiment of the club in regard to national advertising, suggesting that it be put in the hands of the S. A. F.

After long discussion it was decided that the Chicago Florists' Club continue the work along this line, at the same time advising the S. A. F. of what was being done, and stating its willingness to relinquish such campaigns should the S. A. F. take the matter up.

In conclusion, the treasurer read his report, which showed a balance of $331.41 on hand, aside from $263 received that night and $40.77 in bills to be paid.

The Exhibits.

The show was not large, nor were the exhibits novelties, except in a few cases, but the quality was excellent and the display was large enough to make a creditable showing. Specially commendable were the King Alfred and Glory of Leiden narcissi of Alfred Jurgens, the Imperator carnations of W. H. Amling, the Rosalie roses of the South Park Floral Co., the Ophelia roses of the A. F. Amling Co., the Champ Weiland roses of Weiland & Risch, and the new pink roses of Holton & Hunkel Co. The following are the reports of the judges:

Carnation Radium, grown and exhibited by P. J. Olinger, Newcastle, Ind.; color deep red with fringed edge.

Carnation Superb, grown and exhibited by J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill.; shows up well, with long and stiff stem.

Carnation No. 1-12, grown and exhibited by the University of Illinois; large pink, of Enchantress color; excellent.

Carnation Imperator, grown and exhibited by W. H. Amling, Maywood, Ill.; looks like a certain winner; color not judged because of poor light.

Fine vase of Carnation Belle Washburn, shown by Bassett & Washburn; too well known to require description.

Narcissus Glory of Leiden, large; Narcissus King Alfred, large; Narcissus poeticus King George, first; Narcissus Minimus, first, shown by August Jurgens.

Cannas Firebird, Yellow King Humbert and Gold Bird, shown by Vaughan's Seed Store.

Milwaukee's new rose, not named, exhibited by Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee; a seedling of Richmond crossed on Antoine Rivoire, of pleasing rose-pink color, foliage good and clean, stem strong and wiry, a rose worthy of further trial.

Champ Weiland, exhibited by Weiland & Risch; fine stock on long, stiff stems, brilliant color and strong fragrance.

New rose, Rosalie, exhibited by the South Park Floral Co., Newcastle, Ind.; a baby Chatenay of pleasing color; a fine rose in its class.

Rose Ophelia, shown by A. F. Amling Co., Maywood; long, stiff stems, well grown stock, large flowers.

Vase of Mrs. Charles Russell, grown by French & Salm, Union Grove, Wis., exhibited by George Wienhoeber; exceptionally well grown stock on long, stiff stems, large, full and well shaped flowers, good color and fragrance.

Other exhibits were: C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis., young plants of the new chrysanthemum, Mrs. C. C. Pollworth; Chicago Flower Growers' Association, "ever-blooming" pussy willows; University of Illinois, schizanthus.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, sent an exhibit of Golden Gem rose, a seedling of Henry Kirk and Lady Towill, grown by Edward Towill, which arrived too late for the show.

INDIANA ASSOCIATION AT LA FAYETTE

HOOSIERS DISCUSS PRICES.

Dorner Brothers Gracious Hosts.

At 8:15 a. m. March 7 a jolly party of Indianapolis florists left by special train for La Fayette to attend the meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana. At the destination they were met by the Dorner brothers, of the F. Dorner & Sons Co., and motored to the Dorner establishment. Everything at this establishment was in excellent shape. The new carnation, Laddie, which the Dorners class as the greatest carnation they have ever put out, was the admiration of all. Another great sight was a bed of seedling carnations, in which there were about 1,200 varieties, ranging in colors from almost black to palest shades of pink and white. These also included striped, flaked and plain colors.

The roses were in fine crop. A new seedling rose, a feature, is a pleasing shade of pink and highly perfumed. The Dorners are contemplating putting Rose Marie, as they call it, on the market next year. Hoosier Beauty and Russell roses looked well. Ophelia was in largest crop of all—2-year-old stock replanted. Prince of Wales violets were in excellent flower and had been so since before Christmas.

Entomologist's Office Retained.

The first part of the association meeting was held at the Dorner greenhouses. The minutes of the January meeting were read and approved, and also the report on the carnation show and meeting. The following were proposed for membership: F. W. and B. A. Blubaugh, C. B. Durram, I. L. Totten, E. B. Steddum and C. L. Griffith. Daniel Bash and Thomas D. Hepler were elected to membership.

The committee appointed to coöperate with the state entomologist was absent, and its report was held over until the next meeting. The members were pleased to learn that their efforts had been rewarded and that the office of state entomologist would be retained in Indiana. Irwin Bertermann stated that, as president of the State Florists' Association, he had written to the governor, asking that this office be retained.

After adjournment there was a pleasant motor trip to the club house, where a splendid banquet was served. The Dorners put forth every effort to make this a success. The tables were artistically decorated with Laddie carnations. Incidentally any kind of liquor the members desired was forthcoming, as there would be only one more chance to "treat," the state having gone dry.

"Get Higher Prices!"

After the banquet the business session was resumed. President Bertermann introduced the subject, "Get Higher Prices," which he said was a topic near to his heart. He maintained that in view of the increased cost of everything, an advance in prices was necessary. Men in the employ of the florists were not making enough to keep their families, yet florists could not give them higher wages with the present selling prices of flowers. He claimed that, considering hours, florists are the poorest paid men in the working class, averaging only $2 to $2.25 per day. He stated that his company had raised some of their prices, and that the public had not objected. He therefore felt that flowers have ceased to be a luxury, and are a commodity.

W. W. Coles agreed with the president and felt that it was high time that florists were pulling together. With coal at sky-high prices and overhead expenses great, growers would have to charge more. Referring to some large blooms of Laddie, Mr. Cole said that such stock ought to bring $2 per dozen retail.

Frederick Dorner reported that the Dorner & Sons Co. had raised prices fifteen per cent this year and expected to raise twenty-five per cent next year, but he considered it wise to do this gradually. This year the company advanced prices on bedding stock, and if geraniums would not bring $2 per dozen they would not be sold.

"Act Now!"—Dorners' Slogan.

Theodore Dorner said he believed the time was ripe, that it would never be more opportune. He stated that when such things presented themselves to other merchants, they acted immediately. He said that many florists do not figure overhead expenses accurately enough. He felt that all petty jealousies should be set aside and a closer coöperation maintained, while the time was ripe. "Act now!" is his slogan.

Allan Humason agreed with the speaker, saying that in previous years, before entering this business, he had seen merchants raise prices at the least provocation. Since florists' supplies had increased in cost, why should not florists and retailers advance the cost of flowers, instead of waiting and trusting to a brighter future, or expecting things to adjust themselves?

Dr. J. A. Haugh, recently of Stuart & Haugh, agreed with all that had been said, especially with what Mr. Bertermann said. His belief is that the man who gets top-notch prices is more respected by the buying public, and that the cheap man leads himself to his own end.

Following the discussion, the secretary read a partial report of the flower show. It was decided that the next meeting be held April 3 at Indianapolis. This meeting will be of special interest to the retailers, as there will be a paid lecturer to speak on "Salesmanship." This lecture will be followed by an open discussion.

Three resignations were tendered, those of A. P. Reynolds, and the Lantner brothers. J. D. Carmody, of Evansville, and Doctor Haugh were voted honorary members of the association. The latter, who is departing for Florida, is one of the oldest members. The provision for the two days' outing, usually held in July at Winona lake, was struck out of the constitution.

Purdue Trip Finishes Day.

W. W. Coles thanked the Dorners for their entertainment. President Bertermann thanked Purdue in advance. Dr. Haugh, who was called upon for a departing speech, stated that he had been a member of the association for twenty-one years, had been president three times and had twice acted on committees for the American Carnation Society. He stated that he felt near to the association—near to the old members and fatherly to the young ones.

Walter Fischer's scheme for Mothers' day was explained. It includes stamps, posters and newspaper cuts.

A trip to the Purdue University greenhouses was enjoyed. There were quite a variety of cut flowers and decorative plants. There also was a section devoted to vegetable gardening—cauliflower and lettuce planted together—and a section of winter tomatoes. The tomato plants are said to produce about eight pounds of fruit to a plant, for which they receive 20 cents per pound. One house was devoted to cucumbers, which were in flower, except a few English cucumbers of enormous size.

THE MARCH SHOW DATES.

The accompanying table shows the dates of the four big flower shows to be held during the next few days. This schedule is arranged a la baseball and therefore is easily read and remembered. It shows the opening date of each show, also the banquet date and the closing date of the show.

While it is unfortunate that the dates of these important exhibitions conflict, nevertheless it is possible for anyone to attend one-half of the full show period of each exhibition. Fred Lautenschlager, of Chicago, who planned it, has found that florists from the far east could take in the first two days of the big western show. Then by leaving St. Louis Friday night they will arrive in time to take in the New York show Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Next, by leaving New York Tuesday night one can arrive in time to take in the Philadelphia show Wednesday and Thursday. Then pack the grips and leave Philadelphia Thursday night for Boston, arriving there Friday morning, which will give three days for the big New England show.

Mr. Lautenschlager is planning to carry out this program.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Registrations.

The executive committee met in Philadelphia March 7. The roses presented for registration, which had been referred to a committee, were ordered registered and published.

Edward Towill, of Roslyn, Pa., registered a new seedling rose, Golden Gem, a cross of Lady Hillingdon and H. Kirk; color, golden yellow; strong stem and free bloomer.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., registered three rose novelties, to be disseminated in 1918, as follows:

Mrs. Belmont Tiffany (hybrid tea), a sport of Sunburst. Color, golden yellow, shading to apricot-orange at the base of the petals, the whole suffused in delicate pink. A distinct and glorified Sunburst.

Mrs. Charles Bell (hybrid tea), a sport of Radiance. Color, light or shell pink, on a salmon-shaded background. Superior in growth to Radiance, being equally vigorous but more robust in habit.

Elizabeth Zeigler (Wichuraiana hybrid), a sport of Dorothy Perkins, but quite distinct. Color, deep rose-pink. Equally vigorous and free in flowering.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., registered the following:

Columbia, a large habited, upright grower, with large-sized foliage, producing long, stiff stems and bearing a large flower of bright pink color, which deepens as the flower matures.

The Double Ophelia, similar to the parent in everything save the fullness of the flower. This variety has twice as many petals as the parent; clear and brilliant in color.

Rose Premier may be described as a Mrs. Russell; of easy culture, magnificent in size, form and foliage, and with a perfectly erect stem; deep rose-pink.

Mary Hill, of Sunburst type, improved in habit, foliage and growth; immense bud and flower, of cream color, with deep orange center.

A communication was received from Portland, Ore., with regard to the rose test garden there. The resolution adopted at the February meeting is:

Resolved, That the application made by the Portland Association National Rose Test Garden be hereby accepted; that the executive committee of the American Rose Society does hereby officially designate Portland, Ore., as the site for the official rose test garden of the Pacific northwest; that, as a committee representing the American Rose Society, the following be appointed to fill the position:

J. A. Currey, 1943 North Thirteenth street, Portland, Ore.

A. J. Clark, 287 Morrison street, Portland, Ore.

Alfred Tucker, 376 North Thirty-second street, Portland, Ore.

A committee was appointed to revise the rules of registration for new roses and to prepare a uniform form for registration purposes. The committee consists of J. Horace McFarland, George C. Thomas, Jr., and Wallace R. Pierson.

Rose Festival Judges.

The list of those accepting the position of judges was read, and the following designations were made; judges to report at noon March 20:

One hundred cut roses—J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Patrick Welsh, Boston, Mass.

For the fifty class—Frank H. Traendly, New York; George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.; Eugene Dailledouze, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the twenty-five class—Fred Burki, Pittsburgh, Pa.; F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland, O.; S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y.

Plants—A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia, Pa.; Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y.; J. H. Small, Washington, D. C.

Best display of cut roses by commercial growers, Thursday, March 22—A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia, Pa.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont.

For exhibits by private growers, Wednesday, March 21—Alex. B. Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa.; J. P. Habermehl, Philadelphia, Pa.; Geo. Morrison, Baltimore, Md.

L. J. Reuter was appointed a committee of the American Rose Society to perfect arrangements in the matter of an outdoor rose show, which will be held July 4, at Newport, R. I.

THE DIRECTORS' MEETING.

The directors of the Society of American Florists will be in session at New York March 16 and 17. The number present will be the largest in the history of that body, because of the increased number of directors caused by the affiliation plan. The work outlined promises to keep the board constantly occupied for the two days.

In addition to the usual grist of routine matters, the board will have a number of special and unusually important matters for action. In the first place, the St. Louis national flower show demands attention and with it comes the question of changing the date for the 1918 convention of the S. A. F.

A matter of even larger importance to the trade at large is that to be presented for the legislative committee by James McHutchison. It concerns the efforts being made to secure the enactment of a law to prevent all importations of horticultural commodities as a means of excluding possible new insect pests and diseases. The board will be asked to go the limit in opposition to such legislation.

The board also will have a report and probably a recommendation from the committee on trade directory, also from the committee on publicity. These, if positive action be taken, will commit the S. A. F. to policies and undertakings radically different and more difficult than it has handled in the past and will call for careful consideration.

ERROR IN ROSE SHOW FORM.

In the entry form for next week's rose festival at Philadelphia, March 21 is given as the date for staging the commercial classes of cut roses. This is a mistake, says Secretary Fred Cowperthwaite. These classes will be staged by noon, March 20, and it is essential that exhibitors note this rectification.

WORCESTER, MASS., SHOW.

The Worcester County Horticultural Society's annual spring flower show, held March 8 and 9, was conceded by many to be the best ever staged by the society. The large hall resembled a large garden, though there really were five gardens, four corner gardens and a square garden in the center. Along the sides of the gardens the specimen plants for premiums were placed. E. W. Breed was in charge of the exhibition.

H. F. A. Lange had one of the corner gardens. He used tulips, hyacinths, narcissi; in fact, all bulbous stock. In the center was a bird bath, with artificial humming birds, bees and butterflies, to make the scene more realistic. Mr. Lange also had the center garden, in which he used genistas, lilacs, acacias, azaleas, cyclamens and primulas. The centerpiece was an exceptionally large genista, with the other plants forming a pyramid around it.

E. W. Breed had a corner garden of blooming plants and boxwoods. In this garden Mr. Breed showed a new viburnum. Its strong odor was similar to that of the mayflower.

The Gage private conservatories furnished a third corner, using blooming plants, with coco palms as a background.

The competition in the different classes was unusually keen, particularly in the cyclamen classes. Harry I. Randall had an attractive display of yellow roses at one end of the hall. Sunburst, Ophelia, Ward and Tipperary were the varieties. They were arranged in baskets. Miss Lucy Coulson had a pretty basket that captured second prize. Miss Coulson is an amateur and made the basket herself.

The awards were:

Cut flowers—H. F. A. Lange, first; Homer Gage, second.

Carnations—Alfred Knight, first; Sunnyside Greenhouses, second; R. M. Ward, third.

Orchids—Mrs. J. C. Whitten, first.

Azaleas—H. F. A. Lange, first.

Araucarias—H. F. A. Lange, first; Miss I. Crompton, second; Allyne W. Hixon, third; Mrs. Percy Forbes, fourth.

Cyclamen, one plant—H. F. A. Lange, first; Miss I. Crompton, second; Alfred Thomas, third.

Cyclamens, four plants—H. F. A. Lange, first; Miss I. Crompton, second; Alfred Thomas, third.

Hyacinths—Lucy Coulson, first; A. W. Hixon, second.
Primula Sinensis—H. F. A. Lange, first; A. W. Hixon, second.
Primulas, any other variety—Miss I. Crompton, first; H. F. A. Lange, second; Alfred Thomas, third.
Narcissi—H. F. A. Lange, first.
Violets—D. C. Murdock, first; Charles Potter, second; A. W. Hixon, third.
Basket—H. F. A. Lange, first; Lucy Coulson, second; Homer Gage, third.
Flower garden—H. F. A. Lange, first; E. W. Breed, second; Homer Gage, third; Lucy Coulson, fourth; Miss I. Crompton, fifth.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The market has felt little change since last week. A scarcity of roses still prevails and also a shortage in carnations, lilies and fancy sweet peas, although medium and short sweet peas are slightly glutted, the latter bringing 50 cents to $1, while fancies make $1.50.

Business is exceptionally good, counter trade being fine. All the retailers proclaimed Saturday, March 10, the best day enjoyed in a long time. Funeral, corsage and decorative work have also been unusual, the latter being due to several conventions, important banquets, etc.

Roses are bringing from $3 to $15; medium grade carnations bring $2 and $3, with fancies at $4. Smaller flowers and spring stock take well, including jonquils, tulips, hyacinths, freesias, sweet peas, violets, marguerite daisies, mignonette and calendulas. The freesia season is about over, however, and good stock is not abundant.

Potted plants are in good favor and are also of good quality. Greens are still scarce, with smilax bringing $2 a dozen.

Various Notes.

Karl Sonnenschmidt, of the Smith & Young Co., has taken a trip to Florida and while there intends to investigate the southern green situation.

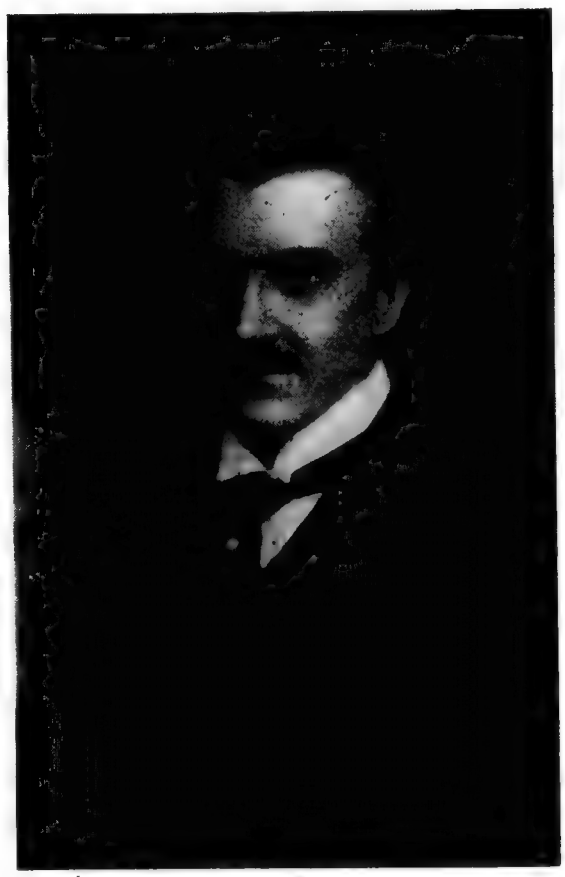
August Duderstadt again is with Wiegand's Sons Co.

The Bertsch Floral Co., of Greensburg, has discontinued business.

The Claypool Hotel Florist has been enjoying an exceptional business. Mr. Bookedis recently had the decorations and corsage work for a sorority banquet and dance, and for a Kentucky university banquet.

Clarence Greene, of Hensley's Flower Shop, has a clever and attractive way of demonstrating his patriotism. American flag stickers on each box sent out are appropriate for the times.

Clarence Thomas, of the E. G. Hill Co., has enjoyed good business for this time of year. He has had quite a run on corsage work shipped out of town.



Several of the local tradesmen have been off duty on account of illness. Oliver Steinkamp has had the grip; A. P. Reynolds has been threatened with pneumonia; Alvin Schreiber has been ill for some time; Harry Rieman has pneumonia; Bertha Elsner has had an attack of grip and Henry W. Rieman has been sick for the last few days, suffering from a nervous breakdown.

The Pahud Floral Co. recently ran a sale of the right kind on sweet peas. The advertisement read—"Special—today only—sweet peas 25, 35 and 50 cents a bunch." Some of the local department stores have also been advertising carnations at 35 cents a dozen; sweet peas and violets, two bunches for 25 cents, and hanging baskets. Would it not be a good plan when advertising to add "Buy your flowers at a flower store," bringing out freshness, quality, etc., as important items?

MR. MORGAN'S PROMOTION.

Lord & Burnham Co., in addition to its several branch offices, has opened one in the Penobscot building, Detroit. It is in charge of Victor Morgan, who for the last three years has been associated with Mr. Merrick, at the Cleveland office. The Detroit branch, like the Cleveland one, will be carried on in conjunction with the western office, where the manager of sales is M. C. Wright, formerly prominently identified with the company's Philadelphia activities.

Victor Morgan.

Mr. Morgan was for several years traveling representative of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J. Leaving them six years ago, he joined the sales force of Lord & Burnham Co., at the New York office. After the usual schooling and experience this concern gives its representatives to further broaden their knowledge, he spent considerable time in the Boston, Chicago and Cleveland territories. Backed by such a breadth of experience, combined with a geniality of decided likableness, he is well equipped for his new responsibilities.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Norhampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held March 6 at the home of John Lamont, superintendent of the J. A. Skinner estate, South Hadley. The chief business transacted was the adoption of a revised constitution and by-laws. The president was requested to extend to Prof. A. H. Nehrling the best wishes of the club for success in his business venture. All those who know him regret his leaving this part of the country. James Whiting gave a practical talk on chrysanthemums, which afforded both pleasure and profit, Mr. Whiting having been notably successful with mums at the M. A. C. greenhouses. H. E. Downer exhibited Narcissus Lucifer and White Lady, large spikes of hyacinths in variety and Trillium grandiflorum. H. E. D.

OMAHA, NEB.

The Market.

Last week closed with a warm wave, the temperature jumping to 70 degrees in the shade, but the next morning found it hovering around the freezing point.

Roses are in fine condition and there is just about enough of the long, fancy stock to satisfy the demand. Shorter grades, however, are not quite so plentiful, and at times it is almost impossible to take care of orders for this class of stock. The supply of high-grade Beauties is light, and high prices prevail for the few to be had. Hoosier Beauty is becoming popular and bids fair to become the favorite red in this locality.

There now seems to be an abundance of carnations. The average quotations last week were $3 to $4. A large quantity sold at $2 per hundred, but these were not up to an acceptable quality. Orchids, lilies and valley remain scarce. Daisies are arriving in larger quantities and are selling well. The supply and quality of sweet peas never were better, and the demand is all that could be wished for.

Potted plants this year enjoyed greater popularity than ever before, especially cyclamens and primulas. Spring and Easter stock never looked better, and the outlook at this date for an extra heavy run of business was never brighter.

The fuel situation is assuming something like normal conditions, and prices are down within easy reach of all.

Various Notes.

All records for sales were smashed March 10 at Stewart's Seed Store. A large shipment of pot plants that arrived in the morning was sold out entirely, as well as most of the stock on hand. This is unusual during Lent.

Roy Wilcox, of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, reports that both their wholesale and retail business has been far above expectations, and everything indicates the best spring trade this firm has ever experienced. Blaine Wilcox, of this firm, is in St. Louis this week, combining business with pleasure.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held March 8. The meeting was devoted to the discussion of ways and means of stimulating new interest in the club, which would prove attractive to those who are not members. The following were admitted to membership: S. B. Stewart, O. H. Herman, Charles Nelson, C. G. Hargecline, A. Hooge, Walter Zimmer and Fred Shaw. A larger number is expected to be admitted at the next meeting.

Rumor has it that much additional glass is to be put up in this vicinity this summer. It is also reported that three of Omaha's oldest florists wish to retire from business and are anxious to dispose of their establishments. L. S. H.

Cadillac, Mich.—J. P. Herzog has left town to take possession of a range of houses he recently purchased, near Belvidere, Ill.

BALTIMORE.

The Gardeners' Club's Birth.

Our column last week was devoted to the Maryland Horticultural Association. This week let us look at the organization that succeeded it, and to do this we will have to go back to the beginning of what is today the modern and up-to-date florists' business of our city.

It was far back in 1887 when an idea struck a prince of good fellows, the late Robert J. Halliday, and a few more who used to assemble at his store, that they should have a club through which they might gather at stated times, exchange ideas and get to know each other better. So March 11, 1887, a little coterie of kindred spirits, consisting of gardeners, organized the Gardeners' Club of Baltimore. I am sure that this little band of men the night they organized the club had no idea how much the club would mean to the craft in this city.

Mr. Halliday was the first president, and the members met in his store, where "shop" only was talked, as its membership consisted only of those connected with the trade. There were the private gardeners, that is, those who had charge of the houses on private places; the growers who were in the business for commercial reasons; those who had stores but did not grow their own stock, at least not all they used. At these meetings methods would be discussed, not only as to how best to grow stock, but also as to things that would be for the best interests of the business. These meetings were more on the order of a night school than a club meeting. When a man was known to be successful in some particular line of the business he would be asked to tell us how best to do that certain thing, such as growing roses in pots for market, for instance; what success he had in growing them in the field during summer and heeling them in in the fall; what time they should be potted up and trimmed; the size of pots used to have them in good condition for the spring market.

The Old Florists' Exchange.

Naturally, one of the topics to come up before the club—and I think everyone will agree with me that it was the most important thing the club ever did—was the question of the grower disposing of his stock and the storeman procuring it with the least trouble and loss of time for each. After full discussion on the subject, the following letter was sent to every grower and retail store in and about the city, November 11, 1889:

Dear Sir:—You are most urgently requested to attend a special meeting of the Gardeners' Club to be held Monday, November 18, at 8 p. m., at the store of Robt. J. Halliday, 8 South Charles street. At the last meeting of the club it was decided to establish a florists' exchange for the sale of cut flowers at wholesale, to dealers and florists only. The object of the exchange will be to find a market for growers' produce, where dealers can buy their flowers with a minimum waste of time and money.

This letter was signed by the committee, consisting of Edwin A. Seidewitz, chairman; Robert J. Halliday, Isaac Moss, John Widey and Conrad Hess.

There was a good response and the Florists' Exchange became a fact in our city, even though it had a humble start. Mr. Halliday was elected president, and the Exchange started for business in a cellar at 120 North Liberty street, with Edward Schmidt as manager. The business of the Exchange was conducted by a board of seven directors, four of whom were growers, and this board served one year and met monthly. The officers were president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. These were elected from the board of directors immediately after the board's election. It speaks well for the harmony with which the affairs of the Exchange, were conducted, as well as the business ability of the men who had it in charge, that, during the life of the Exchange, it had but three presidents, Robert J. Halliday, Isaac Moss and John Rider. Mr. Moss served twenty years as president.

Each member was obliged to purchase one share of stock. A commission of ten per cent was deducted from the gross sales of regular consignors, and fifteen per cent from the sales of those who consigned irregularly. The old proverb, "Great oaks from little acorns grow," was never better demonstrated than in the twenty-four years of life of the Exchange. From the cellar on North Liberty street it was moved across the street, with John J. Perry as manager. Under his management the business grew and expanded. When Mr. Perry went into business for himself James J. Rogers took charge, and the business was moved to a better store and location on Park avenue. But the business was growing and the management had to have more room, so the Exchange has removed to North Eutaw street, with Alex. Scott as manager. The directors found out by this time that they must have a home of their own, with a building suitable for the purpose. A building at the corner of St. Paul and Franklin streets was bought, and on the ground a modern building was erected at a cost of about $30,000. Manager J. Perry came back and was again made manager.

As I write this I have before me a statement of the business done in 1909. The total sales were $103,741.74, and the total cash receipts $98,621.97. This was "some" growth, from the rented cellar on Liberty street to a home of its own, in twenty years.

In 1913 the Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, was looking around in Baltimore for an opportunity to open a wholesale house. Naturally, after investigation, it went after the Exchange. August 29, 1913, in a letter to the president, I. H. Moss, they made an offer to the stockholders of $500 per share, for stock that had originally cost $5 per share. This offer was accepted at a meeting held September 2, 1913, and the Pennock-Meehan Co. is now in possession of what was the Florists' Exchange. This should make the boys proud of the business in which they are engaged, for there are not many businesses that will grow to such proportions in the short span of twenty-four years. The whole thing dates back to that little meeting held in Halliday's store November 18, 1889.

How to Get News Printed.

Now, boys, in my first letter I told you that anyone who had any news should call up Mt. Vernon 121 and I would see that it reached the column. It is impossible for me to get around to all, and the column is for everyone in Baltimore. I will try to have something of interest for everyone each week, and as this is your business, it is up to you to help me. Everyone I have asked has been most kind and ready to help, and there is no reason why the column in The Review should not be an interesting one for the trade in Baltimore.

Business, from the reports I have secured, is good all along the line. Lent seems to make no difference. There has been plenty of funeral work and counter trade has been good. Stock is equal to the demand and all the growers are figuring on having an abundance of stock for Easter, and I have never seen any go begging yet. Everything looks good for a prosperous Easter and spring.

CONNECTICUT COMMENT

New London, Conn.—The E. W. Clark Estate is well pleased with business, past and present. "The Easter outlook both in demand and supply, we feel will meet our expectations," says John Clark.

Waterbury, Conn.—Saxe & Floto are much pleased with business done in the new store. Although almost directly opposite the old stand, the change is quite noticeable. Stock for Easter looks good.

Fair Haven, Conn.—Smith T. Bradley says the weather has been severe for the grower of small fruits. He has a large acreage of raspberries to be cut over. Store business has held up remarkably well. Predictions for the best Easter yet are made.

New Haven, Conn.—The Frank S. Platt Co. reports an unusual call for their seed catalogue, compiled with extra care this year. A brisk counter trade predicts a busy season. The whole store is now devoted to the seed requirements.

Westville, Conn.—Frank Sokol says the bulbous stock is the best in his long experience, there being scarcely any blind bulbs, which accounts for the large stocks on the market. He predicts a shortage for Easter should a mild spell of weather set in.

Norwalk, Conn.—R. G. Hanford regrets a shortage in the market for ferns of the Boston type. He usually raises a big stock for his retail trade, but finds sales have exceeded the supply. Table ferns are again becoming popular. Among Easter stock a nice batch of hybid perpetual roses is counted on.

Wallingford, Conn.—The F. Rowden & Mitchell Co. recently rebuilt and now has an up-to-date place arranged to supply the retail trade. A well grown stock of geraniums heads the list of bedding plants. Easter Greeting looks promising. The labor question necessitates the growing of stock that requires the least amount of handling.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business during the last week was not rushing; in fact, funeral work was the only thing that kept the wholesalers and retailers busy some days. The market was oversupplied all the week with almost everything in season, and prices took a decided drop in all grades. The clear, warm weather brought on stock with a rush. Violets were a glut and sold cheaply, but they will soon be a thing of the past, especially if the warm spell keeps on. By Easter there probably will be none.

Roses are becoming more plentiful, but as yet are not crowding the market. They should be in full crop at Easter. Carnations are abundant in all varieties, and the average price for the best grade is $2. Extra fine sweet peas are plentiful, but only the extra fancy have the call and bring anything like a price. Bulbous stock is plenteous; Easter lilies, callas, valley, freesias, tulips, jonquils and Paper Whites are to be had at exceedingly low prices. Plumosus, Sprengeri and adiantum are scarce. In other greens there is a good supply daily.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held an interesting meeting March 8 at the Missouri Botanical Garden. This meeting, held a week previous to the spring flower show, brought out quite a large attendance. After disposing of the opening business, a letter from John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., was read, in which the secretary spoke of the National Flower Show and the S. A. F. meeting, which, it is expected, will be held here at the same time, in March, 1918.

Ivan Erickson and A. P. McIntire were elected to membership. The chair then called on the committees for reports. That of the show committee was most interesting to all present. Joseph Hauser and P. Schneider were requested to read papers at the next club meeting. The subjects were left to their choice. M. C. Wright, of the Lord & Burnham Co., made application for membership.

V. C. Folanius, a former student of the Garden and now forestry expert for the government, was present, and gave some interesting accounts of timber sale work for the government. The question box brought out some lively discussions, the one regarding lilies for Easter resulting in a long debate. L. Baumann told the members how to get rid of fungus in greenhouse beds.

After the meeting the members were taken in hand by Max Schiller, who guided them through the big conservatories, where monthly flower shows are being held. The next meeting of the club will be held April 12.

Various Notes.

The young gardeners' association held its second meeting March 7, at the Forest park greenhouses. There were thirty-five members present, with vice-president George Pring presiding. Stephen Beer, gardener for the John T. Davis estate, read a paper on "Preparation for Spring Work." Eleven new members were added to the list. The association will hold meetings every second Wednesday of each month.

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, addressed St. Louis florists at the Mission Inn Garden, March 5. The large hall was filled with florists and there were many women in the audience. Mrs. Wilson spoke on publicity and service for florists. Mrs. Wilson was followed by President Bourdet and Vincent Gorly, who endorsed the idea set forth by Mrs. Wilson. Refreshments were served after the meeting. Great credit is due Mr. Gorly, who was instrumental in bringing Mrs. Wilson here.

F. H. Weber last week opened his new flower establishment at Olive and Taylor streets. The writer, who visited the new store, found it one of the most up-to-date in the city. It is on the corner, with entrances on Taylor and Olive streets. The fixtures are finished in old ivory. Paul Hyland is in charge of the new store, and Adolph Steidle is manager of the old stand, which will be continued. The boss splits his time between the two places.

The McCloskey Bros. Floral Co. has moved into its new quarters at the corner of Grand and Finney avenues. Everything is in working order and the management reports splendid business.

The new flower store known as the Delmar Union Flower Show, over which Mrs. G. K. McNeill and Miss Betty Carlstrom preside, had its formal opening last week at 5260 Delmar boulevard.

Marion Uhlschmidt, head of Grimm & Gorly's east side branch, is sporting a new car. His daily visits to the wholesale district required as rapid transit as possible.

Oscar Huettemann, of the Tower Floral Co., came out last week with a new Studebaker machine. He handled the wheel like a veteran.

J. B. Demand, well known as a wholesaler of a few years back, paid us a visit last week, renewing old acquaintances. Mr. Demand made the trip west for his health.

Paul Hranicka, head of the greenhouse range of John T. Milliken, at Crescent, left last week for Elm Grove, W. Va., where he will wed Miss Josephine Kirchner. The couple will return this week to take in the spring flower show.

A. J. Butterfield, of Farmington, Mo., accompanied by his bride-to-be, Miss L. Cole, paid the city a visit March 11, and announced the wedding day, March 20, at Farmington.

John Miller, formerly with the J. S. Wilson Floral Co., of Des Moines, Ia., was a visitor last week. Mr. Miller secured a position with Grimm & Gorly.

OBITUARY.

Alfred F. Schiller.

The Milwaukee trade lost a well known member in the death of Alfred F. Schiller, of 1044 Twenty-seventh street, who passed away March 8, after a lingering illness of over two years.

Mr. Schiller was born at Coburg, Germany, where he lived until he was 17. He was a member of the West Side Turners for over fifteen years and was assistant instructor for part of the time. He was the proud owner of nineteen medals, each representing a victory in acrobatic contests. Mr. Schiller is survived by his wife and two sons, Robert and Raymond, who have the sincere sympathy of the trade. H. J. S.

Andrew B. Holmes.

Andrew B. Holmes, proprietor of greenhouses at Brookings, S. D., March 1 was stricken with heart failure and fell to the floor dead. He was 69 years of age and moved to Brookings from Washington, D. C., where he was identified with the florists' business. He is survived by five children.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

C. E. Rossiter, of Sunbury, Pa., had the new boilers in good shape when the cold snap arrived. Winter has no terrors for him now; with abundant stock and excellent demand, all is serene.

Powers & Co., of Danville, Pa., make a specialty of roses and have received the highest continuous prices for several seasons. "Roses for me!" said Thomas Powers; "except that some of our houses get really cool, and here is where carnations come in, as the rose is much more sensitive."

J. A. Peterson & Sons, of Westwood, O., report the best season on record. They are making preparations by a heavy propagation of stock and adding space to take care of an even bigger future. I found the senior Mr. Peterson critically surveying the stock plants of cyclamens set aside for seed, and noted the big seed pods fit to burst, while many blooms were yet at their best. It gave one an excellent opportunity to judge of the vigor of the plant, size and delicacy in color of bloom. Begonia Melior is considered the best in its class; and, by the way, I noted a sport of Melior, with a larger flower and stronger habit, if that is possible.

Frank E. Rue, of Peoria, Ill., observed that good help was the most valuable asset to any business. In this he said he was most fortunate, and that he gave credit for good service rendered. An illustration of versatility happened right in his store during my visit. We were discussing the high cost of setting eggs for the purpose of demonstrating an incubator, when the clerk excused himself to wait on a customer. The patron fancied some fruit trees, but was undecided what to plant. That clerk's description of the qualities of the Bigarreau cherry was worth listening to. When he added that it was the favorite fruit of the immortal George, was it surprising that he booked a nice order?

It is reported that the Good & Reese Co., of Springfield, O., suffered a heavy loss by fire February 5.

Warren G. Matthews, of Dayton, related some of the incidents that happened when, with Mrs. Matthews, he took a trip east last summer. "We saw much to interest and regale us," said Mr. Matthews, "but the most interesting was Grant's tomb. The experiences on that trip will ever live in our memories; itwas our first vacation in several years."

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1917: President, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE ground hog is due to make his second appearance of the season this week. We will agree he was right in his forecast February 2 and will bid him welcome now.

IN printing this edition of The Review 9,480 pounds of paper were consumed, not counting that in the colored insert. And this is not a special edition, only a regular, all-in-the-week's-work issue. There will be a Special Flower Show Number next week and the Annual Easter Number the week following, calling for nearly six tons of paper for each edition.

MUSIC, vaudeville, fashions and living pictures have been "cards" at some of the big-city flower shows during the last few years, "cards" having a tendency to swell gate receipts, but at this week's St. Louis flower show, not to be outdone in originality by any other exhibition, the entertainment committee proposed to set loose thousands of butterflies and birds in the Armory.

THE houses that had gladiolus bulbs and nursery stock on the Dutch steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, which was recalled to Rotterdam February 1, after having sailed for New York, have had no word since cable advices stated the freight was being transhipped to a less valuable boat. The censorship does not permit cable information of sailings, but it is presumed that the boat has proceeded to England as usual for the examination of its cargo, which sometimes requires several days, and that it will soon be reported as approaching New York. Against this supposition, however, is the possibility the boat is among the numerous ones still held in Holland rather than risk the submarines.

WHAT HAVE YOU?

When they have something to sell they advertise in The Review and The Review sells it for them. Then they write like this:

As all good sayings go—here goes to The Review. "Let The Review do the advertising. We florists will do the shipping."—W. Bezdek, Cedar Rapids, Ia., February 27, 1917.

Enclosed find check for 50 cents to pay for my little two-line ad. This is the best spent of any 50 cents I ever spent. The only way I can see to do is to build more glass. The trade wants good geraniums and vincas; they go at sight.—Charles Taynor, New Carlisle, O., March 2, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

WHO TALKED TO THE REPORTER?

The subjoined, under the heading of "Flower Prices Unaffected," appeared in the leading evening paper at Chicago March 8, the day of the Florists' Club's exhibition and dinner:

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra, la, have everything to do with the case. They are the center of interest today at the New Morrison hotel, where members of the Chicago Florists' Club are gathered to admire, discuss and arrange the coming flower styles of Easter and the succeeding seasons. As the florists, wholesale and retail, assembled, gradually it became apparent that neither the war nor the tariff nor the tides in the Caribbean have affected the cost of flowers. This Easter flowers will be the same as they were last year, will cost no more than they did before the war.

The tides of the Caribbean, or the war, or the tariff, may not have affected prices of flowers, but the reporter says nothing about the higher cost of coal, labor, glass, wrapping paper and so on, ad infinitum.

THE COST OF BUILDING.

Growers contemplating new houses this spring will find that the costs of materials have made substantial advances since March, 1916. Comparative quotations for March, 1917, and the corresponding month a year ago, show that the increases range from fourteen to sixty-five per cent, with an average of thirty per cent.

The chief blow to growers will be the steadily upward trend in the price of glass. This material made an advance of fifteen per cent the first part of the month and will undoubtedly go higher, as practically one-half of the manufacturers of the country have closed down their plants because of inability to obtain fuel.

Comparative prices on eight materials necessary to the construction of a greenhouse and the percentage of advance of each are given in the following table:

Commodity	March, 1916	March, 1917	% advance
Brick	$8.75	$10.00	14
Cement	1.67	1.97	18
Glass	90 & 10 off list	86% off list	56
Gravel	.85	1.00	18
Sand	.40	.50	25
Lumber	44.00	51.00	16
Nails	2.30	3.00	30
Iron	20.00	33.00	65
	Average per cent of increase		30

NEW YORK FEDERATION.

There will be a meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs in the secretary's office at the New York flower show, Grand Central Palace, at 4 p. m., Monday, March 19. The various affiliated societies are requested to appoint delegates to attend this meeting, as important matters concerning legislation for a horticultural building at the state fair grounds at Syracuse are to be considered. E. A. White, Sec'y.

FLOWER BOOK WITH PILL ADS.

No greater recognition has been given the universal home interest in flowers and gardening than that of a patent medicine company which is distributing throughout the country booklets entitled "Flowers for the Home." Incorporated in the booklet, of course, are advertisements of the medicine. A book on floriculture was chosen because it is certain that no other subject would so positively insure the booklets being retained in the home. Copies of the booklet were recently circulated in Coldwater, Mich., and one of them was forwarded to The Review by D. Vogt, of that city, with the comment: "Not half bad for us, I should say."

PROSPERITY AND PROFIT.

This has been a season of unequaled prosperity in the United States, but it has been a season during which profits have not been easy to make.

The big business, highly organized and equipped to take advantage of its opportunities, undoubtedly has made more money than ever before, but the small business, which includes most florists, has been oppressed by the high prices of nearly everything that is used in the business; the small business-men are the ones who meet the keenest competition and they have not been able to advance their selling prices sufficiently to offset the increased expenses.

In our own trade the margin of profits is the narrowest ever known. A few men in each branch of the business have been able to meet the conditions and profit by them, but the majority are not so well off in the height of so-called general prosperity as they were under what might be referred to as normal conditions.

But a fact to be faced is, not for a long time, if ever, will the cost of doing business return to the levels considered normal before the war.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Shipping trade maintained its even pace last week, at no time being noteworthily heavy, but still coming in steadily, keeping stock moving to a fair degree. City trade lulled through the week, but toward March 10 seemed to feel a little impetus and March 12 business was fairly active. There has been a general shortening of stock in almost all lines, but the supply still is more than ample to meet the demand and prices remain about the same as the week previous.

American Beauties are maintaining their enviable position of unshaken strength. The supply remains about the same and prices hold up so strongly that eastern Beauties are being imported in small quantity. Other varieties of roses are fairly easy, with the supply a little shorter and a demand augmented by a stiffening of the carnation market. Although roses appeared to move well during the entire week, the market seemed to be lacking in vigor until the afternoon of March 9, when a change set in and demand became more active. This was due, probably, to the carnation market, which began to shorten at the end of the week. White varieties, especially, became scarce and growers were evidently holding back for St. Patrick's day. On the whole, white, deep colored

The Bright Colored Freesias are Fine

THE Retailers who use our Rainbow Freesias (so called because of the many bright colors) find them a splendid seller. They are a hit in corsages, for table centerpieces and in basket work. Bright, fragrant, a wonderful keeper and new to a majority of flower buyers. Our crop at present is the finest quality yet, and the cut will continue until after Easter.

RUSSELL and ROSES

Our Russells are in a class by themselves, but for that matter our Ophelia, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. Ward and Sunburst are recognized as without superiors anywhere in this country. Our "select" grade is as good as most houses offer as "specials."

VIOLETS

Note the low prices we now can quote.

SWEET PEAS

Your customers will like our Spencer Peas.

and red carnations have been selling well, while Enchantress was slow and splits practically dead.

The receipts of bulbous stock have shortened somewhat, but there is still an oversupply. The situation is, however, decidedly better than the week previous. Tulips drag heavily, Darwins appearing to be the only class that move at all briskly. Jonquils sell slowly, but are a little better off than they have been. Poeticus is in fair supply and sells well. The supply of southern jonquils and poeticus is beginning to arrive. Freesias are dragging heavily, while Paper Whites, a few of which still linger, are practically dead.

There has been no change in the valley situation. Easter lilies and callas are in fair supply, with a steady, though not large demand. A large cut of short lilies is difficult to move on a market heavily supplied with good stock. Violets arrived in large quantities last week and many were sold at sharp concessions. The supply of sweet peas is normal. Last week found an abundance on the market, but a sharp turn set in and March 10 there was even a scarcity. Calendulas move slowly, as do mignonette. Daisies just about hold their own. Snapdragons are in small supply, but of good quality. The white variety moves slowly, but colored stock sells well.

Plumosus, though still scarce, arrives in increasing supply. Quite a quantity of home-grown stock was brought into the market last week.

Students' Inspection Trip.

Seventeen members of the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois visited Chicago on an inspection trip March 8 to 11. March 8 they were the guests of the Florists' Club at its dinner and monthly meeting. The next morning several of the leading wholesale and retail stores were visited. An inspection was made of the Randall supply house, where they were shown the manufacture of many florists' novelties. After taking luncheon with P. J. Foley, a visit was paid to the Vaughan greenhouses, at Western Springs. Later in the day the Greggs Station greenhouses of Bassett & Washburn were visited. Saturday morning the first call was at the Robey street establishment of Peter Reinberg. The party was shown about the place by Mr. Reichling, who explained the methods of propagating and growing used. The next stop was at the establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove. Here the party had the pleasure of going through the departments with August Poehlmann. After luncheon, the party proceeded to Plant B, where they were shown about by Adolph Poehlmann. Of especial interest were the large vats where the fertilizer is prepared. Late in the afternoon the party arrived at Frank Oechslin's, to inspect the Easter plants.

The opportunity of visiting this large number of places was made possible through the courtesy of Adolph Poehlmann, August Poehlmann, H. N. Bruns and the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., who placed their automobiles at the disposal of the visitors.

Various Notes.

Charles A. Meinersmann, landscape architect with offices in the Steger building and proprietor of the two retail flower stores known as the Albany Florists, at 4807 North Kedzie avenue and 1008 Belmont avenue, will open a retail seed store at 225 West Madison street under the name of the Albany Nurseries, about March 20. He proposes through this channel to put on the market a line of high-class certified trees, shrubs, herbaceous plants, seeds and bulbs. The location is a few doors east of the W. W. Barnard Co. and the store is large and well adapted to the purpose.

The latest thing in flowers for spring weddings is the Haymarket bouquet, so called because it is a riot of colors!

As wholesalers' arrangements for shipping boxes come up for renewal they are being notified of an advance in prices which appears to have been agreed upon by all the established manufacturers. The advance is only a few pennies per box, but if not passed on to the buyers of flowers will amount to quite a sum in the course of the year for all houses doing a good shipping business.

staff of Wertheimer Bros., New York, with whom he was associated for many years prior to his connection with the American Bulb Co.

It has been decided that Meyer & Dramm Co., Elmhurst, will proceed at once with the erection of another large house, which will afford an increase of twenty-five per cent in the space for roses.

With the resignation of Guy Fridley, the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co. announces the appointment of H. E. Humiston as manager of the florists' and gardeners' fertilizer department. Mr. Humiston has been the company's special representative during the last year and is at the St. Louis flower show in its interest this week.

Darwin tulips have been one of Sam Pearce's specialties this spring and they have proved highly successful. His sales agent, the E. C. Amling Co., says that, once used, the better class of retailers find them indispensable.

The establishment of Krowka Bros., full of chrysanthemums in the autumn, now is filled with lilies in course of finishing for Easter.

C. J. Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., plans a look in at the St. Louis spring flower show the latter part of the week.

There was a silver wedding celebration at Morton Grove March 10, at the home of Adolph Poehlmann and Mrs. Poehlmann.

Among the Chicago concerns making trade exhibits at the St. Louis flower show this week is the John C. Moninger Co.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, says that the sale of rose plants this year is the largest that he ever experienced. He attributes this to the change from carnations to roses being made by so many growers.

According to R. J. Parker, of the National Plant & Flower Co., 1249 West Sixty-first street, the company will have over 10,000 lilies for Easter and 60,000 geraniums for spring trade.

"Give Her Flowers" and the CARNATION IDEA for Mothers Day put in the background, if you do your Part

IT is not a BIG job to tell 1,000,000 people—"GIVE MOTHER FLOWERS." It only means that each individual Florist must do his part and not leave it all for the other fellow to do. United effort is all that is necessary, and the effort, per individual Florist, will be very little.

LOOK AT IT BROADLY—If 1,000 Florists each circulate only 1,000 of the above poster stamps, one million people would receive the suggestion GIVE HER FLOWERS. And this is a conservative estimate, for individual Retail Florists are already ordering in quantities as high as 15,000—Just think of the Publicity that can be had in displaying a Beautiful 4-color Poster (same design as above stamp) in every Flower Store window in your City.

BOOST "GIVE HER FLOWERS"—and help do away with the carnation idea. We had orders for nearly a quarter of a million Poster Stamps—less than a week after samples were out—one Florist Club alone, is using 100,000 Stamps.

ATTENTION FLORISTS CLUBS

Have a "get-to-gether" meeting and decide to Boost "GIVE HER FLOWERS"—for Mother's Day. Our Plan (Poster Stamps, Posters and Newspaper "Ads") is the simplest, most practical and least expensive ever placed before the Florist.

NOTE—We will furnish a ¼, ½ or full page Newspaper Advertisement for co-operative Mother's Day Advertising.

WRITE US FOR INFORMATION ON "CLUB PLAN" for Mother's Day. If you have experienced difficulty in getting Florists together and if we can assist you, we'll send an experienced man to organize a campaign, provided the size of City warrants the expense of doing so.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The advent of real spring weather, plus a touch of March, has improved the flower market. There is a heavy supply of flowers arriving daily that meets a variable, yet decidedly stronger, demand. Business has resumed something of its normal Lenten swing, on a lower price level than the figures that prevailed at the close of the season.

Carnations, roses and sweet peas are all in heavy supply and of fine quality. The sweet peas are superfine and they meet with a fairly good demand. Violets are in strong supply, but the demand is disappointing. Bulbous flowers are excessively plentiful; they are cheap and receive uncertain support. The Emperor daffodils are extraordinarily fine. There are still some good freesias. Easter lilies have been overabundant. The buyers take the increased quantity of callas fairly well. Lilac is becoming stronger, in sympathy with the general tone. There are just a few more Beauties, not many. Orchids are quiet; the early Schroederiana are arriving. Valley is firm. Southern asparagus is more plentiful. The shipping demand is strong.

Next Week's Rose Festival.

The first rose festival of the American Rose Society will be opened in the First Regiment Armory, Broad and Callowhill streets, Philadelphia, Tuesday, March 20, at 2 p. m., by Mayor Thomas B. Smith. Commercial exhibits of plants and cut flowers must be staged by noon, March 20; private exhibits by noon, March 21; roses for display by noon, March 22.

Prospects for the success of the show are bright. The entries are coming in rapidly. The committees meet every afternoon this week. All the advance work has been thoroughly done. A smoker for the entertainment of the visiting florists will be given by the Philadelphia Florists' Club in the roof garden of the Hotel Adelphia, at 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, March 21. Headquarters will be at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, Broad and Walnut streets, during show week.

Next Week's Smoker.

A live committee, consisting of Charles H. Grakelow, chairman; Eugene Bernheimer, Walter Davis, Alvah R. Jones and Clarence J. Watson, has arranged for a smoker to be held in the roof garden of the Hotel Adelphia, Thirteenth and Chestnut streets, Wednesday, March 21, at 8:30 p. m., for the entertainment of florists visiting this city for the rose festival. The committee has effected a happy compromise between the "wets" and the "drys," whereby aërated waters will play a prominent part without being the whole show. There will be refreshments solid and liquid, fumigation, a moderate amount of speechifying, a variety show and a good time. Better come!

A Visit to Riverton.

With spring opening and lots of work that must be done, the question comes: "Is it worth while going to see the rose show in Philadelphia?" Yes, decidedly. One of the reasons why came out in a visit to the Dreer nurseries at Riverton this week. Mr. Eisele has started 171 varieties of roses, many of them novelties. They were started naturally; that is, without any special knowledge as to whether they would bloom in March or in April. Of these 171 varieties, over 100 varieties promise to be in bloom next week. Some will be extremely fine; others have only forced moderately well. The general average promises to be superior to last year's fine exhibit. Just to show that no pains are being spared to make the Dreer rose garden attractive, it may be mentioned that a long table of sod is being gently but firmly forced into luxuriant verdure expressly to carpet the rose border.

It is usual in March to find the palm stock depleted. For example, the popular 6-inch size is often represented by plants that are not equal, even in the grower's eyes, to those that were sent out in the previous September. This is natural. The demand is heavy in the fall and early winter, while growth after November is slow. Today the stock of all the marketable sizes of kentias appears unbroken at the Henry A. Dreer place. House after house, through several ranges, show made-up and some single kentias in every size. The plants are strong and healthy, of the deep green color that delights the true florist. The general effect of the house of kentias is that of plenty; no scarcity of any size is evident. This happy result has been brought about largely by special effort. The seed has germinated well—some time back, of course. It has been cared for faithfully, and the imported stock arrived in unexpectedly good shape last fall. The kentias have been made up here with that special care that is born of knowledge of critical market

The Market.

Last week conditions were about the same as those of the week previous. Roses clear readily, with the exception of Killarney. Blooms of White Killarney are cut so tightly in bud that no retailer would have them. American Beauties are far below the standard in quality, so long-stemmed Hoosier Beauty, Russell and Shawyer roses find a ready sale. Carnations have diminished in quantity and those coming in are more quickly picked up. Sweet peas are plentiful and are outselling violets. Bulbous stock cleans up nicely, except hyacinths and, perhaps, Paper Whites. Colored freesias from Mount Clemens find a ready sale.

Various Notes.

The stock in Joseph Streit's greenhouses is in the best of condition. Mr. Streit will have a fine lot of roses and spiræas for Easter.

Charles Plumb, Beard Bros. and other local growers report a fine lot of Easter stock.

Walter Taepke was visited by misfortune last week. One of his greenhouse boilers burst and compelled the men to shift hundreds of lilies and other stock to other houses.

The Market.

Last week leaves little to add to the cut flower market report of a week ago. Saturday, March 10, was the best day of the seven, and the first real life was evident. This undoubtedly was the result of the perfect spring weather and the reasonable prices of all kinds of cut flowers. Shipments were large, quality of all arrivals excellent, and retailers were more cheerful than for many a day. The public seems to become appreciative as prices recede, and the street merchants are everywhere, and active.

Few American Beauties or Hadleys are worth 75 cents now, though this price is asked for the selects. Short Beauties are extremely low priced, even selling at $1.50 per hundred. It is a long, long way to 75 cents, and few there are who find it. There are plenty of roses of all kinds, and shipments are increasing. A few of the specialties, Ophelia, Sunburst, Double White Killarney, Hoosier Beauty and Stanley, seem to be the favorites at present, though some of the wholesalers carry as many as twenty-five varieties.

White carnations were strong at $3 to $4, and these held the other colors steady. Nothing worth while sold under $2 and the number above $3 were limited. After the call for white for St. Patrick's day requirements, one should be resigned to the avalanche. With few exceptions 40 cents is top for cattleyas. Here and there a retailer will pay 50 cents for his pick, but usually you will find that he is a Fifth avenue selector. There are a good many orchids distributed as low as $25 per hundred. Longiflorums are down. I saw boxes of long-stemmed blooms sold at $6 per hundred, $50 per thousand. There is a great abundance of them; also rubrums. Valley holds at $1 to $4, with plenty for all demands. The long-stemmed, large gardenias sell at 25 cents each. Some claim they received $4 per dozen for their best. There have been large shipments of violets lately, but the demand has been uncommonly light. Even the best bunches of 100 do not bring over 25 cents. Great quantities go to the department stores and the street merchants as low as $1 per thousand. Without this outlet the surplus would be alarming. Callas another week. All spring flowers are numerous—daisies, pansies, forget-me-nots, calendulas, mignonette, stocks, wallflowers and sweet peas. Of the last named there are more than needed of the medium-sized, and only the Spencers are popular. The shortage in asparagus is over. Several of the wholesalers already have a display of blooming plants for Easter.

Club Meeting.

The club rooms were crowded at the meeting March 12, when Phil Kessler and his lieutenants furnished three turkeys, two Virginia hams, "hot dogs," radish salad and a great variety of liquid refreshments.

Chairman Weathered, of the exhibition committee, reported everything ready for the opening of the International Flower Show March 15. Manager Herrington reported all available space sold and several exhibits declined for lack of room. He said the exhibition would transcend any flower show ever made in America. Mr. Herrington also read the resolutions on the death of Samuel Batchelor.

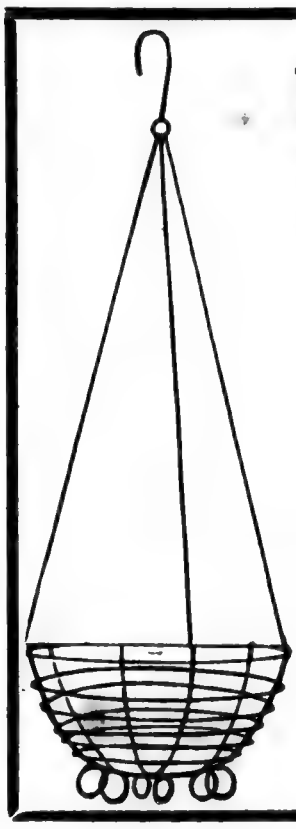
James McHutchison introduced a discussion concerning the efforts to limit importations. Other speakers on the subject were Messrs. Schultheis and Vick. A resolution was adopted whereby a committee will meet the executive committee of the S. A. F. during the present week.

Mr. Dick for the essay committee announced a discussion on "Shipments by Express" and the losses incurred. Mr. Schling, Mr. Traendly, Mr. Totty and Mr. Dick spoke and Albert Herr's letter was read. A meeting of those interested was announced for March 17. The new members elected were: A. W. McMillan, Hudson Heights, N. J.; Eugene K. Bauman, Rahway, N. J.; L. C. L. Smith, Long Island City; Charles Guillioz, Southampton, L. I.; Willard Kervan, Frank R. Martin, J. M. Millert, Costas Sakelos, J. J. Fellouris, Sun Fukura, C. W. Feld, John P. Gilbanks and Wm. Kather, of New York city. Nominations included James A. Sullivan, A. M. Merian, Harry Baldwin, Joseph Trepel, John J. Marquardt, Victor Ahlman, Henry Rudolph, Theodore Malandre, William Koehler, A. F. Bloodgood, Aug. J. Stokz, Samuel Henning, Daniel Coughlan, Adolph Kruhn, Ayers Booth, Victor Alzen, S. Entracht and F. E. Conine.

Chairman Miller, of the din-dan committee, reported over 300 tickets sold.

A vase of Hadleys with 5-foot stems, grown by A. S. Burns, of Spring Valley, were staged by P. J. Smith and awarded a cultural certificate.

A vase of Robert Simpson's new pink rose, a sport of Mock greatly resembling La France, was given eighty-six points and the thanks of the club.



A. Demeusy, of Flatbush, staged a magnificent pink sport of Enchantress, of great size, given the thanks of the club.

A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, staged a vase of the pink rose Mrs. Randolph Hearst, which received the club's thanks.

Edward Towill, of Roslyn, Pa., showed the new yellow seedling rose Golden Gem, which was highly commended.

Percy Rigby, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., staged a new sport of Sunburst, which was awarded thanks.

Weeber & Don exhibited their mignonette specialty and were given a cultural certificate.

Various Notes.

The one topic of general interest in New York this week is the International Flower Show. There will be less than usual of the "international" about it, as foreign exhibits will be few and far between. Society people are taking a deep interest in the success of the exhibition, and the New York dailies were featuring the show and its novelties in their Saturday and Sunday issues, the publicity department of the exhibition being in the same competent hands as in 1916.

I note that G. E. M. Stumpp and A. Kottmiller have added Randall fountains to their attractive window exhibits.

Walter Mott is in the city making a preliminary convass of Long Island prior to the opening of the flower show, at which he will have charge of the exhibits of Benjamin F. Hammond, of Beacon, N. Y.

Guttman & Raynor were featuring a new rose March 10, a bright pink with small buds, called Daily Mail. The firm is realizing 20 cents each for the best Prima Donna roses.

Adolph Rosens is again associated with his father, B. Rosens, in the florists' supply business.

Joseph Vocke, who has ben ill from a second attack of pleuropneumonia, was reported out of danger March 10. Mr. Vocke represents W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., of Chappaqua, N. Y., at his branch stand in the Coogan building.

F. Millang, Jr., son of Frank Millang, and associated with his father in the wholesale cut flower business, has been elected chairman of the school board of Peekskill, N. Y.

Congratulations of the trade are tendered J. J. Fellouris on the occasion of his marriage to Mrs. Taylor, widow of Dr. Taylor, New York city.

The new pink carnation, Mackay, greatly resembling Ward, is, J. K. Allen says, the best selling carnation he handles.

Miss Florence Cadieux, owner and manager of the Cadieux Co., was for some time floral artist for Woodrow & Marketos. The young lady is a great

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business the last week was considerably more active than that of the previous week, and stock has been cleaned up wonderfully well almost every day. Funeral work has been the chief item during the last few days, and a large quantity of stock has been moved. Blooming plants now are coming in fast and include wonderfully good rhododendrons, azaleas, cyclamens, genistas, lilacs, deutzias and a mammoth display of bulbous stock. The shortage of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri handicaps the trade considerably. Only a limited quantity reaches the wholesale houses two or three times weekly.

The supply of cut flowers is meeting all demands. The receipts of roses are large and prices are easier. Fine blooms are seen in Hadley, Montrose, Sunburst, Ward, Russell, Maryland and Killarney. The shorter grades are not excessively plentiful. Both Easter lilies and callas are plentiful and sell well. Valley is in fine condition, but moves none too fast. The call for orchids and gardenias has been small of late. Carnations are plentiful and the quality continues to be especially good. Jonquils are numerous and sell well. Violets sold quickly for the week end. Sweet peas are abundant and move easily. Calendulas, myosotis, narcissi and freesias are useful for basket work, of which there has been much. Tulips in all colors sell freely. Pussy willows appear to be more popular than ever this year.

Various Notes.

Cut Flowers for all Occasions — MERIDIAN, MISS.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business continues decidedly dull. Supplies are heavy and the demand not at all vigorous. Prices average a little lower than those of a week ago. Wholesalers feel that the worst of the slump is over and that from now on conditions will improve. If the prices of necessities show a sharp decline, it undoubtedly will help the cut flower trade. Many who have been in the habit of purchasing a few flowers weekly have been obliged to use the money for more vital needs.

Roses are decidedly weak. Large lots are cleared to the fakers at $10 per thousand, and these are not all short-stemmed stock by any means. Varieties selling well are Sunburst, Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, Double White Killarney, Maryland, Hadley and Russell. Flowers have to be of fancy quality now to make $15 per hundred. Carnations hold up fairly well, and as some growers are getting off crop, prices are unlikely to go any lower.

Violets average 50 cents per hundred and are abundant. Sweet peas are arriving in great volume and have a wide range of prices. Bulbous flowers are in excessively large supply and sell cheaply. Narcissus poetaz Elvira is a good seller. Scarlet and white tulips, double daffodils and hyacinths are hard subjects to sell. Lilium longiflorum is not overabundant and cleans up nicely. Small lots of L. speciosum are seen. Valley sells poorly; a great proportion of it is of inferior quality. Yellow marguerites are coming in more freely, but sell well. Bachelor's buttons are in disfavor and hard to clean up at quite low prices. Pansies are abundant; so are English primroses and anemones. Cattleyas are in fair demand, but gardenias sell poorly. Green stock has a moderate call. Pot plant trade is quite good.

The Club Meeting.

There were 150 members present at the March 13 meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club to hear the lecture of Leonard Barron, of Garden City, N. Y., on "Looking Backward and Forward." Mr. Barron commended the efforts of garden clubs and test gardens, and said the growth in the ranks of amateur horticulturists was a good sign. He thought flower shows did not attract as many people as they should. Rock gardening, he said, soon would be carried on a larger scale. Then followed an animated discussion by Messrs. Cameron, Palmer, Wheeler, Craig, D. Finlayson and K. Finlayson. James Donald and Robert Cameron reported on their trip to the Davey tree convention.

Charles Cooper was awarded a report of cultural merit for his Lachenalia tricolor. Three new members were admitted.

Various Notes.

Thomas Roland has an exceptionally fine stock of Easter plants, including boronias, acacias, Erica melanthera and E. persoluta, marguerites, French hydrangeas in variety, bougainvilleas, mignonette, genistas, Hiawatha, Tausendschon and baby rambler roses and azaleas. At his Revere establishment Mr. Roland is getting a splendid cut of roses and sweet peas.

ing in fine pink orchid, white orchid and other Spencer peas, in addition to good callas and calendulas.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, grow the Godfrey calla to perfection, and it proves wonderfully prolific with them. Carnations are their great specialty. Matchless is the only white grown and Pink Delight fills the bill as a light pink. Mrs. Akehurst is well liked. No variety here does better than Benora. Many plants have already produced thirteen flowers each and burst ones are quite rare.

The Welch Bros Co., in spite of the prevailing glut of flowers, is doing a large business. It is receiving a fine line of all the leading flowers.

The Budlong Rose Co. is receiving an average of 7,000 flowers daily. Specially fine is Maryland. This variety has sold well this season, as well as Francis Scott Key, Ophelia, Stanley and Double White Killarney. Of the newer roses Mrs. W. R. Hearst and Montrose are doing well.

John A. Nelson, of Framingham, arrived home from his Florida trip March 5 while we were experiencing a blizzard—quite a contrast to conditions he had left in Florida. He had an enjoyable trip and returned much improved in health. Mr. Nelson was pleased to learn that two of his vases of carnations at Indianapolis were among the five selected for the best keeping flowers at the late convention there.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, grows Dutch bulbous flowers of fine quality. Among those he now has are Sir Watkin, ornatus, rugulosus, Golden Spur, Emperor and Golden Spur narcissi, and a fine assortment of tulips.

Alexander Montgomery, for many years the able and popular manager of the Waban Rose Conservatories, at Natick, will sever his connection with that well known firm in a few months.

The quality of the roses grown at Natick by Mr. Montgomery is known over the entire country, while some of his novelties have been shipped to London for exhibition purposes. Such noted roses as White Killarney, Mrs. Charles Russell, Hadley and Mrs. Bayard Thayer originated here.

At the April meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club George N. Barrie will give a stereopticon lecture on "Artificial Irrigation." For the field day at Waverley March 24, as guests of the W. W. Edgar Co., visitors are asked to reach Waverley not later than 2:30 p. m. Cambridge tunnel trains can be taken at South station, under Summer street or Park street, transferring at Harvard square to Waverley cars. The stock of Easter plants is in exceptionally fine condition.

Prof. E. A. White, of Cornell University, who preceded Prof. A. H. Nehrling at Amherst, has been strongly urged to return to Amherst. While he favored coming back in many ways, he has finally decided to remain at Cornell, where his work has been much commended. Massachusetts would have been glad to welcome Professor White back again.

N. F. Comley, of Burlington, is having good success with roses this season.

Double White Killarney and Ophelia are particularly good. He has a fine crop of sweet peas, carnations and violets, and good lily of the valley.

The Florists' Bowling League premiums are on exhibition at Penn's this week. A garden of baby rambler roses has been attractive. Wistarias, lilacs, Darwin tulips, azaleas and a fine assortment of other plants meet with a heavy sale.

There is a marked decline here in the culture of shamrocks in pots, compared with a few years ago. There is a fair demand for them this week and white carnations for dyeing purposes are a little stiffer in price.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. report that seed orders, in spite of the continued wintry weather, have come in earlier than usual this season and in large volume. While counter trade is not specially heavy, mail orders greatly exceed those of other years.

At Horticultural hall, March 10, M. L. Urann gave an illustrated lecture on "Cranberry Culture." March 17 Prof. F. C. Sears, of Amherst, will give an illustrated lecture on "Orcharding in the South and West." There will be no lecture March 24, as the spring flower show will be in progress.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, are our largest local bulb specialists and they now have a large assortment on their stands. Snapdragons, marguerites, speciosum lilies, callas and many other flowers are also to be found here.

F. W. Fletcher, of Auburndale, is back from a winter spent in Florida. The severe freeze hurt Mr. Fletcher's outdoor plantings badly.

N. S. Seavey, of Dover, N. H., is a good grower of carnations and also produces some fine seedlings. The writer received a fine box of these last week. They included a fine variegated one and a pure white one; also an excellent crimson and scarlet, in addition to several other colors. New Hampshire can certainly produce fine carnations, on splendid stems.

Anyone wanting to see yellow marguerites well done should visit James

Wheeler, of Natick. He has about one-fourth of an acre of them now in bloom and they carry splendid flowers. All are grown in solid beds. Under the carnation benches are fine crops of mushrooms from pure culture spawn. The freest blooming carnation here is Alice. Other favorite sorts are Matchless, Pink Delight, Benora and Beacon. The Market.

All the florists of this section agree that, owing to the more pleasant weather, business has been exceedingly good during the last week. It has kept them busy filling orders of great variety. In the last few months the greatest demand was for funeral work, but now we have calls for wedding flowers, boxes, table decorations and all other forms of floral embellishments. Along with the spring weather came a heavy demand for violets, sweet peas and other flowers for corsage work. The crop of roses and carnations is increasing with leaps and bounds, but as yet we hear no complaints of these flowers going to waste. With the exception of a few red, carnations are proving to be one of the most steady sellers. The deep crimson, which is grown in limited quantities by several of the growers, is never popular in this locality. This is contrary to the taste in the far west, where whole houses are devoted to such varieties as Pocahontas and Princess Dagmar. The above is also applicable to yellow and variegated flowers. There is but a scant supply of freesias, and being near the end of the successful crop, they are of poor quality. Daffodils, hyacinths, tulips and narcissi are in heavy supply now, both as cut flowers and plants, but outside flowers of this type will soon be competing with these, if the present weather continues. Already buds are in view in protected places. Those men in the trade who maintain landscape departments are getting some extra work these days, as the people of Louisville are beginning to realize the necessity of beautifying the grounds around their homes as well as the interiors. During the last fall, large orders of evergreens were planted and almost exhausted the stock of several of the landscape men here. The spring customers are turning largely to deciduous shrubs and shade trees. The Norway maple is always the favorite in this section, while Spiræa Van Houttei, hydrangeas and Buddleia variabilis Veitchiana are the favorite shrubs.

Various Notes.

Gentlemen, arise and drink a toast to a successful voyage through the stormy sea of married life. Milton slipped one over on us when he journeyed quietly to Frankfort and took unto himself a wife, the young lady being Miss Nora Hamilton. The wedding took place at the bride's home March 10.

The meeting of the Kentucky Society of Florists, held March 7, was successful. The address by David Walker called forth favorable comment.

We welcome into the trade the new firm of Brady & Bryant, who intend building a range on the north side this spring. Louis Bryant, who has been connected with Anders Rasmussen for a number of years in the capacity of sales manager, severed his connection with this company with the intention of building a business of his own.

Among the callers the last week was S. A. Eldridge, representing the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

Notwithstanding the high cost of all materials, there will be considerable building activity in the trade this season. The Alfred Struck Co. reports it will furnish lumber for a number of houses for several of the growers.

We are glad to see H. G. Walker, president of F. Walker Co., back at business again. Mr. Walker has been suffering for several weeks with an attack of the grip.

The writer wishes to thank August Baumer, W. L. Korb and Dave Walker for aid given in getting together material for this letter. G. G. W.

Higher temperatures have brought in stock in large quantities. Roses are coming in heavily, especially Mrs. George Shawyer, which is of excellent quality. Killarney and Killarney Queen are also producing finely at present. The local demand for roses is splendid and shipping orders are above the average. American Beauty roses are not so plentiful, but the demand for them is light. Carnations are more than ordinarily plentiful and the demand holds up well. Bulbous stock is in large supply.

Sweet peas are exceptionally abundant, but the demand is excellent. Tulips, narcissi, jonquils, Paper Whites, daffodils, freesias and all other bulbous stock is in fine demand, especially in pots. Orchids are on the short side at present and the demand is light. Valley is as scarce as it has been all winter. Easter lilies and callas are plentiful and meet with a good call for funeral work. Violets are plentiful and the demand is fairly good. Calendulas are gaining in popularity on account of their highly decorative qualities. Stevia, mignonette, forget-me-nots, primulas and daisies make up the list.

The activity has been in funeral work for the most part, though flowers for the sick have been in good demand. There are fewer social functions during the Lenten season.

Potted plants meet with a ready sale, including some handsome Dorothy Perkins, cinerarias, azaleas, rhododendrons, lilacs, primroses and all kinds of bulbous stock. Green goods are scarce at present. The St. Patrick's day demand is expected to be good this year, and retailers are displaying novelties, shamrocks and green carnations.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. store is being redecorated, the color scheme being ivory. An artistic screen separates the front part of the store from the workroom. The force is exceedingly busy with funeral work. The company has received an electric fountain from the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

tity of funeral work lately. Their cinerarias and azaleas are unsurpassed in this part of the country.

Wenninghoff, the Florist, had an unusually attractive window decoration last week of Ophelia roses and bulbous stock. Funeral orders have been many.

The Doswell Floral Co. had a fine display of spring stock last week. Decorative work has been light since the Lenten season set in, but the demand for funeral work more than offsets this.

Visitors last week were J. E. Qualich, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Orlando F. Batalia, manager of the fountain department of the same company; I. M. Bayersdorfer, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey now have been established in this city a quarter of a century. Twenty-five years ago W. J. Vesey built six greenhouses on his grounds in South Wayne. Today the Vesey greenhouses number thirty. Six houses are devoted to the culture of orchids, perhaps the largest collection in the west. R. F.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, June 19 to 21, 1917.

THE G. B. McVay & Son Seed Co., Birmingham, Ala., plans to become a factor in the flower seed business in the United States.

LILY bulbs will cost more in Japan this season than last and the freight will be higher, which leads to the supposition that those who are cutting prices for fall delivery in the United States have some other motive than profits.

THE southeastern United States produces great quantities of tuberoses, cannas and caladiums and an important quantity of amaryllis bulbs, with a prospect that soon narcissus and freesia bulbs from that section will have to be reckoned with.

THE Dutch bulb travelers admit business is bad. The necessity of getting higher prices than last year at a time when bulbous flowers are extremely cheap in all markets is not so bad in its effect on business, they say, as is the uncertainty regarding the shipment of the bulbs.

CARLOAD orders for all varieties of peas are still coming in increasing numbers, according to J. C. Leonard, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago. This is exceptional for this season of the year. "The best month in the history of the company, exceeding all previous records by a large margin," is what A. H. Smith says of the business done in February.

HELPING ONE'S COMPETITOR.

"It has dawned on the progressive merchant," said a speaker at the recent meeting of the Canners' Association, "that in no other way can he advance his interests more than by advancing the interests of his competitors. It sounds paradoxical, but it is literally true.

"It is not so long ago—many of us can remember the time distinctly—when it would have been considered suicidal for any merchant to have given his competitor the benefit of information he had obtained by the outlay of time and money. But what a change has taken place! Men have since come

BREACH OF SEED CONTRACTS.

When Seedsman Pays Buyer's Loss.

Interesting reflections upon the extent of liability for breaking a contract to furnish seed for a specific use by the buyer are suggested by a decision of the Oklahoma Supreme court.

This decision seems to be authority for saying that if a retail seedsman contracts to sell a farmer the seed necessary for a crop the latter desires to grow and inexcusably breaks the agreement by failing or refusing to deliver, and the circumstances are such that by reason of inability to obtain seed elsewhere, the farmer loses the use of his land for the season, the seedsman may be held liable for the profits lost by the farmer.

But since it is an established principle of law that one aggrieved by another's breach of contract must use all

Mention Practically Any Flower, Then Turn to Sutton's Catalog and You Will Find Something New and Distinctive

THERE are a lot of folks who send for our catalog solely to "see what is new."

Not only see, but buy.

It is something to have earned the reputation we have for each year introducing such a large number of distinctly new or greatly improved things of entire dependableness.

Sometimes you Americans accuse us Britishers of being a bit slow. Perhaps we are. But it has its advantages, especially when it comes to the seed business. Going at things slowly gives us time to test surely.

It's one of the big reasons why Sutton's Seeds are so successful.

Our catalog is so elaborate and expensive to produce that you will readily appreciate why we make a small charge of 35c for a copy, but this is promptly refunded when your orders amount to $5 or more.

reasonable endeavors to minimize his damage, it is uniformly decided by the courts that where a contract buyer of goods is able to obtain similar goods elsewhere on the seller's breach, the seller's liability is limited to the excess of what the buyer is required to pay elsewhere above the amount at which the defaulting seller agreed to sell. So, ordinarily, a buyer of seed, being able to purchase the contract quantity elsewhere, may not hold the seller, who has broken his contract to deliver, for larger damages than the increased cost of obtaining the necessary seed.

Wholesaler Also Liable.

The same principle applies between wholesale dealers and retail seedsmen. That is, it seems that if a wholesale seedsman's failure to make agreed deliveries to the retailer deprives the latter of all means of providing seed of the contract kind for his trade, the wholesale merchant is liable for profits shown by the retailer to have been lost, to a reasonable certainty. The liability is not limited to the difference between the market value of the seed and the lower price at which it was agreed that the wholesaler would sell, the measure of damages applicable if the retail seedsman could purchase substitute goods elsewhere.

Burpee's Seeds Grow

New Aster American Beauty

AMERICAN grown Aster seed is now acknowledged to be so vastly superior to European grown seed that there is no reason why European grown seed should be at all considered. Even in the Early Queen of the Market type, American grown seed has been found superior to European. The Royal and Crego types closely follow Queen of the Market, and these are followed by the Late Branching types.

Burpee's New American Beauty Aster is in type of growth and form of flower similar to the Late Branching, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. In some instances stems measure more than two feet in length. It has the longest blooming period of any Aster that we know of. The large double flowers are of a bright carmine-rose, almost identical with the World's Famous American Beauty Rose. Mr. Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal., writes March 29, 1916, in reference to American Beauty Aster:

"It is, in my opinion, one of the most remarkable Asters which has come under my notice. The plants attain a height of some four feet and the flowers are borne singly at the ends of stems which attain a length of thirty to thirty-six inches. The most remarkable feature to be noted regarding this Aster is the length of time which it remains in flower. The plants at our nursery came into bloom during the month of July and we were still cutting from them late in September. It is unlikely that they would come into bloom so early under Eastern conditions, but if they come in later I have no doubt the season during which they flower would be equivalent. The stems are absolutely non-lateral branching. The flowers attain an enormous size, owing to the fact that the entire sap flow is diverted to the one terminal bud or flower. The color is a distinct shade of carmine-rose. The addition of new colors to this new type of Asters will, in my opinion, prove to be a strain of great merit."

Burpee's American Beauty Aster is illustrated in color on the front cover of Burpee's Annual for 1917, and now that we have harvested a little more seed than was estimated we have decided to offer it to the Florist trade. This superb Aster should have a place in every Aster field. It will certainly prove its superior merit.

Packet containing 40 seeds, 10 cents; packet of 120 seeds, 25 cents; trade packet, 1000 seeds, $1.25

ing a mortgage on the prospective crop as security. It appears that the merchant refused to extend the agreed credit and that shortage of cash required the farmer to discharge his employees and use his funds to buy provisions elsewhere, resulting in loss of use of part of the land rented by the farmer. If, as the court finds in this case, the merchant was bound to foresee that his breach of contract would have such remote consequences, within the rule of law that a breach of contract renders one liable for all damages which were within the contemplation of the parties, there seems to be no escape from a conclusion that a retail seedsman who agrees to furnish seed for a crop—seed which the customer is unable to obtain elsewhere—renders himself liable for loss of a crop directly occasioned by his refusal to make the agreed delivery.

S.

"FROM ANY OTHER SOURCE."

When a man gets a delivery of forty per cent on his contract order and then finds the grower selling the same variety on the spot market for two or three times contract price he sometimes jumps to a wrong conclusion. For this reason a British wholesale grower features the following in his list:

Any orders accepted by us for seeds to be grown on contract are subject to the following contract conditions; that is to say:

(a) We shall plant or cause to be planted (subject to hindrance from weather and other circumstances, in which case earliest possible notification would be made), areas sufficient to provide under ordinary crop conditions for such orders, after allowing for the stock seed planted.

(b) The crop, after replacing the stock seed, will be applied in carrying out the orders, if the crop is sufficient, in full; if insufficient, in proportion to the amounts of the orders.

(c) The purchasers look to the particular crop of this particular area or acreage alone, and in the case of insufficiency of the crop for any reason, we shall not be liable to carry out any order FROM ANY OTHER SOURCE.

Thus the grower might make a forty per cent delivery on contract and from an acreage planted for his own account he might have forty or some other percentage of a crop that he would be morally as well as legally free to sell to anyone who would pay his price.

IT'S A PUZZLE TO CANNERS.

According to a canning trade's authority, it takes something more than a good guesser to anticipate the coming season, for some of the conditions are such that logical processes of reasoning go astray as often as they may go straight.

Judging from the fact that canned tomatoes are worth as spots virtually double what they were when they came in last September, it would seem as though packers would be safe in contracting for about all the acreage they can get this year and that, considering the prices paid last year during the packing season, farmers would be willing to book up all the acreage the canners will sign for.

As a matter of fact, however, reports indicate a state of great uncertainty in the growing country, with farmers unwilling to contract for acreage except at phenomenal prices and canners less unwilling than unable to secure plantings against the large pack they feel sure will be in demand. One Maryland observer declares that not five per cent of the necessary acreage has as yet been contracted for, because the farmers are crazy to raise potatoes, cabbages and such crops as have brought the sensational prices in the market this year. Yet, in the same mail comes a letter from an equally large factor, located in Delaware, stating that in his almost forty years of canning he has never seen prices so high.

It all seems to depend on the uncertainty of labor. Last summer thousands of acres of tomatoes rotted on the vines because help could not be had to pick them. Farmers fear that if they contract now, they will find, when the crop is ripening fastest, that help cannot be had; especially if Uncle Sam should be drawn into the war and start to raise an army of, say, a million men. If some one would discover a way to harvest crops without help the part of the h. c. l. due to farm crops would be largely eliminated.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo. —"Weber's Guide; Fiftieth Anniversary Issue," an 80-page, illustrated catalogue, much more comprehensive than its size would indicate, as the type is small, though clear, and the arrangement is compact. Considerable space is given to instructions about planting, pruning, etc., and about the selection of trees and shrubs with reference to size and decorative qualities. Besides the nursery stock, which includes nut trees, there are lists of greenhouse plants and hardy perennials.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, N. Y.—"Henderson's Implement and Lawn Catalogue"; sixty-four pages, illustrated. This seems to be about the right book for those who want any sort of tool, large or small, simple or complicated, that is used in garden, lawn or orchard; the right book for those who want something definite in this line or who want to decide what they want. Many mixtures of lawn grass seeds also are offered, under such names as "Shady Nook," "Sunny South," "Tough Turf," "Terrace Sod," etc., and three pages are devoted to describing "the Henderson system of lawn making." "Henderson's Farmers' Manual" also has been received, as recorded in The Review of March 1.

Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, Ill.—An illustrated wholesale catalogue of "Peacock Brand" seeds, "a price list strictly for market gardeners"; forty-eight pages. The greatest space and prominence are given to vegetable and farm seeds, and the brief list of flower seeds "does not comprise the entire stock." In addition to seeds, the book offers nursery stock, perennials, tools and sundries. "Owing to the variations in legal weights and measures as adopted by the different states of the Union," says the company, "we have adopted the cental system and hereafter will sell beans, peas and corn, not by the measure or bushel, but by the pound, as in all other cases with seeds."

D. V. Howell, Peconic, N. Y.—A 16-page catalogue of dahlias, "all field-grown; no plants or pot-grown bulbs." Dahlias are the Howell specialty, but a dozen or more varieties of gladioli also are listed.

W. W. Johnson & Son, Ltd., Boston, England. —Illustrated wholesale catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds; ninety-two large pages, printed on enameled paper, in the first-class style for which this company is noted. On page 1 is this notice: "We have refrained from quoting prices in several instances. Our customers may fully rely on our treating them as liberally as possible in such cases, but it is impossible under present conditions to fix values at the time of going to press." As might be expected, seed potatoes are among the items that are not priced, though probably not quite "without price" or "priceless" in a common sense of those words, as the prices, says the book, will be quoted on application.

Wachendorff Bros., Atlanta, Ga.—A 32-page catalogue of plants, nursery stock and flower seeds; it is not illustrated, but is well printed and generally attractive in design and arrangement. The plant lists are extensive, comprising both indoor and hardy stock.

White Floral Gardens, Portland, Ore.—Illustrated catalogue of dahlias, gladioli, cannas, perennials and bedding plants; sixteen pages, bound so as to be folded in convenient shape for pocket or pigeonhole. Dahlias are the specialty. This company is the successor to the Willamette Dahlia & Floral Co.

Richard F. Gloede, Evanston, Ill.—A handsome 56-page catalogue, offering perennials, roses, climbing plants, fruit-bearing stock, garden furniture, vegetable and flower seeds. In the book Mr. Gloede makes a strong, persuasive appeal as a landscape gardener, enforcing his arguments with contrasting pictures of planted and unplanted grounds.

Wilford Perry, Provo, Utah.—An illustrated, 54-page catalogue of seeds, flower and vegetable plants, bulbs, poultry supplies, tools and sundries. Peas and beans are priced by the pound, but the prices of all varieties of corn are quoted by measurement.

Arthur T. Boddington Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.—Wholesale seed catalogue, for florists and

The Market.

Stock in some lines has been more plentiful, carnations coming in far more freely. Good field-grown flowers have sold fairly well, but it has not been a clean-up by any means. Indoor roses have also been more plentiful, but so far no surplus has been noted anywhere. Daffodils and other spring flowers are at their best and, the cool weather having brought them along slowly, there so far has been no great surplus of good stock. As usual, there is a quantity of second-grade flowers that do not find a market except in the doorway and street stands.

In small flowers, cornflowers and marigolds have been especially good sellers this season, cleaning up well almost daily. An order for several thousand bunches of violets for one of the big stores—souvenirs to customers—made a hole in the supply for one day, but otherwise violets have been slow to sell. A great many of the flowers coming in lack fragrance, being of the larger, coarser varieties, and this hinders business in this favorite corsage bloom. Outdoor Cecile Brunner roses are beginning to come in, but slowly so far, and it will be another week or ten days before the full crop is on. A scarcity of good sweet peas has been felt, the outdoor stock in many cases remaining tight and dropping before opening. Orchids and valley are still scarce. In pot plants ferns, azaleas, rhododendrons and hyacinths have been the best sellers. Greens are in good demand and in plentiful supply, with the exception of plumosus, which is still poor and scarce. Several good wedding orders have cleaned up a great deal of the peach, acacia and other blossoms, these being fine for single-day decorations. Funeral work has been a little below the usual average.

Various Notes.

Manager Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., took a flying trip to Santa Barbara this week to try out the new roads in Ventura county and, incidentally, to do a little business. Large shipments of everything in season continue to be sent out from the store.

E. W. McLellan reached this city early in the week and is making a tour of the retailers and growers.

Wright's Flower Shop had the decorations for the opening of two large new banks this week. A large quantity of flowers of all kinds was called for, including 200 baskets of spring flowers and a large batch of spring blossoms. The decorations were in every way satisfactory.

O. C. Saake says business is good. His windows are good. Baskets of ranunculi, long-stemmed and of beautifully clear bright colors, are among the attractions.

M. Teifolossy has acquired the store at 316A South Broadway, and is running it as a retail cut flower store and as a depot for his prepared flowers and foliage. Mr. Teifolossy was formerly with the Rosslyn Flower Shop, which since then has been discontinued.

Darling's Flower Shop continues to be the talk of the town, the lighting and other effects drawing big crowds. Fortunately, the florists' end of the business is not forgotten in striving for effect, as excellent stock in all lines is shown and business is reported far above the average for this season.

Reginald Overstreet, who has been with L. H. Freeman for about one year, and previously was with Darling's, has joined the J. W. Wolters force, presumably to fill the place vacated by F. Dostal. Mr. Overstreet is a young man much liked in the trade, and everyone will wish him the best of success in his new sphere of action.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. has discontinued one of its nurseries and is advertising the stock for sale locally. Judging by the crowds in the store and nursery sales yards, the publicity is working well. The excellent windows maintained by this old-established firm also prove excellent drawing cards.

W. Armacost & Co. are sending in some of the finest Prima Donna roses ever seen in this market. They are grand in color, with elegant, long, stiff stems. The Easter lilies being shipped from this firm are of the finest grade.

The brothers Dailledouze, Paul and Eugene, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are in the city this week, having returned from their trip to Hawaii.

At the regular meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, held March 7 in the Times building, Dr. Low showed some interesting photographs in color representing native trees, flora and scenery. The lecture accompanying the exhibit was greatly enjoyed by the large audience, and the meeting was so protracted that there

THE HOME OF ASTERS

The men who know from experience the value of good aster seed and where to buy it, are not neglecting their opportunity to supply themselves with this stock.

A dollar invested in good seed goes farther toward insuring profitable returns to the planter than anything you can do, and a large majority of our customers have increased their orders over last year so as to supply their increasing demand for good quality asters.

To avoid disappointment, please take notice when ordering that owing to the very unexpected increase in demand, our stock of seed is all sold except a limited quantity of the following varieties and colors:

The Market.

Business is seasonably good, according to reports at various retail stores and at wholesale establishments as well. Little change has occurred in the stock situation since the week previous, with the exception that flowers generally are more abundant. This applies especially to roses and daffodils. The rose offerings are now of superb quality and are coming in more freely from various growers, all of whom seemed to be off crop at the same time. Hadley is particularly fine. This rose is rapidly gaining in popularity here and brings a good price. The cut of yellow roses is heavy and Russell is sufficiently plentiful to meet all requirements. The few days of warm weather have affected the violets a little, but not enough to cause much complaint. Carnations continue to figure largely in the daily offerings, good grades in all varieties cleaning up fairly well. The supply of sweet peas is gradually increasing, but there is no immediate prospect of a glut. Easter lilies, though not in extra heavy supply, arrive in ample quantities to meet the demand. No callas are to be seen. Bulbous stock constitutes a large portion of the arrivals, abundant offerings of daffodils, narcissi, tulips, hyacinths and freesias selling well and cleaning up closely, thus far without much recession in price. The stems of the tulips and hyacinths are longer and the blooms improved, which makes toward a more spirited demand. Freesias are having a long run of popularity. They have commanded about the same price since early in January, notwithstanding the heavier arrivals of other flowers of a competitive nature. Snapdragons are offered more freely, and the supply is easily disposed of. Anemones show excellent quality, and they are well received. Flowering plants hold a strong position. Nice pink rhododendrons are beginning to appear, and the cyclamens, primroses and azaleas maintain a high average. Azalea Indica is particularly fine. More orchids could be used at some of the stores. Plumosus is still scarce.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was called to order on the evening of March 3, but it was adjourned immediately out of respect to Henry Maier, one of the most active and loyal members, whose wife met an untimely death as the result of mistaking toadstools for mushrooms.

Daniel MacRorie, of MacRorie & McLaren, has left for the east to attend a meeting of the directors of the S. A. F. and to look after business for his house. This firm has been awarded the contract for the decoration for the outside play to be given at the home of Mrs. Templeton Crocker on April 20. The principal feature will be a bower, which will require several carloads of wistaria. The order runs into four figures. Walter Hofinghoff, of this firm, is now laying out the grounds of the new Oak sanitarium at Los Gatos, which comprise forty acres of hillside land. Eight carloads of shrubs are being used. The firm is getting him a new automobile for use in landscape work, also one for Donald McLaren.

Avansino Bros. report business fully up to expectations at their comparatively new, but popular, place on Geary street.

The Misses Hannon, on Sutter street, near Grant avenue, say the demand for cut flowers is holding up well for the season of the year.

The Braslan Seed Growers Co., of San Jose, Cal., has been conducting an extensive educational campaign in the interests of the sweet pea, calling attention to the fact that as a decorative flower to effectively hide fences, as a background to small plants, for house decoration and the charm of exhibiting, the sweet pea would be difficult to replace.

Arnold Ringier, representing the W. W. Barnard Co., of Chicago, and Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., spent two or three days together at Byron Springs in Contra Costa county the first part of March.

Ferrari Bros. are bringing in a nice lot of tulips and hyacinths.

A new store has just been opened at Twenty-third avenue and California street, under the name of the Sea Cliff Florist, by Mrs. E. Kellerman, who has

The most rapturously and strikingly beautiful little rose ever introduced. The color is absolutely new and startling in its brilliancy—golden yellow, tipped with clear cerise. The little buds and open flowers are elegantly finished and of most perfect form. Habit of the very best, strong and compact; freedom of bloom is remarkable and continuous throughout the entire season. We have given it a fair and thorough trial and have no hesitancy in offering it as the one best selling rose you ever handled. It is a money-maker.

Business last week was normal for the first week of March; perhaps there were fewer calls for funeral work. The opening of the opera season and several social functions helped out the trade. Cut forget-me-nots and pansy blooms have appeared and complete the list of seasonable cut stock.

A few cyclamens are shown, but their days are nearly over. Genistas, potted bulbous stock, cinerarias, azaleas, lilacs and rhododendrons are shown. Sweet peas are improved in quality, having longer stems and larger blooms.

Various Notes.

The Portland Floral Society will hold its regular meeting March 20, in the Masonic Temple. Important matters relative to the proposed rose festival will be discussed.

Max Smith last week had a good window display of genistas.

Robert Simmons, of the store force of the Martin & Forbes Co., was married March 3 to Miss Ethel Bennett.

The Portland Floral Society was represented at a meeting of the clubs of the city last week, the purpose of which was to consider the question as to whether a rose festival should be held this year. The plan first talked of, that of holding a floral display of some sort during the convention of the National Educational Association, about the middle of July, was abandoned, and it was decided to hold the rose festival early in June. Candidates for election to the board of governors are being selected by a nominating committee.

George Betz has opened a flower stand on East Morrison street, near Grand avenue. He will retail stock grown by his sons at the Williams avenue and Woodmere ranges. S. W. W.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Whether or not Lent is to be held entirely responsible for the falling off in business, it is impossible to say, but that there has been a decided relapse is beyond doubt. To be convinced of this, one has but to talk with any of the retailers for a few minutes. However, Easter will bring a return of the usual busy times and a little rest now will do us good.

Stock, generally, is plentiful and of good quality. Bulbous stock, carnations and sweet peas are to be had in sufficient quantities to meet all demands. Home-grown roses are still scarce. The article which is most noticeably scarce, and which is giving retailers the most concern, is greens. California plumosus has been hard to find, and, while the price has remained unchanged, the quantity in a bunch is just about half the regular bunch. Flat ferns and Oregon grape, which usually can be gathered all winter, are covered with snow in the woods and cannot be reached. As California greens usually are available, not much plumosus or Sprengeri is grown in the local greenhouses; consequently the unusual conditions have worked a hardship with everyone.

Sunshine and Shade.

The name, "Sunny Old Spokane," is good and is applicable about nine months of the year. During December, January and February of each year, however, it is strictly prohibited by the true Spokane booster. The following table may tell why and also explain why roses are not grown in Spokane during the winter:

	No. of clear days.	No. of partly clear days.	Hours of sunshine.	Possible hours of sun.	Pct. of possible.
Dec.	1	7	45.1	262.1	17%
Jan.	6	6	94.5	275.8	34%
Feb.	1	4	43.3	286.9	15%

The foregoing figures are from the records of the government weather bureau.

Various Notes.

Bernson & Halle are planting a new crop of sweet peas, to follow the present crop. They have had wonderful success with these. Commercial travelers from the eastern cities, commenting on the flowers, say they have not seen their equal even in the Chicago markets.

H. L. Olsson has been busy packing and shipping shamrocks and seedling cyclamens. The seed of the first came directly from Ireland and the cyclamen seed from England. A lot of German seed ordered and shipped he never received. He suspects it is "somewhere in England." L. B. H.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

FIRE March 13 destroyed the office of the Aurora Nursery Co., Aurora, Ill., loss $2,000, but orders and records were saved, so there will be no interruption of business.

MAY BURN CANKERED STOCK.

Without Compensation to Owner.

Affirming a decree of a district court enjoining a fruit grower from interfering with a state inspector in the work of entering upon the grower's property and destroying certain orange and other citrus trees affected with citrus canker, the Louisiana Supreme Court upholds the validity of the statutes of Louisiana, which authorize such condemnation of property without compensation to the owner. The higher court said:

"It is shown that of the defendant's grove of perhaps 2,200 trees, exclusive of young trees in his nursery, something like fifty-seven per cent were infected with citrus canker when this case was tried, and, notwithstanding the averment of the defendant's return that he 'has applied and is still applying to his own trees approved methods to prevent citrus canker,' he did not take the stand to inform the trial court what these methods were or whether they proved to be worth trying; in fact, he offered no evidence in support of either the denials or the averments of his return.

Ravages of Citrus Canker.

"The plaintiff, on the other hand, called the plant pathologist, the entomologist and several inspectors of the experiment station. It appears from their testimony that citrus canker was recognized in this country some three or four years ago, and has since that time been the subject of much serious consideration by scientists and by those

The plant pathologist says in his testimony:

Trees Must Be Burned.

"'The scientific men in Florida and Alabama and the United States department at Washington have been working. They have tried out all the known methods of treating plant diseases by using fungus sprays, and also by burning. None of them has in any way checked the disease, and in most cases it has tended to increase the spread of the disease. * * * The only treat-

POLISH PRIVET

The only absolutely hardy privet known. Introduced from Poland Russia over 20 years ago by the Iowa State College.

Now growing in every Northern State in the Union. Tested for hardiness on all the Dominion Experimental Farms in Canada, from Nova Scotia to Vancouver. Mr. Angus Mackey, Inspector of Farms for Western Canada, writes from Indian Head, Sask., that the Polish Privet is quite hardy and doing well. Write for circular giving prices and full description, with testimonials from over 50 prominent Horticulturists and Growers in both the U. S. and Canada.

What's the use of monkeying with Privet that kills back every few winters. Plant the Polish—it never winter-kills, is a fine grower, beautiful dark green foliage throughout the season, nearly evergreen. Propagates readily. Large stock, all grades, low prices.

Ask for Surplus List of Large Evergreens and Shade Trees. Specimen trees of N. Spruce, White Pine and Arbor Vitae in sizes up to 12 feet. Our 30 years in the business is your guarantee. Address ment that has been found successful and proved successful is burning the trees. Q.—How is this disease transmitted from one tree to another? A.—From all experiments and observations that have been carried on, the most important factor in spreading the disease is the nursery stock; that is, shipping diseased stock into healthy territory. The next most important factor is the human agency. A man picking fruit and working among the trees will get it on his hands and clothes and spread it among the trees. Then storms are influential, especially heavy storms, like the September hurricane. * * * Animals of any kind, anything that goes from tree to tree, will help to spread the disease.'

Protection of Others the Idea.

"The attack upon the constitutionality of the act under which the plaintiff is proceeding as based upon the ground of multifariousness of objects is without merit. The act has but one object within the meaning of the constitution, which is to provide measures of prevention and protection against fruit and crop pests and diseases, and that object is declared in its title. * * *

"Equally without merit is the attack as based upon the grounds that the act contemplates the taking of private property without due process of law and without compensation previously made. "The proposition that, though all the orange groves in Louisiana may in the meanwhile be destroyed by citrus canker, the defendant should be allowed to maintain that disease in his grove, on the chance that he may discover, and until he does discover, a remedy for it which may be less drastic than the burning of the trees, is unten-

The Market.

There has been practically no change in market conditions during the last week. Stock remains plentiful and prices as a result are somewhat low. First-quality stock is bringing good prices, however, and this is quite a help to the trade in general. The market is in better shape, although there is still room for much improvement. The change in prices was small and all orders were taken care of satisfactorily. Roses, which were in exceptionally fine condition, cleaned up better toward the end of the week, and all other stock was moving more easily than it did the week previous.

Everything seems to point to better market conditions this week. The demand should increase steadily from now until Easter. Everyone is making great preparations this year and the Easter business should be even superior to last year's, which was not small by any means. The thaw which came toward the end of last week seems to have broken the back-bone of our coal-devouring winter, and spring planting out and landscape work soon will help to keep the trade busy.

Various Notes.

The wife of Walter J. Holton, employed by the Holton & Hunkel Co., underwent a serious operation for intestinal trouble March 7, at the Radium hospital. While Mrs. Holton is still in a critical condition, the doctor in charge reports she is as well as could be expected so soon after the operation.

Easter Plants

We have our immense stock of Easter plants now ready to ship out, and we recommend the immediate placing and shipping of orders. Don't delay—place your order at once with ASCHMANN BROS. and have good stock to sell your customers this Easter. Personal selection and growing of stock has enabled us to offer to the Trade as fine an assortment of plants as can be seen anywhere, of good commercial sizes and at the right price for good stock.

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

The Markets.

Trade was good last week, funeral work being the prime factor, though business in other lines was brisk. Roses were of excellent quality and cleaned up quickly, developing a shortage during the last of the week. Lilies were in rather short supply and bulbous stock was in excessive supply, but selling well. Sweet peas, violets and valley are sufficient for present wants.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the residence of R. E. DeRycke, at Villa Velie, Moline, March 8. Arvid Anderson showed a fine vase of blooms from some of his new carnation seedlings. They were of unusual size and quality.

After the routine business had been attended to, the club elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Arvid Anderson; vice-presidents, P. G. Pearson, Henry Gaethje, James Hanson; recording secretary, William Goos; financial secretary, C. J. Reardon; treasurer, William Knees, Sr.; trustees, R. E. DeRycke, Ludwig Stapp, Henry Pauli.

Mr. DeRycke spoke on the city beautiful and of the efforts of the Rotary Clubs of the Tri-Cities to interest school children in the work. A communication from the Mothers' and Teachers' Club, of Davenport, asking the coöperation of the club along the same lines, was read. On motion the subject was held for action at the next meeting. Lunch was served, and after extending a vote of thanks to the host and hostess the club adjourned. The next meeting will be held at the residence of Henry Gaethje, April 12. W. G.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Business last week was dull. There were no social functions to speak of, so apparently the Lenten season is being observed. The supply of Beauties as yet has not increased and the blooms bring good prices. Other varieties of roses are quite abundant. Many of the growers are paying special attention to rose crops for Easter. Carnations are more than plentiful. These are of good quality, with few splits among them.

For the last two weeks there has been a huge quantity of bulbous stock in the market, the milder weather permitting it to come on much faster than is desired. The prices, however, still hold up. There is an ample supply of valley, with an easy demand. The supply of callas and Easter lilies is more or less erratic. Both are quite essential in funeral work, which at present is a consolation to retailers. Some extra fine sweet peas may be had. The best of them are meeting with an eager demand. Mignonette and snapdragons are exceptionally fine in some instances. There is much of the short and inferior grade that realizes little demand. Paper Whites are on the wane. Tulips, jonquils and daffodils may be had in any quantity desired. Couronne d'Or and Murillo tulips, however, move quite nicely.

Asparagus and adiantum have been clinging to the scarce side. Flowering plants are in good supply; hyacinths lead in demand, with tulips, primroses, cinerarias and azaleas adding variety.

Various Notes.

Among recent visitors to Buffalo were Mr. Wylie, of the Norwood Glass Co., Wheeling, W. Va., and S. F. Pletcher, of the Peters & Reed Pottery Co., Zanesville, Ohio.

Robert Shoch, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, had a fine display of baskets and ware at the Statler hotel last week.

George McClure was at New York on business last week.

The conservatory and interior fixtures of the new store of W. J. Palmer & Son, on Delaware avenue, are being completed. Those who have seen the store say it will be one of the finest in the country. Ruby Marks, of the staff, visited New York for two weeks.

Walter Stroh, of Batavia, was a visitor here one day last week. A. E.

Do It Now!

Go over your Rose Houses carefully and estimate the plants you need for replanting this Spring, and place your order. Roses are going to be scarce. The Manetti situation is such that those who get it are fortunate, and the demand is far greater than the limited supply. We have sold over 100,000 grafted Roses in the last two weeks. We have 200,000 more to sell. There is considerable building contemplated. "Changing from Carnations to Roses" is a frequent explanation made when placing an order. If you are short at planting time it will be your fault and not ours. The growing of grafted Roses is an industry in itself. At Cromwell the large quantity of Roses grown for cut flowers makes it possible to get scions that are first-class. We want your Rose Plant order, and we want to be able to say "yes" to your inquiry. Estimate your requirements and write us.

Better Order Your Palms Now

EASTER is not far off, and you will need Palms for your trade. As there is a heavy demand for our stock at this time, you had better send in your order today to be sure of getting what you want. All our Palms are grown right here in Wyncote—we never import. They will stand rough treatment. Practically no Palms are coming from Europe at this time; there is a shortage, which will tend to increase the prices. Our advice is to order now.

Superb is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a flesh pink and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

Greenhouse Heating.

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL SITUATION.

Fuel still is scarce and high in price in the east, despite the decrease in demand brought about by milder weather. Dealers assert that the demand continues to be greater than the supply and are prorating their output among their customers.

The coal situation in the east has been worse than in other parts of the country, due to freight congestion consequent upon heavy shipments to the seaboard and the embargoes placed upon nearly all kinds of freight by many of the railroads. Most of these embargoes, however, have been lifted and, unless the recent snowfall is followed by other storms, traffic will be normal before the end of March.

The expected announcement of a decrease in the price of coal April 1, which usually comes about March 15, has not been made and it is said that no decision on this subject will be reached before the end of the month.

WILL USE SECONDHAND PIPE.

Please tell me what will be the best way of heating my two greenhouses, using hot water. The houses are 26x160 and 26x100, running north and south. At the south end they are connected with an office and workroom, under which there is a cellar. There is an open space about ten feet wide between the greenhouses. Each house has four benches, two wide ones in the center and a narrow one at each side. The houses are of iron-frame construction. The height to the ridge is twelve feet. The sides are four feet high, including two feet of glass.

had a cast iron 8-section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel-saver. My coal bill to heat 5000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I had only 2050 sq. ft. of glass, heated with the 8-section cast iron boiler.

Your boiler burns any kind of fuel. I would not have another boiler than a Kroeschell, and will recommend whenever I get a chance.

grate surface 32x60 inches, be large enough to heat the houses to 60 degrees in zero weather? How should the piping be arranged? I have a lot of secondhand pipes, in 4-inch, 2-inch and 1½-inch sizes. Would you advise me to use these? The cellar is about seven feet below the greenhouse floors.

J. M.—N. Y.

The heating capacity of hot water boilers varies with the character of the fire surface, as well as with the area of the grate. To heat the two houses described, a boiler with a rating of 4,000 square feet will be required. We judge that the boiler with a grate 32x60 inches will handle at least 3,500 square feet of radiating surface with ease, and if that is the case it will probably answer for the range in question by giving the fire a little extra attention in severe weather.

Since the amount on hand of each kind of pipes is not stated, we cannot give any really definite advice as to how these can be used to the best advantage. The 2-inch pipe may be used for the returns in both of the houses, but we would not care to use the 1½-inch pipe in the 160-foot house, although it would answer for the shorter house. Our choice would be to run five 2½-inch pipes as flows, but the 4-inch may be substituted on the wall plates. We would prefer, however, to dispose of the 4-inch pipe and use a smaller size.

North Tonawanda, New York

In addition to one 2½-inch flow upon each plate, we would run another two or three feet below the ridge and would place the others under the purlins. Each house will also require fifteen 2-inch returns. Three of these should be connected with each of the flow pipes. Coils of three pipes each should be under the side benches, with four or five returns under the other benches. In case 1½-inch returns are used in the house 26x100, it will answer if four 2½-inch flows and twenty returns are installed. It will simplify matters if the flow pipes as well as the returns are given a slight fall, and if the expansion tank is connected with the highest part of the system.

ONE HOUSE NOW, ANOTHER SOON.

Please describe the correct way of piping a greenhouse 30x154, a sketch of which I am enclosing. I shall use a Moninger steam boiler, placing it at the north end of the house. There is a 3-foot concrete wall at the sides and the south end. The height to the ridge is ten feet. The side walls are five feet high, having two feet of glass above the concrete. The house is exposed to the winds on all sides. What size of boiler will be needed for two houses of these dimensions? J. K.—Ill.

To heat a greenhouse 30x154, with two feet of glass in each side wall, to 60 degrees, using low pressure steam, we would suggest the use of about 1,000 square feet of radiation. This may be obtained either by running a 2½-inch overhead main about three feet below the ridge or by using three 1½-inch flow pipes, placing one on each plate and the other under the ridge. In addition we would use fourteen 1¼-inch returns, placing four under each of the side benches or on the side walls and the others under the middle benches.

While this will only furnish 1,000 square feet of radiation for one house, we would prefer to have the boiler show a rating of 2,400 square feet for the two houses.

Quincy, Ill.—Shortly after the Easter business F. W. Heckenkamp, Jr., expects to remodel and enlarge his store to the tune of $5,000. The adjoining storeroom will be added to the present room. Flower and vegetable seeds will be stocked. Business in Quincy has been good during the winter and prospects for good spring sales are excellent.

ROCHELLE PAPER POTS AND BANDS

Our Square Paper Pots are the Original Improved DOUBLE Bottom Square Paper Pots that we have sold for FIVE YEARS.

They have the best bottom of any pot on the market.

They are by far the BEST POT on the market in every way.

They are made with one tack. No glue.

By ACTUAL TEST they can be made up MORE THAN TWICE AS FAST as a stamped out pot can be folded, assembled and "locked."

They are made of the same new, tough paper that has made our Square Paper Pots and Square Dirt Bands FAMOUS, after FIVE YEARS' TEST by the U. S. Government, the Canadian Government, International Expositions, large numbers of State Agricultural Experiment Stations, City Parks, Public Institutions and many thousands of Superintendents, Florists and Truckers in all parts of the country and Canada.

We sell no experiments.

"Kindly send us by express 20,000 Paper Pots, size 3-in., for which I inclose check." George Foulsham, Supt., Lenox, Mass.

CREASED DIRT BANDS

1—Should a Dirt Band be CREASED and the ENDS held together until it is set in place? Yes.

OUR DIRT BANDS ARE CREASED, CUT AND SCORED BY MACHINE TO THE EXACT SHAPE and the ENDS HELD TOGETHER.

NOT "LOCKED"

2—Should the ends of Dirt Bands be "LOCKED?" NO. Because "locking" does not serve any purpose and is a serious detriment.

If the ends are "LOCKED" the band has to be TORN OFF when the plant is taken out.

After the bands are filled and watered the soil settles tight against the insides and they cannot be unlocked.

TEARING the ends of the bands apart will break many of the "balls" or cubes of soil.

Get a "locked" band, lock it and try tearing it apart.

Ours are made to SLIP APART easily, without tearing, to let the plant out.

Our bands are made of the same special, tough paper that has been PROVED 5 YEARS to be perfect for the purpose.

They are the BEST Band on the market, but also the CHEAPEST.

Mr. H. B. Weaver of Bird-in-Hand, Pa., grows Carnations, Mignonettes, Sweet Peas and other cut flowers. He says of our Dirt Bands: "I believe any one using these bands will become a regular customer."

(He got 5000 Dirt Bands in 1913, 60,000 in 1914, 70,000 in 1915, 50,000 in 1916 and has just ordered 60,000 for 1917.)

Mr. J. M. Gager, Willimantic, Conn., says: "The crop from the plants raised in your Dirt Bands PAID ME THE BEST of any crop of tomatoes grown SINCE I HAVE BEEN IN THE BUSINESS."

(Mr. Gager has just ordered 10,000 4-in. bands for this year.)

Mr. Herbert W. Coulter, Avon, Mass., says: "I am so well pleased with the Dirt Bands that I DO NOT SEE HOW A MARKET GARDENER CAN AFFORD TO GROW PLANTS WITHOUT THEM."

To show the wide use of our Pots and Bands by Government, State, City and Public Institutions we might say that while we are writing this advertisement (Feb. 17th) one mail, just opened, brought us orders from South Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station, Brookings, S. D. (they got 10,000 of our Paper Pots last year and expect to use 20,000 this year) and Board of Regents of Normal Schools, Whitewater, Wis., and inquiries for prices from New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University and University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

We have probably sold 5 times as many of our Square Paper Pots and Dirt Bands as all other firms put together.

CAUTION

Paper Pot and Dirt Band Users Read This.

The writer has just visited a greenhouse where another kind of Dirt Bands were used beside ours.

In one kind the plants were

only about half the size they were in the other kind.

All the seed was of the same lot, sown at the same time and had the same care.

The greenhouse man said: "It must have been the chip board."

The greenhouse man had written us: "I wish you would come down to see one thing. Those bands of ——— have something the matter with them.

"I set them up at the same time, sowed seed at the same time, same kind, and they have had same care as yours and the plants in ——— seem to be stunted and those in yours are healthy and growing under same conditions.

"It must be in the chip board."

We went down and examined the plants and found it as stated.

Five years ago we saw a statement by Professor Massey that the chemicals in a certain kind of paper would kill plants.

We tried it and found it so.

Three years ago we received samples of Dirt Bands from the Pacific coast made of this paper.

We said to each other: "That man will go out of business."

We have not seen his advertisement in two years.

Last year a grower wrote us that he had bought Dirt Bands on the Pacific coast the year before and they had killed his plants.

Last year another grower wrote us that the plants in bands bought of ———, a maker of Dirt Bands in the East, were stunted and not as large or as healthy as in ours, but we did not go to see them.

A grower about 20 miles from here had all his roses in a large house destroyed.

He sent for a government expert and the expert reported that it was decaying paper that was mixed with the soil that had killed the crop.

Chip board is made of ground up old newspapers. That is the reason that all of it is gray. All of the ink cannot be bleached out.

It may be the chemicals in the printers' ink or some of the chemicals used in the bleaching that kills or stunts the crop.

We knew that some kinds of paper will kill plants, and we did not sell any Pots or Bands of the paper that we use until we had tried it a year ourselves.

We will not sell a man a thing that will kill his crop.

We will not sell it to him until we have tried it ourselves and KNOW IT WILL NOT KILL HIS CROP.

If new, untried material is used it had better be tried in a small way alongside of material that has been used for years and has been proved to have no injurious chemicals.

We have our paper made in the West and know it has no injurious chemicals.

There is no band but ours, that we know of, but what is made of chip board, though some of them are advertised as "cardboard," "manila board," "No. 1 manila board," etc.

Those that we know of being advertised as cardboard are pure chip board. Those that are advertised as manila board are chip board with a thin skin of manila on one side.

The "Dandy" Transplanting Carrying Pot.

Patent Pending

Made from 30-guage galvanized steel, a practical and efficient tool for transplanting any kind of plants along with the same soil in which they were grown. It does away with planting in any kind of pots or bands and is used repeatedly, and year after year, as these bands are practically indestructible if cleaned and put away after using.

They speak for themselves to any grower and will soon become a necessary tool for every greenhouse.

For transplanting such plants as melons, cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbage and other vegetables, they are absolutely reliable and inexpensive. With a few of these Pots a grower can set out thousands of plants in a season, year after year.

The band is simply put around the plant, the seam hooks clasped together and then pressed into the soil around the plant. This is easy, as the thin steel does not require much pressure to be inserted into the ground. Then with a slight turn or shake the soil and roots are broken loose from the bed and the plant and soil carried to the field and deposited from the Pot into the excavation made ready to receive them. As plants transplanted this way are not root cramped or choked in a hard lump like other pot-grown plants, the weather being favorable, they will grow on without a check.

Prices of Bands, ready for use, F. O. B. Leavenworth, are as follows:

The Market.

The supply of stock is fully equal to immediate needs. During the first and last of each week it cleans up well, but during the middle of the week business is rather slow and stock accumulates. Shipping business is good.

With the exception of good American Beauties, roses are plentiful and some excellent blooms are seen in the daily offerings. Carnations are in good supply. Easter lilies are in fair supply. Excellent tulips, daffodils and hyacinths may be had. Sweet peas are plentiful and generally have a good market. Violets are exceedingly plentiful, but have no market at all. Valley, callas and snapdragons, of satisfactory quality, are obtainable. Bronze galax is meeting with an exceptionally heavy call.

Various Notes.

Upon receipt of news of the tornado that hit Newcastel, Ind., March 11, P. J. Olinger went there to his greenhouses. Fortunately, they were not in the path of the tornado and were untouched. Mr. Olinger has booked many good orders for his new red seedling carnation, Radium.

C. E. Critchell has been shipping large batches of bronze galax to out-of-town points.

Miss Mae Carroll, sojourning at Miami, Fla., writes that Miami is a dandy place at which to spend a vacation and that she is having a nice time.

Fred Lemon & Co., of Richmond, Ind., are shipping an excellent lot of roses into this market.

The Market.

Plenty of sunshine is producing a surplus of carnations and sweet peas, and it is said that some of the growers are disposing of great batches of their poorer stock to the department stores.

Bulbous stock is plentiful and good, except tulips. Cinerarias and genistas are abundant and of unusually good quality. Boston ferns, especially Whitmani, are hard to find. Greens of all kinds are scarce.

Various Notes.

Miss Mary Hartnett has moved into her new store.

The Wealthy Avenue Floral Co. reports business good.

Eli Cross says there is no reason to complain of poor business.

Henry Smith has been busy with funeral work for several prominent funerals.

The Market.

Last week there was a greater influx of spring flowers than during any week this season, some kinds which had not appeared before being among the arrivals. As a consequence prices are most reasonable. Much potted stock is coming in, including tulips, hyacinths, crocuses, mountain laurel, roses, hydrangeas and rhododendrons. Carnations are plentiful at present. Easter lilies are abundant, though now some of the growers are holding them back for Easter sales.

Various Notes.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports business good. There is much funeral work and counter trade is good.

August C. Begerow has been granted a permit to make alterations to a greenhouse at 946 Broad street, the cost of which will approximate $3,000.

The Market.

The outlook for Easter seems to be good. Plenty of stock of all kinds will be available, and a brisk demand is anticipated.

During the last week business generally has been good. Plenty of funeral work has kept flowers of all kinds cleaned up.

Various Notes.

Robert H. Woodhouse has been on the sick list for a few days, suffering from a severe cold.

Fred C. Covill spent a day at Boston last week purchasing Easter stock. He says he intends to show "some" stock.

At the store of Ernest Chamberlain funeral work was so plentiful last week that he had to take on extra help.

We are glad to report that James Garthley is back at work in his greenhouses, after an attack of rheumatism.

The Peckham Floral Co. is sending in first-class snapdragons. Mr. Reid, the manager, states that he will have an excellent crop of violets for Easter.

Funeral work has been plentiful at the establishment of Edward M. Pierce during the last week. Some glass was broken in one of the houses by the weight of the snow that fell during the first part of the week. W. M. P.

New Kensington, Pa.—George Bros. & Co. are finding goldfish and aquarium supplies an excellent side line. They find the fancy fish sell rapidly, the principal difficulty being in quickly replenishing their supplies.

WINGFOOT

Putting the Water On the Flowers

Were you spraying the carnations this morning?

Down the long aisle you pulled and tugged and strained, the poor hose twisting and flopping and kinking after you.

And when you had untangled the snarls and straightened the kinks, only a measly dribble greeted the drooping plants and flowers.

Cracks and breaks in the hose were stealing the water from them.

You can rid yourself of such annoyance by simply installing Goodyear Wingfoot Lawn Hose in all of your greenhouses.

Then does your morning sprinkle or washout become a pleasant duty.

Then do cinder and concrete walks and obstructing bench legs offer no damaging resistance to hose so well made.

Goodyear Wingfoot Hose is, in fact, amply fortified against greenhouse abuse.

The seamless tube is of active rubber and braided cotton that will not become hard and brittle, yet does not soften and "mash."

So well made is Goodyear Wingfoot Lawn Hose that every foot of it is guaranteed not to burst within two whole lawn hose seasons.

Ask your own supply dealer for further facts concerning Goodyear Wingfoot Lawn Hose service.

nected with the Fleischman Floral Co., of New York, for seventeen years. Arriving in San Francisco recently, she took a position with the Art Floral Co., on Powell street, as decorator, but was only with that concern about two months when she left to get married, Mr. Kellerman coming from New York. Mrs. Kellerman has gone into business for herself because, she says, she found she had been connected with the florists' trade so long she could not give up her work. Her establishment is nicely fitted up, and she is in a good location to cater to high-class trade.

The Terminal Florist, as David Lichtenstein is known in the trade, is expected back at work in a week or two. His wife reports him recuperating rapidly from his recent operation for appendicitis. She has been busy with funeral work.

C. C. Morse & Co. have just issued their new dahlia catalogue, listing a wide assortment of decorative, peony-flowered, show, collarette, pompon and single varieties. An offer of $15 first prize and $10 second prize is made by the company for the best display of dahlias at the September shows of the California Dahlia Growers' Association and the California Dahlia Society.

A joint meeting of the California Dahlia Growers' Association and the California Dahlia Society was held at the Palace hotel on the evening of March 5 to discuss ways and means for bringing about an amalgamation of the two organizations, both of which were formed about the same time last year. No definite action was taken, but a committee was appointed to go into the matter more thoroughly and report at an early date. The union has been advocated for some time and it is likely favorable action will result from the present negotiations. As the situation now stands, both organizations are planning for a dahlia show in the fall, the California Dahlia Growers' Association to hold its exhibit at the Palace hotel and the California Dahlia Society at the Hotel St. Francis. If the associations come together in the meantime, it is probable only one show will be held.

Articles have been filed for the incorporation of the San Francisco Peninsula Co., with a capital stock of $2,000,000. Permanent

This photograph shows the famous Botanical Gardens, one of the permanent buildings at the Panama-California Exposition at San Diego, California. The entire lattice work is made of California Redwood, selected because of its light weight, strength, and RESISTANCE TO ROT under greenhouse conditions.

California Redwood

Resists rot—will not shrink, swell or warp

Contains a natural preservative, which resists wet or dry rot and prevents the growth of decay-producing fungi.

Withstands the difference between inside and outside temperatures of a greenhouse, even in the coldest climate.

Unaffected by the moisture in the air or the wet earth of the benches. Does away with constant repairs due to decay, warping or twisting, reducing glass breakage to a minimum. The most durable and lasting wood that can be used for benches, propagating boxes and cold frames.

Redwood does not require creosote or other preservative. It is light in weight and easy to work.

Insist on securing California Redwood. Your lumber dealer carries it in stock or can easily get it for you.

We will gladly give you any advice or information that will help you to solve your greenhouse problems through the use of California Redwood.

The Market.

Conditions of the market last week improved over those of the previous week. Stock cleaned up better than was expected. The quality of roses and carnations is improving, and bulbous stock is the finest this city has seen for a number of years. Roses now are more plentiful in all colors, but carnation receipts have decreased in number. Cut bulbous stock is also shortening in supply. Lilies are more prominent, but are only of fair quality. Sweet peas are too plentiful in all grades.

Various Notes.

W. J. Barnes had his usual spring decorative work at one of the large dry goods stores. He used a large number of palms, ferns, rhododendrons, azaleas, lilacs and other plants.

A. Elberfield is building a residence on his farm one mile west of Overland. Later on he expects to build some greenhouses.

Henry Kusik has purchased a new car, which he will use for pleasure as well as for business. He is receiving heavy consignments of rubrum and Easter lilies from the east.

Fred Fromholdt reports that funeral work has been unusually heavy. He has added to his force a Mr. Fisher, who formerly was associated with the Alpha Floral Co.

T. J. Noll & Co. are receiving extra fine Rainbow freesias. They are carrying a large line of baskets and florists' supplies.

Roy Sturgeon is sending in fine butterfly sweet peas. His greenhouses are filled with spring bedding stock. Next year he will devote a large part of his range to pot plants.

Arthur Newell says it is remarkable how pot plants continue to sell so well. He had a week of heavy funeral work, both in and out of town.

Jacob Hepting is cutting some prize-winning carnations, which bring prices above the average.

The nurserymen will have a late start planting out stock this spring, as the ground has been frozen solid.

The city department is starting to cut a street through the Union cemetery just back of James Payne's greenhouses. The dust will make it difficult to keep the glass clean.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is sending a nice lot of azaleas, lilacs and blooming plants to the store. W. J. B.

It's a pretty good idea (now that the lumber mills in the Southern Cypress Mfrs.' Assn. are IDENTIFYING EVERY CYPRESS BOARD THEY SAW) TO MENTION TO YOUR LUMBER DEALER, CONTRACTOR OR CARPENTER—and to ASK YOUR ARCHITECT to SPECIFY—that YOUR CYPRESS MUST BE

"TIDEWATER" CYPRESS IDENTIFIED BY THIS TRADE-MARK
Stamped in the End of Every Piece or APPLIED TO EVERY BUNDLE

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFFICE

When a manufacturer places his imprint indelibly upon his product it evidences to the consumer two factors of value which, together, are the sum total of all any buyer wants; these factors are integrity of purpose and complete responsibility on the part of the maker of the desired commodity.

The above legally registered "Tidewater Cypress" trade-mark is now YOUR INSURANCE POLICY of LUMBER QUALITY.

It appears stamped mechanically into the end of EVERY board and timber of

CYPRESS "THE WOOD ETERNAL."

Thoroughly dependable Cypress Flooring, Siding, Moulding and Shingles, etc., which come in bundles, bear the same mark on EVERY BUNDLE.

The legal right to apply this epoch-making symbol of STRICT RESPONSIBILITY IN LUMBER MAKING AND SELLING is restricted to those Cypress mills which, by their membership in the Southern Cypress Manufacturers' Association, attest their devotion to its Principles of SERVICE to the CONSUMER. Only mills cutting "Tidewater" Cypress are eligible for membership. (Cypress which grows too far inland is not equally noted for the "Eternal," or decay-resisting, quality.) Only mills which subscribe to the Association's standard of scrupulous care in Methods of MANUFACTURE, INTEGRITY OF GRADING and ACCURACY OF COUNT can belong to the Association. These responsible mills the Association now licenses to CERTIFY THEIR CYPRESS by applying the registered trade-mark with their identifying number inserted.

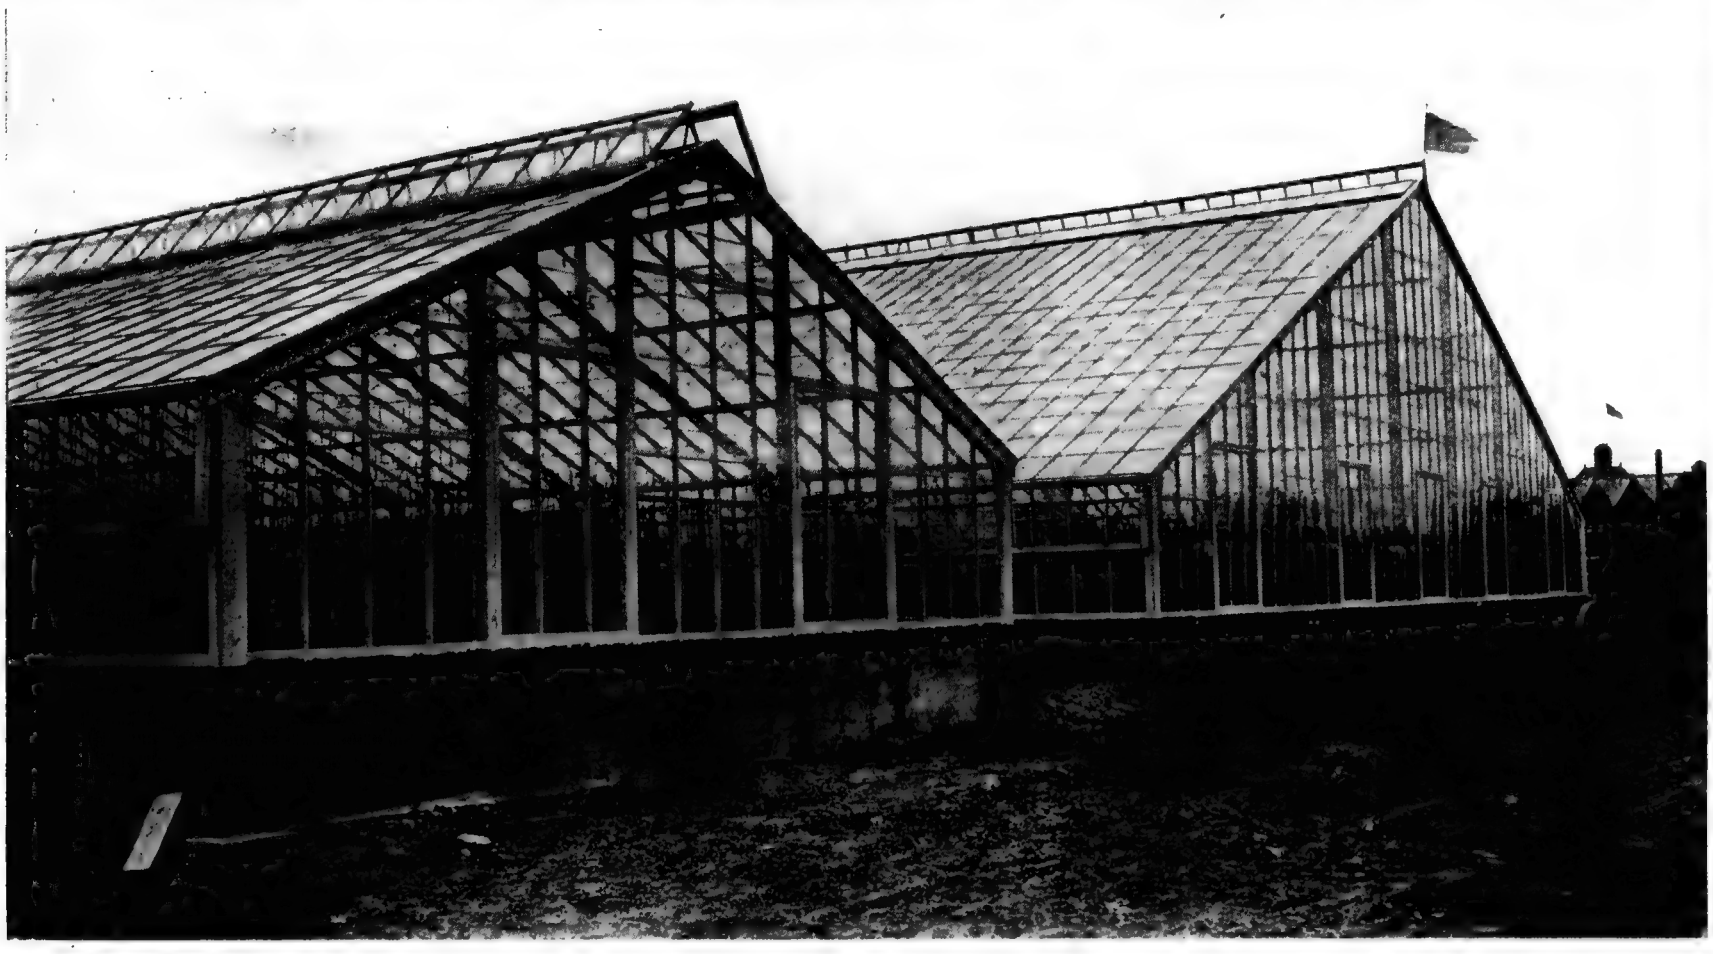
The Joe Hill Range

ACROSS the way from the rose famed range of the E. G. Hill Floral Company, with "E. G.," America's Great Rosarian, still actively at its helm, are the houses of his son, Joe Hill.

The ridge and furrow carnation houses were originally part of the "E. G." holdings. Last July they were bought by Joe Hill along with the Company's Flower Shop in Cincinnati. Last year, two separate iron frame houses were erected. A 25-foot one, mainly for propagating; and the big 60-footer, for roses.



On my desk lies one of Mr. Hill's delightfully characteristic letters. Here is a clause from it which you will abundantly appreciate:

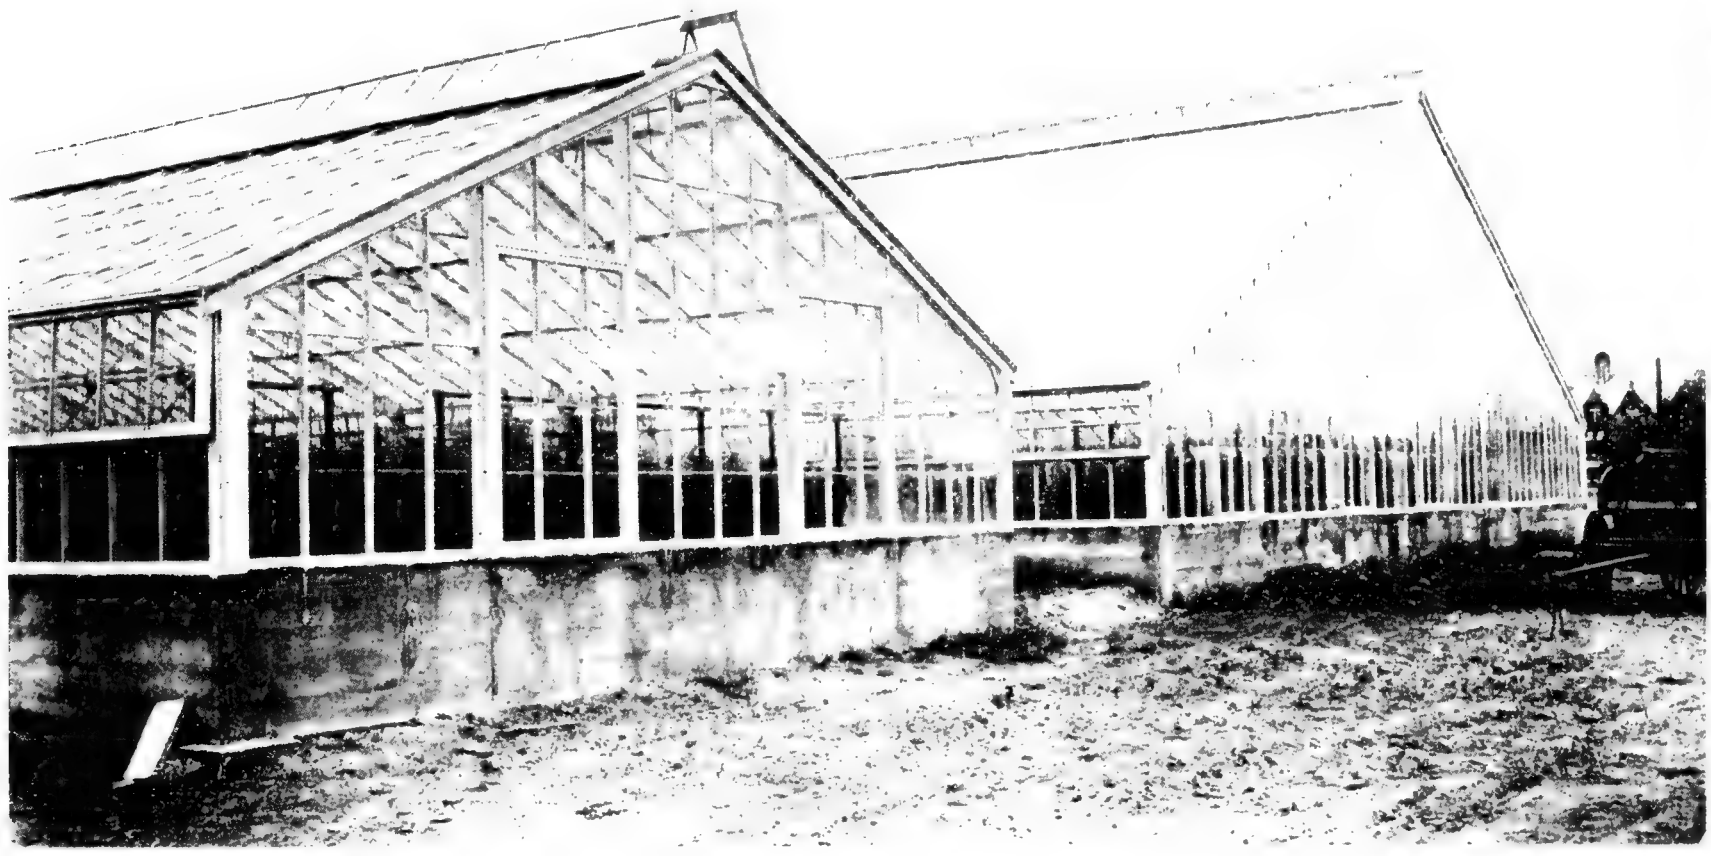
The Joe Hill Range

ACROSS the way from the rose famed range of the E. G. Hill Floral Company, with "E. G.," America's Great Rosarian, still actively at its helm, are the houses of his son, Joe Hill.

The ridge and furrow carnation houses were originally part of the "E. G." holdings. Last July they were bought by Joe Hill along with the Company's Flower Shop in Cincinnati. Last year, two separate iron frame houses were erected. A 25-foot one, mainly for propagating; and the big 60-footer, for roses.



On my desk lies one of Mr. Hill's delightfully characteristic letters. Here is a clause from it which you will abundantly appreciate:

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business has, on the whole, been quiet during the last week. Although the weather was favorable in every way, it did not make up for the quietness in social activities which Lent brings with it and which makes itself felt considerably to the florist. Stock generally was of good quality, roses, especially Richmond, Pink Killarney and White Killarney, being deserving of special mention.

There was a large supply of bulbous stock on the market, more in fact than the demand, which was fairly strong, called for. Stock included tulips of some excellent varieties, jonquils, daffodils and poeticus. Some excellent fancy sweet peas are arriving and find a ready sale.

Florists have been busy in preparation for the St. Patrick's day trade and many are now getting ready for Easter. At the greenhouses growers are busy potting up geraniums, vincas and other plants for spring planting.

Various Notes.

The Hiawatha Gardens Co. will have about 8,000 lilies for Easter. The company's rose plants look excellent. A large quantity of tulips and other bulbous stock is also being grown.

Hans Rosacker has no rose plants this year, but a fine stock of lilies, hyacinths and tulips. His roses are excellent and he is daily cutting about 500 Richmonds, as well as large quantities of Killarney and White Killarney.

Max Kaiser will have 20,000 lilies for Easter. He also has a large stock of fine rambler roses.

The Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouses are growing a good supply of Easter lilies, bulbous stock and ferns.

John Lindberry, who opened a new greenhouse last fall, has a good supply of bulbous stock. His lilies will be ready for the Easter trade.

Some highly attractive window displays were to be seen in the city last week. Swanson's had a neat display of spring flowers, artistically arranged, and the H. B. Whitted Floral Co. had attractive displays at both stores.

KICKLESS

GEORGE SCHUNEMANN, of Baldwin, Long Island, has a reputation for being particular. In fact he is very particular.

On a recent call to see how his sweet pea crop was coming along, he made the statement that "Hitchings have done his heating for twenty-eight years, and he has never had a kick."

Then he called attention to a terrific storm that blew down windmills, broke greenhouse glass and raised hob generally, but it didn't even loosen a light in his Hitchings Reconstructed Construction Greenhouse.

Then he mentioned how last year he cut peas for five months—a thing possible only in a house of extreme lightness, and having ideally exact ventilation and heating control.

If you are tired of kicking, there is a remedy.

You know we go anywhere for business—or to talk business.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

A heavy snow last week retarded business, and with large quantities of stock arriving daily, by March 10 the wholesale houses were swamped with flowers and ready for a clean-up of any kind. The day was good and the street boys got busy and cleaned up all the accumulations. Of course, the prices will not be satisfactory to the growers, but they beat the returns they would have gotten if the flowers had gone to the dump.

Really, all things considered, business has not been bad for Lent. There is much stock and no special demand.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held its meeting March 6, and as it was ladies' night there was quite a crowd present.

John Murchie, of Sharon, Pa., called last week. He is tanned and strong after six weeks of golf in southern Florida—the youngest looking 70-year-old boy we have seen in a long time.

John Walker, of Youngstown, O., has notified us by postal that he is at Santa Fe, Isle of Pines, visiting his friend, Adam Graham.

Dr. F. Shafer has presented the Phipps conservatory, Schenley park, with his splendid collection of orchids, said to be worth approximately $10,000.

The stores have been having large funeral orders, and one rarely hears any complaints about "slow Lenten business."

John Mitchell, the East Liberty station florist, is seriously ill with pneumonia.

W. A. Clarke, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., for the first time in forty years has been confined to bed. He is back at his post now, however.

A. W. Smith, Jr., was confined to his home a part of last week by a severe cold. Clarke.

WOOD LABELS.

LABELS FOR NURSERYMEN AND FLORISTS
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The flower business took a most decided slump during the latter part of last week, due largely to unfavorable weather conditions. This, with the absence of practically all social gatherings, combined to make the week a comparatively dull one. The supply of flowers of all kinds is fully sufficient for demands and potted stock is much in evidence.

Various Notes.

The three greenhouses and other property of the Sunnyside Greenhouses of the estate of John Patterson, at Cumberland, were sold at an executor's sale March 16.

The Westminster Greenhouses had a large exhibition at the Rotary Club bazaar, at the Narragansett hotel, last week.

A charter has been issued to the Eastern Wreath Mfg. Co., of Providence, with capital stock of $25,000, to deal in florists' supplies. The incorporators are Louis Shatkin, Charles Smith and James J. McGovern.

Joseph E. Koppelman is at the Capitol Hill hospital for an operation on his eyes.

Swan Peterson, of East Providence, has succumbed to the grip for a few days.

Bernard F. Quinn has been confined to his home by an attack of pneumonia.

Charles Macnair was a business visitor to New York last week.

Conrad Schultz, of Westerly, was a business visitor to the city last week.

Earl Smith left town last week to visit the big automobile show at Boston.

John Johnston was in Boston last week in the interests of Johnston Bros.

Thomas Kennedy, of Pascoag, has given up his store for the season.

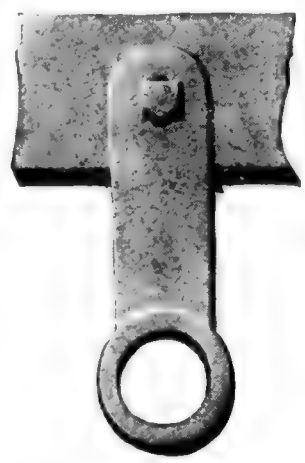
SPRING SHOWS NUMBER

This particular design of ball-bearing vent hanger is bolted to both the rafter and purlin, taking the place of the regular purlin knee.

Here is our Standard Ball-bearing Hanger all apart. It's built almost like a watch. But it has the strength. It stands the racket.

Standard Ball bearing Hanger as it looks bolted to the rafter.

This Ball-bearing Vent Hanger Cuts Down Elbow Grease



FOR a long time we have been using a ball bearing on some of our ventilating gears. And now that we have equipped a shaft hanger with it, we can't help wondering why it wasn't done long ago.

Of course, it makes the apparatus run easier—a lot easier.

Yes, it does cost more than the old hanger, but what of it? If it takes a lot of the lug and tug out of the ventilating, what does the question of a little extra on the cost amount to?

But don't for a minute compare this ball-bearing hanger with those that have been rushed on the market in competition.

Look at the photograph of the parts shown above, and you will see how it is not skimped in any way. In fact, it's made just like a bicycle bearing, or as any other dependable ball bearing is made.

The old hanger. We still make and sell a lot of them.

Although there seems to be quite a few parts, its construction is simplicity itself. They all go together easily and fit into a surprisingly compact space.

If you still prefer the old hangers at 25c apiece, we have them.

But once you have equipped a run of ridge sash with the ball-bearing ones at 60c each, you will never go back to the old ones.

This ball-bearing hanger, in combination with our counterbalance gear, cuts elbow grease down to almost no grease at all.

Superiora Magnolia Leaves

—the biggest selling because they are the best!

For your own protection, Mr. Florist, accept "Superiora" Magnolia Leaves only. They are the best—the business-building kind—for you to use. Remember the name, "Superiora." REFUSE IMITATIONS

"SUPERIORA" BRAND MAGNOLIA LEAVES ARE SOLD BY EVERY WHOLESALE FLORIST IN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

What better proofs than these endorsements by the wholesale trade?

Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "Your 'Superiora' Magnolia Leaves are the best leaves that we have ever handled, and we have had no complaint from any of our customers who bought these leaves from us. We have stored these leaves under all conditions and found that they will not mould; it is a very satisfactory leaf indeed."

Reed & Keller, of New York City, say: ". . . and we beg leave to acknowledge receipt of your last shipment of Magnolias, and we are indeed pleased to say that they are superior in every way. We further state that our experience in leaves from other dealers has been very unsatisfactory; colors vary and leaves mould quickly, etc."

C. E. Critchell, of Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "My customers insist on having the 'Superiora' brand of Magnolias, as they claim these are the best, and that they do not dry out or become mouldy, and that every leaf can be used, and when this is taken into consideration, they are also the cheapest, besides being the best."

Geo. H. Angermueller, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "It pleases me to say that I have worked up a splendid business on your 'Superiora' Magnolia Leaves, and I credit my success to the fact that the quality of your leaves has always been entirely satisfactory to my customers, etc."

Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, Mich., says: "We have been handling your 'Superiora' Magnolia Leaves for the past six years and find in all this time that we have had no complaints but many compliments on these goods., etc., etc."

New England Florist Supply Co., of Boston, Mass., writes: "Have found 'Superiora' Magnolias the best leaves on the market. The sales on this leaf have been growing with the same rapidity as our business."

Jos. G. Neidinger Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "We have tried all the Magnolia Leaves that are offered, but find your leaves to be far superior to all others, etc., etc."

The McCallum Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., says: "Other Magnolia preparers have tried to induce us to stock up their goods 'just as good as Dux's' at a cheaper price, but we have in each instance told them frankly that it was a case of quality with us, and that we did not think their leaf would give the satisfaction yours did. We consider our Magnolia trade one of the best assets of our business and will not take a chance of losing it; in fact, our traveling men are often greeted as 'Magnolia Kings.'"

The Kervan Co., of New York City, writes: "We have handled your Magnolia leaves for several years and we take pleasure in announcing that our already long list of satisfied customers continues to grow. Since we have handled your leaves we have never had a complaint, but before that there was dissatisfaction."

L. Baumann & Co., of Chicago, Ill., write: "We regard your 'Superiora' Magnolia Leaves as being unequaled and certainly would not want to have anything else. Your leaves need no recommendation—they speak for themselves."

Wm. F. Kasting Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "Have always found that the 'Superiora' brand gives our customers entire satisfaction; in fact, they are the best leaves we have been able to obtain in the last few years."

Jos. E. Koppelman, of Providence, R. I., writes: "We feel that we can sell your leaves to people who have used them once without any trouble. They rather pay the difference than to buy other leaves elsewhere, etc., etc."

Henry M. Robinson & Co., of Boston, Mass., write: "We are pleased to state that the quality of your leaves is certainly the best ever manufactured in this country, and it is a pleasure to offer such stock for sale, etc."

The Dale Estate, of Brampton, Ont., writes: "We are glad to state that any 'Superiora' leaves that we have had in the past were always as reported and gave satisfaction in our business."

FRED BREITMEYER, Proprietor MT. CLEMENS, MICHIGAN

"Hamburg Late White" CHRYSANTHEMUM

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT awarded by Chrysanthemum Society of America

Picture was taken December 10, 1916, and will give a good idea of the symmetrical form of flowers of "Hamburg Late White." These flowers were cut from plants grown from single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean, white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but by selecting later buds most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select a late bud as the later buds come somewhat fuller. By selecting late buds flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready for April, 1917, delivery and all orders will be filled in rotation.

Rooted Cuttings, $12 per 100, $100 per 1000; 2-in. pots, $15 per 100, $125 per 1000

QUALITY STOCK

There has been a big demand for Carnation cuttings this season. Perhaps the quality of our cuttings has something to do with it, but anyway, we are getting pretty well sold up on some varieties and there will likely be a shortage before planting out time comes.

Announcement of Dorner's Novelties for 1918

If you are interested in something new, of greater than ordinary merit, give this more than your passing glance.

LADDIE

New Carnation, "Laddie"

Color, a warm rose salmon-pink. Flowers of largest size, average three and one-half inches in diameter when at proper stage to cut, and which develop to four and one-half inches on the plants or in water. Undoubtedly the coming fancy carnation to grow. The keeping qualities are beyond question far ahead of any carnation yet produced, being superior to PINK DELIGHT, from which as a seedling it inherited this excellent quality. The growth is good and clean, makes large plants which quickly throw strong, stiff flowering shoots. The calyx is all that can be desired. An early and prolific producer.

LADDIE won the DORNER MEMORIAL MEDAL at Indianapolis, January 31, 1917. Certificated by the Boston Horticultural Society in the same month, and has never failed to win high recognition whenever exhibited. The rich, non-fading color, size of flower, the splendid growth and unsurpassed commercial qualities have won many strong admirers who, with pleasure, look forward to its dissemination.

That there will be the greatest demand for this commercial wonder is assured by the bookings to date, which March 14th totaled 54,200 cuttings, and this before any announcement of its dissemination had been made. If you want something extra select, LADDIE is the variety. Deliveries will commence in December, 1917, and orders will be filled in rotation as booked. Place your order now to be in on the early deliveries.

PRICE—$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000;
2500 for $237.50; 5000 for $450.00.

New Pink Forcing Rose, "Rose Marie"

Sunburst Crossed with Hoosier Beauty

In offering to the trade this pink rose, we wish to state that its commercial value has been tried and proven. In color, size, stem, keeping qualities, freedom of bloom and strong, clean growth, it ranks with the best of the greenhouse roses.

The color is a beautiful clear rose-pink. The buds are long, of perfect shape and open into a very large flower of as good substance as its parents, and as fragrant as Hoosier Beauty. Growth is very strong, throwing extra long flowering shoots, the breaks come quickly and it has no resting period at any time. Has never shown a trace of mildew or any other disease.

Grafts and own root plants grown side by side have shown no difference, proving that it will do as well on own root as on Manetti.

Deliveries will begin March 1, 1918.

PRICE—Own root, $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000.
Grafts, - - 35.00 per 100; 300.00 per 1000.
250 at 1000 rate.

On larger lots and grafting eyes, prices on application.

VIM Delivery Car Solves Florist's Delivery Problem

I have found my VIM Delivery Car very satisfactory. It is low on gasoline consumption and is doing the work of two or three teams. I have found it an economy, particularly at times when my equipment is idle. I then have one machine using up nothing, instead of two or three teams consuming feed and requiring care. Yours truly,

Charles B. Stahl.

MR. STAHL'S experience, like the many other florists who are using the VIM Delivery Car in their business, is typical of VIM economy.

For the florist there can be no question but that the VIM is the right delivery car. It is built for its work. It will deliver cheaply a rush order of cut flowers or truck a thousand pounds of potted plants.

The VIM is fundamental—built solely for delivery work.

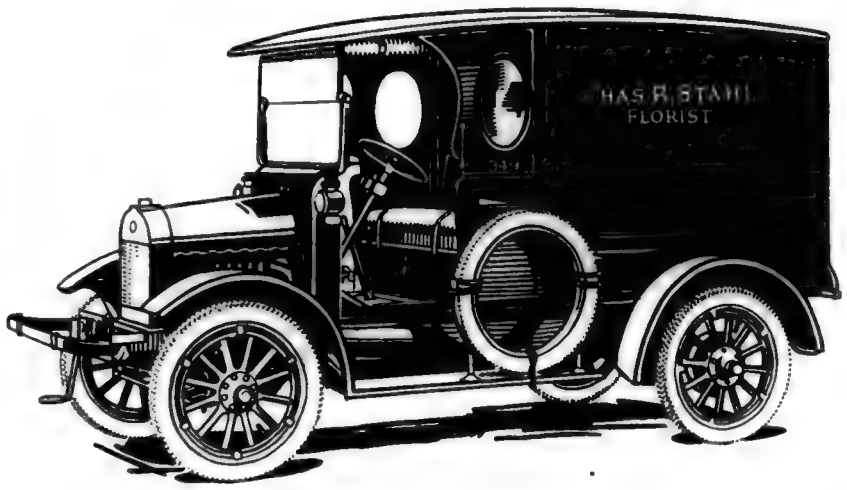
The VIM is easy on tires and economical in gasoline consumption. It has capacity and distance. It keeps delivery costs down where they belong.

The VIM will stay on the job delivering every working hour of the day and keep out of the repair shop. Last year the converted pleasure car cost the merchants of this country over $10,000,000 for repair bills alone.



You ought to know the VIM Delivery Car and the VIM Deferred Payment Plan. You use your VIM Car while you are paying for it out of the money VIM Delivery saves from the cost of your present delivery methods.

Tell the VIM Dealer in your community to show you.

This is the most efficient chassis for its work in the world—price is $645. Fitted with any one of twelve types of body—handsomely designed and strongly built—suitable for a hundred lines of business. Price complete: Open Express, $695; Closed Panel, $725.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

PREXY PENNOCK PUTS IT OVER

The eighteenth annual business meeting of the national organization of rosarians is marked by the culmination of long-cherished hopes for an exhibition of roses not dependent for strength and support on displays of any other flower. It is a success from every point of view.

ORGANIZED in New York, March 13, 1899, with its first show in 1900, the American Rose Society has held sixteen exhibitions in coöperation with some other body of professional or amateur gardeners. These exhibitions have been held as far west as Chicago and as far east as Boston, but not until the seventeenth time has the management felt sufficiently self-reliant to go it alone.

For the first time in America, therefore, this week's show at Philadelphia is exclusively of indoor rose blooms and plants and it follows as a corollary that it is the largest display of roses ever seen in an exhibition hall in America.

The belief that this year, if ever, the American Rose Society, at 18 years of age, was strong enough to go it alone originated with President Samuel S. Pennock and it is largely due to his singleness of purpose that the show has become an accomplished fact.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

President,

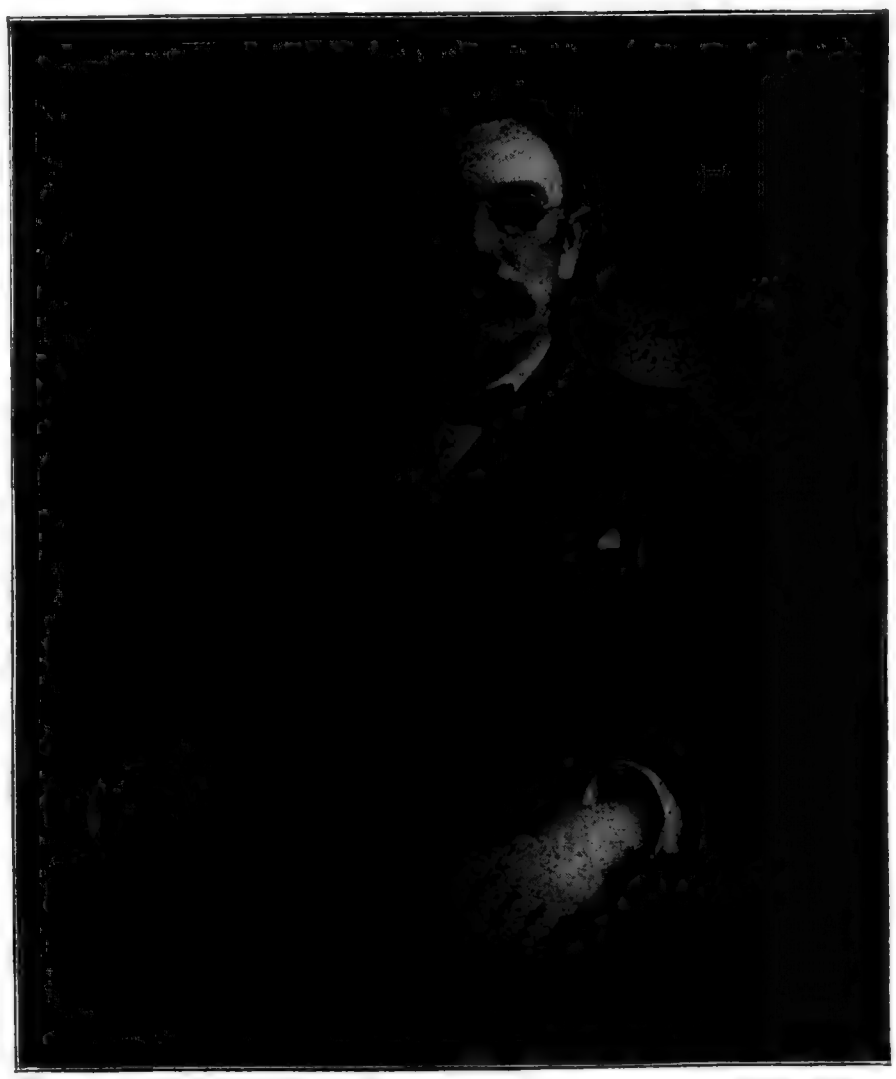
Benj. Hammond...Beacon, N. Y.

Vice-president,

Wm. L. Rock...Kansas City, Mo.

Secretary,

Prof. E. A. White...Ithaca, N. Y.



Treasurer,

Harry O. May.....Summit, N. J.

Confidence Justified.

That President Pennock's confidence in the self-reliance of the society was justified became apparent to the trade weeks before the doors of the exhibition opened. Indeed, when the arrangements were begun it was decided not to use Horticultural hall, where the Rose Society has held several exhibitions jointly with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, but to employ the larger if less centrally located armory of the First Regiment, at Broad and Callowhill streets, where a considerably greater floor is available. It has proved none too large.

The show is more nearly a trade affair than any other held in the east this season. Of course the private gardeners have their part, as the plant section was open to them and they have a group of forty-nine classes for cut flowers staged the day after the commercial cut roses; but the gardeners never have had the facilities to hold up their end on cut roses, no matter how they may excel in some other branches of floriculture. Also, in this show there is no hippodroming; the exploitation has been of the conservative character calculated to inspire lovers of roses rather than to arrest the attention of the proletariat—non-buyers.

Benjamin Hammond.
(Retiring Secretary, Honored with Presidency of the A. R. S.

The American Rose Society has reason to be proud of this show. It is an inspira- to rose lovers of every degree. There are fine roses, new roses, artistically arranged roses and, best of all, a well arranged rose show. The excellence of the arrangements was felt at the outset. William Kleinheinz, manager of the exhibition, had a place for everything. Each vase for cut flowers had an allotted position where it could be filled and ready for the roses.

Practically everything was ready on time, so that the show opened promptly at 3 o'clock as scheduled. It was practically a rose show as planned, but the decorations and dealers' exhibits lent the green and variety to set off the queen of flowers.

Some Features.

The roses are extremely fine, both as to plants and cut flowers, better in one or two instances than at any previous show. The exhibits, while largely local, are also fairly strong from out of town, thanks to A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, who exhibited nearly 2,000 cut roses as well as a goodly number of plants.

The feature of the show in plants is the novelties shown by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., notably Los Angeles and Golden Emblem, and the cut blooms of Hadley from the Joseph Heacock Co.

There are two other notable features: The exhibits of the retailers and having the exhibition all on one floor. Each added much to the effectiveness of the roses on display.

The center of the hall is occupied by the American Rose Society rose garden. It is laid out in 1,200 square feet in Roman style, surrounded by columns and a pergola, with a marble Venus in the center. The garden is formed of dwarf roses laid out in ribbon pattern. The varieties are Erna Teschendorff, Ellen Poulsen, Baby Tausendschon and Baby Rambler. They are set in peat moss with walks of grass. Tall standard roses, American Pillar, Tausendschon, etc., border the garden, which is a fine piece of decoration and arranged by Walter von den Hengle, for J. J. Habermehl's Sons.

Around the garden are cut roses in uniform tall willow baskets that set them off well. The appearance of a garden is carried out by moss and ferns as borders. There are probably 5,000 cut roses in the hall. The plants for competition are at one end. The magnificent exhibit of Henry A. Dreer is at the other end. The retail florists' exhibit booths line both sides and there is the garden of Henry F. Michell Co.

The Dreer exhibit contains 171 varieties of roses in pots, many never before seen. It is arranged in a greenhouse, 18x25 feet, built by the King Construction Co., and in beds around the greenhouse.

The Henry F. Michell Co. occupies a garden 17x44 feet surrounded by a neat paling fence. It is beautifully laid out by Philip Freud with Baby Rambler and Baby Tausendschon roses, with Climbing Tausendschon on the fence. There is a border of funkias and valley.

Retailers' Exhibits.

Pennock Bros. have a display of exquisite specialties designed especially for their exclusive use. The fashionable blue and yellow are shown in their decorations. Novelties in debutante baskets and baby gifts are charming.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons have a striking garden decoration. A perfect hemlock hedge borders a rose garden. In it are displayed some dozen or more handsome baskets, each perfect in itself.

Gude Bros. Co., of Washington, put a lily pond in the center of an elaborately decorated rectangular table with a depressed center.

Other Retail Displays.

Opposite the exhibits just described is the main body of the retailers, ranged along the south wall. John Kuhn, of Olney, has an elaborate table set for twelve covers, complete in every detail. John C. Gracey displays a landscape in miniature, with a floral readograph behind. The center of the London Flower Shop's booth is occupied by a gazing ball and there are choice flowers in Ruskin ware. Charles Henry Fox placed the bluebird, an improved surprise box, in the foreground, filled with Sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots. There are rose reminders of La France in bold outline, with many a Pollyana basket filled with carefully chosen flowers. Charles H. Grakelow displays originality in the selection of the flowers for his exhibit. While fine and sentimental, roses predominate. Two hand bouquets ornament a table that is surrounded by ribbons held in place by Sunburst-garlanded posts. J. Wolff Moore furnishes the flowers and a caterer the napery for a well-filled dinner table with a foliage setting. Ira G. Marvin, of Wilkes-Barre, has a table that pleased tne young with its suggestion of bounteous Christmas cheer. Julius Wolff, Jr., makes each plant and basket a shapely pedestal specimen displayed well apart. Victor I. Ridenour has a dainty bridal-like table with spring blossoms, with garlanded post, mantel and mirror. T. Nelson Geiger arranged a booth of floral suggestions that are most interesting. Harry S. Betz combined fine flowers with choice nursery stock effectively.

The Dreer Rose Garden

The rose garden of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., is the outstanding feature from a rosarian's point of view. It contains 125 varieties of hybrid tea roses in full bloom. They are all in 6-inch pots and include many varieties never before exhibited in this country. A careful study of the varieties is an education in the progress made in hybridizing roses, both in Europe and in our own country, to which should be added praise for the cultural skill shown in the health and vigor of the plants exhibited. Los Angeles (Howard & Smith) is the most striking novelty. Its wonderful vigor and freedom, the life of its rich pink coloring with its suffusion of gold, make it simply fascinating. Next in point of interest, perhaps rivaling Los Angeles, is Golden Emblem (McGredy), so rich and deep a golden yellow that Mr. Eisele has cabled the introducer for the American rights to the variety. Mme. Herriot, the Daily Mail rose (Pernet-Ducher), is not new, but it is most striking here. There is nothing like it in its rich apricot color. The contrast between buds half developed and full blown flowers is fascinating. Ophelia (Paul) is not new, but it is good. The interesting part is that in pots Ophelia comes with more pink and less salmon than under culture indoors for cut flowers. Mrs. Wemyss Quin (Dickson), lemon yellow with copper shading, winner of the Bagatelle prize, is pretty. Mrs. Bertram J. Walker (Dickson) is a novelty of bright cerise pink. Cheerful (McGredy) is a rose with a descriptive name that makes Mr. Eisele long for an encore. Margaret Dickson Hamill (Dickson) is a rose that the originator thought worth naming after his own sister. It is saffron yellow. Arthur R. Goodwin (Pernet-Ducher) is a fine orange red of pleasing habit. A young lady called this "Ophir and gold." Chateau de Clos Vougeot (Pernet-Ducher) is a crimson of great promise. Holland has sent a white rose that bids fair to become a leading bidder. The Duchess of Sutherland (Dickson) is rose pink. Marie Adelaide Grand Duchess of Luxemburg (Soupert & Notting) is a fine deep orange yellow rose that will become popular when shorn of verbiage. Isobel is a single deep pink rose of the type best known here in Irish Fireflame. Miss Cynthia Forde is a bright pink. Josephine (Paul) is a light pink. Modesty (McGredy) is a flesh pink and Lady Pirrie (Dickson) is a salmon.

This description will give some idea of the unusual collection of roses brought together and exhibited by Mr. Eisele. It is a remarkable collection and one that will greatly stimulate the interest in roses for outdoor cultivation.

The Business Meeting

A thoroughly live rose meeting was held in the Clover room of the Bellevue-Stratford hotel at Philadelphia, March 21, President Pennock being greeted by a large attendance of members of the American Rose Society. The reports of the president, secretary and treasurer, as presented, appear in this issue of The Review.

The following officers were elected: President, Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.; vice-president, W. L. Rock, Kansas City; secretary, Edward A. White, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; treasurer, Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.

The executive committee was increased from six to nine and the following given place on it: W. L. Rock, Admiral Ward, J. A. Currey, for three years; George C. Thomas for two years; J. H. Dunlop, Toronto.

J. Horace McFarland, Dr. Robert G. Huey and E. G. McKenderick were elected honorary vice-presidents.

The Management.

Although the initiative lay with President Pennock, in this first self-reliant exhibition the American Rose Society had the invaluable assistance of a band of Philadelphia workers trained by participation in last year's National Flower Show. The committees were:

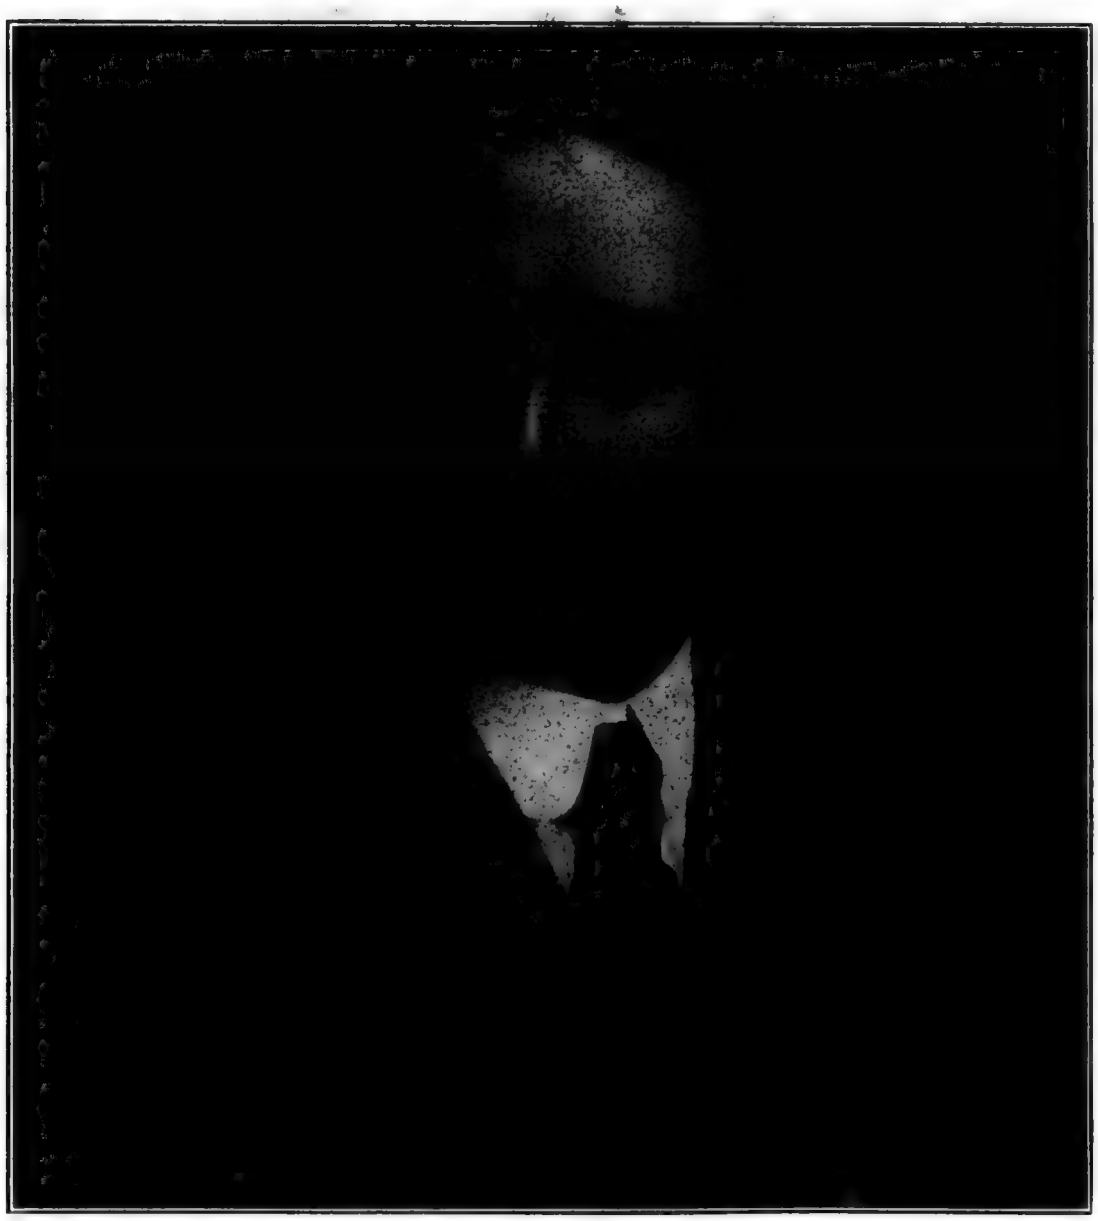
PRESIDENT PENNOCK'S ADDRESS.



[The review of the year's work with which the annual meeting of the American Rose Society was opened at Philadelphia March 21. 1917.]

A year ago we were holding our annual show and meeting as a part of the National Flower Show. The American Rose Society contributed largely in maknig this show such a wonderful success, as it was through the combined efforts of our officers and members that there was staged one of the greatest exhibitions of roses ever held in this country. Unfortunately, however, the Rose Society was not directly benefited financially by these efforts.

In view of what the Rose Society had accomplished, it was decided, after careful consideration, to hold in Philadelphia, March, 1917, a show of our own, composed entirely of roses, not only to further our interests, but also as an educational feature and an uplift to the society, in placing it in the prominent position it so richly deserves among the important societies of our country.

Everyone visiting our present show at the First Regiment armory cannot help but realize how well and how faithfully those in charge have worked to bring about the splendid results in making this exhibition the wonderful success it is, a show we can all well be proud of—a band of men who worked and pulled together with but one object in view, success; and I want to take the opportunity, as your president, for the society to thank not only the officers and chairmen, but every member who so faithfully worked to make this show a success. It has never been my pleasure to be associated with any group of men who threw their hearts and souls into an undertaking with more vim and energy than you have.

May this show be the inspiration and forerunner of many successful shows in the future.

Prof. Edward A. White.
(Secretary-Elect of the American Rose Society.)

A June Festival Proposed.

This is primarily a show that appeals more to the commercial man than to the amateur, yet there are many points that interest and deal directly with the amateur—the rose gardens, the cut roses, grown commercially, I know, but many of them splendid garden roses, as well as many other, to them, interesting features. The society having demonstrated that an annual spring show of its own can be held on a large scale, the question arises in my mind why it would not be possible to hold in June a national outdoor rose festival annually, conducting it on a large scale, bringing exhibits from all leading amateur rosarians within a radius of overnight trips or less, thus gathering together amateurs and their roses from all over the country, an event that would be looked forward to and sought for by groups of rose lovers, in every city, whether small or large.

We have with us amateur members who are enthusiastic, willing and well able to undertake the carrying on of an annual festival of this character. I should be glad indeed to have a discussion on this subject at this meeting and some definite steps taken toward establishing such an annual affair. I am sure we have many amateurs, some right here in Philadelphia, who would be willing to throw their efforts into a movement of this nature. This, with our spring show, should increase our membership as nothing else will or could, so I hope everyone, particularly you commercial men, will give this your earnest support, making for the advancement of the rose, both from a garden and a commercial standpoint. "A rose for every home; a bush for every garden."

The Membership.

The membership of the society has materially increased in both the active and associate classes. In addition to a healthy growth in the active membership, there has resulted an increase in associate membership to at least twenty times the number recorded one year ago, and this increase is continuing, I am glad to say. Last fall the society made a proposition to several rose catalogue men, some taking advantage of it, some turning it down. The firms who went into this partnership arrangement I am sure are well paid for the effort. I know the society feels the proposition has been a splendid help and is more than grateful to these firms for their hearty coöperation. To those who are not familiar with this agreement a word of explanation is in order. The dues were payable to the firm soliciting the membership, they retaining half the amount. This as a business proposition, on the surface, looks like poor business, but from the viewpoint of future membership I believe it one of the best moves ever made by the society—a member once, a member always.

While on this membership business, I should like to recommend a readjusting of the membership dues, not only the active but the associate and affiliated as well.

Instead of having two classes as we now have, active and associate memberships, I would suggest we merge them and have only the active membership. This would give the associate member, who at present is not eligible to vote or take part in any proceedings, all the rights of membership. Also, instead of active members paying $3 annually and associates $1, that the dues for all be $2.

Our affiliated members at present are paying 25 cents. This I think, with all we are doing at present and all we are planning for the future for these members, should be $1, they receiving the Annual and any other literature which may be issued; also, admissions to any shows; the Annuals to be shipped in bulk to the affiliated society and not distributed individually by the Rose Society.

The Annual.

The favorable reception accorded to the 1916 Rose Annual is the best comment on the success of this attempt. The editor of the Annual, J. Horace McFarland, found ready and cheerful coöperation among the members of the society who could afford proper help. It is believed that the articles presented in the 1916 Annual on possibilities in rose breeding, on the rose species available from China and elsewhere, on America's efforts in rose growing and rose breeding, on the diseases and insects which affect roses, on rose popularity in various parts of the United States and Canada, on rose organizations, and on roses grown for cut flowers, were of such value that the volume will long remain a standard reference book, comparing favorably with the best issues of the National Rose Society of England.

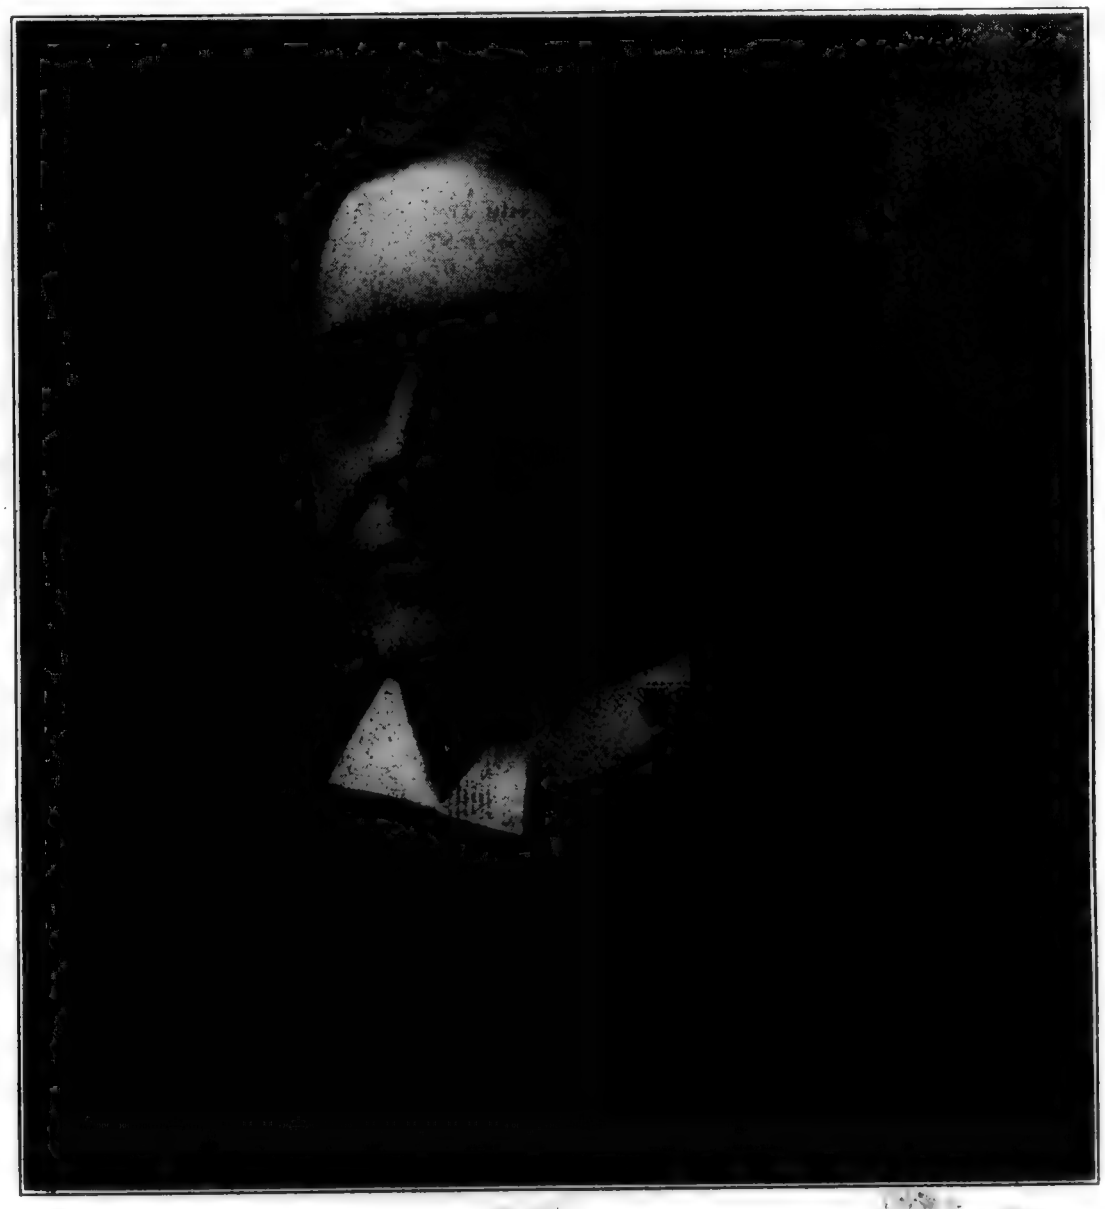
As an illustration of how this Annual was received not only in this country, but in Europe as well, I want to read you from a letter of May 26, 1916, from Joseph J. Lane, of the Garden Magazine:



I had the pleasure of being one of those present at the meeting of the American Rose Society during the Philadelphia flower show in 1916, because I joined the society two or three days before. I tell you frankly that the reason I joined the Rose Society was to get a copy of the Rose Annual and to affiliate myself with an organization which was so enthusiastically going about its work. The majority of the horticultural organizations as a rule solicit you for your dues and never think of making any plans for you to get something back for your money. I am glad to say that in receiving a copy of the Rose Annual I have received sufficient to pay me for my entire dues. Next year I want you to solicit us good and hard for advertising in this book. The Garden Magazine and Country Life in America, also some of our garden books, should be in there and I will do everything in my power to see that they are.

The heading of a column and a half article in the Gardeners' Chronicle of July 8, 1916, an English publication, starts off in this fashion:

The American Rose Society and Mr. McFarland, its editor, are to be congratulated on the issue of the first Annual under the auspices of the society. This forms a volume of some 150 pages, the last ten of which are devoted to accounts of rose shows.

Then it goes on, giving a thorough resume of the book in its many phases.

These are but two instances of many, showing how wonderfully the Annual of 1916 was received, indeed a volume to be proud of!

Research Work.

In the late spring of 1916 a fund for research work in rose diseases was started. A liberal response to the call for subscriptions from interested rose growers all over the country made it possible for the officers to arrange through Dr. H. H. Whetzel, the pathologist of Cornell University, for the employment of Dr. L. M. Massey to undertake the disease study desired. The university itself bears an important part of the cost of the work.

Dr. Massey began work in the early fall and his accomplishments up to date have been most gratifying, even though it was not expected that there would be any particular result for at least a year. For example, his investigation of the new trouble which besets cut flower rose growers, a form of crown root-gall, is likely to result in the early checking of a disease which certainly, under previously existing conditions, might easily have put many growers entirely out of business. It is most important that every grower, particularly the commercial man, should take careful note of the disease. Dr. Massey has also taken up carefully the study of the difficult black spot and in the 1917 Annual will be found his article bearing on this most important subject. The research fund was solicited largely through personal effort and it is my sincere hope that the subscriptions will be renewed and extended, so that the work may be carried on for another year, or as much longer as is necessary to keep the members of the society fully informed as to rose diseases and as to the best means for combating them.

The Nursery Trade.

It seems that the nurserymen are not taking advantage of their opportunities, in coming in and being represented more strongly in the society. I would like to quote from a letter of February 17, 1917, received from John Watson, president of the American Association of Nurserymen:

I am a member of the American Rose Society, but a poor one, and a member of the committee for the Cornell garden. I especially regret not having been able to do anything for the garden except to send some rose plants, and to ask my friends among the foreign rose growers to do likewise; the war has so seriously handicapped them that they have not sent as many plants as they could have sent under normal conditions.

No society of its kind is of greater importance to the nursery trade than the Rose Society, for it has so much to do. I was writing Mr. McFarland the other day regretting the backwardness of American growers in hybridizing. While we have many new seedlings, they are nearly all forcing varieties, except the Wichuraiana hybrids, which have been overdone. Some years ago, when at Mr. Lambert's in Treves, I was interested in his enthusiasm for his plans to produce a race of hardy everblooming climbers. You know in his Trier he produced an almost everblooming rambler. He will go the rest of the way, I feel sure. Then there are the rugosas, which we are leaving untouched, the easiest to cross, while the results so far have given us the best that we have in hardy roses like Amelie Gravereaux, Mme. Lucien Villeminot, Conrad F. Meyer and Nova Zembla. That race is what we must look to in America: Hardiness, everblooming habit, good foliage and fragrance. Our hybridizers all seem to be working on forcing roses, of which we have an abundance. We must look to the hardy, outdoor roses, just as the British growers devote themselves to the hybrid teas. It is amazing that the American nurserymen are doing nothing for the rose and nothing for the American Rose Society.

From this you will see how one of our prominent fellow nurserymen feels not only about the society, but the introducing of new roses of American origin as well. It would not only give me great pleasure, but immense satisfaction, to have the nurserymen and their interests more closely allied with the Rose Society and I hope we may have their fuller support in the future.

Rose Test Gardens.

Our work in the past of the rose testing gardens is too well known for me to go over it at this time. These test gardens, I am glad to say, are bringing good results, but not as good as we would like to have in the way of records of how the gardens are being kept up, as these are of great importance. These test gardens are going to be one of the valuable assets of the society, not only in the actual garden tests, but in the records of the roses. May we look forward to only a few years hence when every city of any size will take hold and foster a rose garden such as Portland, Ore., is undertaking at this time, which is called the Portland Association National Rose Test Garden, a wonderful movement not only for Portland, but for the Rose Society and the rose business in general, which is being backed by such bodies as the Chamber of Commerce, city council and ninety-seven other organizations. Think of it: Ninety-nine distinct organizations! This spells progress in the broadest sense of the word and to my mind should be an incentive for every other city in this country.

I want to read you a quotation from "Horticulture" of July 15, 1916:

We have heard from a number of places where municipal rose gardens are being established this year, or are being planned. It is only a question of time, and that not long, until a rose garden will be regarded as an indispensable feature of every public park and private estates generally will follow suit. Until the advent of the hardy hybrid teas and everblooming polyanthas, there was little inducement for the

Until the advent of the hardy hybrid teas and everblooming polyanthas, there was little inducement for the making of rose gardens in the northern and eastern United States. Now there is abundant recompense for all the labor and attention incident to the proper planting and care of the queen of flowers, and with prospects as they now appear, the garden rose industry is only in its infancy in this country. In the effort to improve and add to the number of forcing roses, American rosarians have been in the past concentrating all their thoughts on a single ideal, and, no doubt, hundreds of their seedlings have been thrown away because they failed to measure up to the forcing rose standard, which, had they been given an opportunity to qualify, would have proven invaluable as garden varieties. With the rapidly developing demand for the latter comes a new incentive to rose hybridizing in this country, and we shall be surprised and disappointed if American grown varieties do not in the near future outstrip and outclass for garden use the foreign productions upon which we have been hitherto so largely dependent.

Here is a thought for every American hybridizer to think over thoroughly and possibly make a profit out of a seeming loss.

Tribute to the Secretary.

Another recommendation which I wish to make is that the editor and advertising manager of the Annual be made ex-officio members of the executive committee. This I think is an important matter and well worth your serious consideration, as the Annual will be of more vital importance to the society each year.

In conclusion I want to add a word of praise for Mr. Hammond, who has labored long and faithfully as secretary of the Rose Society. His has been a labor of love and not remuneration and I think we cannot feel too kindly toward him, realizing as we do that to him, more than to any other one man, is due the standing of the American Rose Society today.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[A synopsis of the report of Secretary Benjamin Hammond at the annual meeting of the American Rose Society, Philadelphia, March 21, 1917.]

The year has seen a large advance in the popular interest in the American Rose Society. "There is no success like success." The first rose show held under the auspices of the society was in New York, in 1899. From that time to this there has not been a season when we have not had a fine rose show and at this eighteenth successive annual meeting we can report a great increase of associate members; that is, persons not engaged as florists or nurserymen. Our total membership is 1,092, as follows: Fifty-five life members, 138 active members and 899 associate members, these coming from almost every state in the Union, Canada, England, Denmark, Cuba, San Domingo and Mexico. This large increase within the year is to be attributed mainly to the service rendered by J. Horace McFarland, who gave the society the benefit of his publishing company in the printing and make-up of the Annual for 1916, a book of decided merit. The funds at the disposal of the American Rose Society had never permitted us to embark in the issuing of such an excellent book. Mr. McFarland, in 1915, offered to do it and if there was a loss on the actual cost, he would stand one-half the deficit with the society. There was no deficit on the outcome so far.

The present year solicitation slips were sent out by various seed houses and nurserymen and florists in their catalogues and these returns are mainly responsible for the marked increase of amateur members.

The record gives us one addition to the life membership list, Mrs. Elizabeth C. T. Miller. The life membership fund now is $3,200 and this is a most important fund to have grow. A society for permanence needs a substantial basis. Last year we expressed the hope to see our membership grow and this hope is materializing.

During the year two of our life members have died, Wm. C. Barry, of Rochester, N. Y., who was the second president of the society, and S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, R. I.; both men of character and standing.

The executive committee has had fourteen meetings during the year, the details of which have been published in the trade and other papers for general information.

An effort was made to have special investigations of the diseases of roses made and an arrangement was made with Dr. Lewis M. Massey, of the College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., to take up the work.

A new rose test garden has been established for the Pacific northwest at Portland, Ore. Application was received for Bellingham, Wash., and from the Agricultural College of Texas, but we were not able to provide for more than one this year.

Several new roses were offered for registration and are recorded in the Annual just published. In the registration of roses there has not been any formal rule of description hitherto. To bring about a full and clear description for a registration, the executive committee appointed a committee to present such form for adoption in future use.

The demand for medals of this society for prizes at summer shows has been granted to affiliated societies.

The society visited officially the Washington test garden and the Cornell test garden at Ithaca, N. Y.

At Newport, R. I., a special effort is being made to have an excellent outdoor display July 4. The American Rose Society tries to encourage these local shows. At Barrytown-on-the-Hudson, the usual rose show was held. This local show has been for many years an event well attended by local people and a society medal was presented.

The present exhibition is the first time in five years when the American Rose Society has held a show entirely alone. The people of Philadelphia have shown much interest and the guarantors of an insurance for expenses and prizes number seventy-one.

The growth and development of the society has reached a point where the future seems assured, and the detail work is steadily increasing to such an extent that your secretary, who has filled the position to the best of his ability since 1905, is obliged to decline reelection to the office.

THE SPUD AND THE ONION.

In the Open Letters From Readers, in the issue of March 1, I came across the subject that will not down: "The National Flower." With due respect to the writer of the article, I for one fully sustain all the objections made. Alfalfa is without a doubt a great cattle and horse feed in the south and southwestern states, but who wants to adopt this Peruvian or Arabian species of legume for our national flower? We of the Golden West have our California poppy, of which we are proud, but we would not for an instant try to force it upon the whole nation as its flower. During these times of preparedness and high cost of living, it occurred to my weak mind that we have overlooked two of the most worthy subjects for the cause, the potato and the onion! These two subjects have, without a question, caused vast worry and much talk, and barrels of ink and tons of valuable paper have been consumed by the publications of this country to place them right before the people. I therefore suggest the potato as first choice, with the onion a close second.

Who would be ashamed to wear a small tuber, or a small onion in his buttonhole these days? Is there a state in the Union that is devoid of their presence, flavor or perfume? Have we forgotten that the noble murphy is one of the main factors in this great preparedness movement? Guns and ammunition are nothing without men, and men are worthless without murphies. Ask anyone who has had the experience. Is there a home garden anywhere that could not produce at least enough flowers for the Fourth of July or small tubers for Thanksgiving? Of course, critics will say spuds are good enough mashed or French-fried but onions are not fit for loving couples. Let us not forget that the flower of the potato is pretty. The flower of the onion, it is true, may not be beautiful at first glance, but let us not forget its size and fragrance. The people of San Francisco had the pleasure of gazing into the window of a prominent millinery store on Market street, upon a lady's hat neatly trimmed with small onions, and the sight, as well as price, of this beautiful piece of art shall never be forgotten in the Bay city.

Of my brother florists I will inquire: Have you planted your potatoes for early blooming? If not, do so at once. Any good soil will do. Don't forget a good patch of onions for late flowering. These will come in handy after the asters are gone. Mr. Winkler says the voice of the florists and gardeners ought to be heard in selecting a national flower, so I have raised my voice. Now, by all means, let us hear from you.

Henry Klopfer.

Waco, Tex.—Washington's birthday having been designated as rose planting day, it is estimated the local florists and nurserymen sold 10,000 plants to individuals and organizations.

NEW YORK STAGES A FINE SHOW

IN attendance, in beauty of exhibits, in financial success and in quality of display the New York spring show of 1917 excels its predecessors. Everyone is loud in its praise and the general public has been crowding the Grand Central Palace as never before. The influence of this artistic and charming exhibition is incalculable.

The exhibition shows further progress along the lines of recent years. It is not a contest of cultural skill on the part of growers, for with the exception of a few classes the competition is extremely light, but it is a demonstration of the skill of the decorators. The big features are the rose, rock and Dutch gardens. The joint committees of the Horticultural Society and the Florists' Club did splendid work and a large measure of the success is attributable to the efficient and faithful devotion of Secretary Young and the able management of Arthur Herrington. The paths were widened, no crowding effect was visible anywhere and all exhibits were carefully staged and protected.

The trades' displays in most cases were as attractively staged as were those for competition, but much of the show's success may be safely accorded the private gardeners and their millionaire employers. The Red Cross tea garden was, as last year, a paramount influence in attracting society.

The publicity department was in the charge of Messrs. Colwell and Korbel, who were so remarkably successful in this work a year ago.

The Gardens.

The rose and rock gardens were centers of interest. The rose gardens looked rather familiar, as they were almost a counterpart of last year's staging, with improvements and refinements. Each garden covered 500 square feet of space. F. R. Pierson Co. was awarded first honors in this class. The rock gardens were much admired and exceeded those of 1916 in size and beauty. Leading exhibitors in these competitions were F. R. Pierson Co., A. N. Pierson, Inc., Bobbink & Atkins and the Julius Roehrs Co. The bulb garden also was quite similar to that of a year ago.

The Retailers.

Only three retailers made exhibits, the others perhaps being deterred by the elaborateness of what the trio do. G. E. M. Stumpp made a remarkable exhibit, illustrating every department of his business. He also staged a wonderful assortment of pottery. Next to Mr. Stumpp was Mr. Schling's model flower shop, with plate glass window and samples of his own and his artists' handiwork. Close to the entrance the only other exhibit by a retail florist was the really grand assortment of novelties and huge vases filled daily with fresh cut roses of many popular varieties by F. R. Rierson Co., Tarrytown.

The Groups.

There were four groups of flowering plants arranged for effect, 300 square feet devoted to each exhibit, by the leading private gardeners of the vicinity. These groups were all beautiful and the crowds gathered constantly around them. First honors went to P. W. Popp, of Mamaroneck. The New York and Brooklyn parks also supplied many fine plants.

There were thirty-two classes in this section, open only to private growers. There were entries in all the classes but three, with both premiums awarded in twenty of them. The awards were:

The Banquets.

March 17 will never be forgotten by the members of the New York Florists' Club and its guests. The annual banquet takes precedence of all previous celebrations, in numbers, elaborateness of decoration and welcome to the executive committee of the Society of American Florists. Presidents, ex-presidents and notables in American floriculture graced the head table, while dozens of round tables on the side accommodated the happy throng of young folk and their chaperones. There were nearly 400 present. The grand ballroom of the Hotel Biltmore proved none too large for the din-dan and the entire center was utilized between the courses for dancing, in which everyone but a pair of "lame ducks" took part. The reception, before the dinner, proved to be a happy reunion of old friends and they were there all the way from Texas and California. An immense basket of roses greeted the diners as they entered. A rainy day and evening prevented many from attending, but it was a splendid appreciation of the efforts of Messrs. Miller, De Forest and the committee. A splendid orchestra furnished melody. The speeches by Presidents Kerr and Stumpp, ex-Presidents Gude, Vincent and others were gems and ex-President Weston, of the club, was the recipient of a silver tea service.

A banquet for the jurors on the opening day of the exhibition, at the Hotel Manhattan, was a most enjoyable and mutually congratulatory event. Over fifty of the jurors and other dignitaries attended. Prominent among them were President Kerr, of the S. A. F., and Messrs. Havemeyer and Pierson. C. H. Totty was in charge of the arrangements and everything was lovely. Mr. Havemeyer was the only orator.

ST. LOUIS SCORES LOCAL SUCCESS

THE first real spring flower show ever attempted in St. Louis opened March 15 and closed March 18 at Armory hall. It scored a success in three ways—financially, artistically and in the number of exhibits.

Armory hall was never more artistically decorated and great credit is due D. S. Geddis, Wm. Bouche and L. P. Jensen, who headed the decorations committee.

The success of the show demonstrated the possibility of making it a yearly event. At its close, President Bourdet said to the members of the various committees who had the show in charge: "Gentlemen, we have made a success of this one; now let us keep it up with one even greater next year."

Much of the success of the show was due to the recognition given it by society people, who attended in large numbers. The Russian tea room and other attractions managed by the society women contributed largely to the receipts. The lectures of L. P. Jensen, Alexander Lurie and George H. Pring drew large attendances to the tea room.

The fine collection of orchids from the Missouri Botanical Garden, staged by George Pring, was one of the important attractions of the show. The rhododendrons, which were from the Bourdet Floral Co., also were greatly admired.

The bulbous display was fine and large. In this the Bourdet Floral Co., William Schray & Sons and George B. Windler scored successes.

In cut flowers the local growers made an exceptional showing in all the classes. The only outside exhibitors in this section were Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., and Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill. All carnations, sweet peas and roses were of excellent quality.

The local retailers also showed great interest, with daily displays in many classes. The first-day dinner table displays brought five competitors for the two prizes. The Ayres Floral Co. took first prize on an artistic table of spring flowers. Fred Strohmeyer was the artist. Jos. Witek was second. There were large displays in all these classes and the judges had a hard time daily, as the work of all the entries was most artistic. This statement came from the judges themselves.

The judges for the three days were A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis; Theo. Dorner, La Fayette, Ind., and James S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia. It was agreed that they used excellent judgment. The awards were:

The Banquets.

March 17 will never be forgotten by the members of the New York Florists' Club and its guests. The annual banquet takes precedence of all previous celebrations, in numbers, elaborateness of decoration and welcome to the executive committee of the Society of American Florists. Presidents, ex-presidents and notables in American floriculture graced the head table, while dozens of round tables on the side accommodated the happy throng of young folk and their chaperones. There were nearly 400 present. The grand ballroom of the Hotel Biltmore proved none too large for the din-dan and the entire center was utilized between the courses for dancing, in which everyone but a pair of "lame ducks" took part. The reception, before the dinner, proved to be a happy reunion of old friends and they were there all the way from Texas and California. An immense basket of roses greeted the diners as they entered. A rainy day and evening prevented many from attending, but it was a splendid appreciation of the efforts of Messrs. Miller, De Forest and the committee. A splendid orchestra furnished melody. The speeches by Presidents Kerr and Stumpp, ex-Presidents Gude, Vincent and others were gems and ex-President Weston, of the club, was the recipient of a silver tea service.

A banquet for the jurors on the opening day of the exhibition, at the Hotel Manhattan, was a most enjoyable and mutually congratulatory event. Over fifty of the jurors and other dignitaries attended. Prominent among them were President Kerr, of the S. A. F., and Messrs. Havemeyer and Pierson. C. H. Totty was in charge of the arrangements and everything was lovely. Mr. Havemeyer was the only orator.

ST. LOUIS SCORES LOCAL SUCCESS

THE first real spring flower show ever attempted in St. Louis opened March 15 and closed March 18 at Armory hall. It scored a success in three ways—financially, artistically and in the number of exhibits.

Armory hall was never more artistically decorated and great credit is due D. S. Geddis, Wm. Bouche and L. P. Jensen, who headed the decorations committee.

The success of the show demonstrated the possibility of making it a yearly event. At its close, President Bourdet said to the members of the various committees who had the show in charge: "Gentlemen, we have made a success of this one; now let us keep it up with one even greater next year."

Much of the success of the show was due to the recognition given it by society people, who attended in large numbers. The Russian tea room and other attractions managed by the society women contributed largely to the receipts. The lectures of L. P. Jensen, Alexander Lurie and George H. Pring drew large attendances to the tea room.

The fine collection of orchids from the Missouri Botanical Garden, staged by George Pring, was one of the important attractions of the show. The rhododendrons, which were from the Bourdet Floral Co., also were greatly admired.

The bulbous display was fine and large. In this the Bourdet Floral Co., William Schray & Sons and George B. Windler scored successes.

In cut flowers the local growers made an exceptional showing in all the classes. The only outside exhibitors in this section were Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., and Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill. All carnations, sweet peas and roses were of excellent quality.

The local retailers also showed great interest, with daily displays in many classes. The first-day dinner table displays brought five competitors for the two prizes. The Ayres Floral Co. took first prize on an artistic table of spring flowers. Fred Strohmeyer was the artist. Jos. Witek was second. There were large displays in all these classes and the judges had a hard time daily, as the work of all the entries was most artistic. This statement came from the judges themselves.

The judges for the three days were A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis; Theo. Dorner, La Fayette, Ind., and James S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia. It was agreed that they used excellent judgment. The awards were:

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Dutch Bulbs for Easter.

Hyacinths and all varieties of narcissi and tulips come along rapidly at this season. Three weeks should suffice to flower practically anything in this line, while a fortnight would enable some to flower in a night temperature of 50 degrees. Do not stand any of the pots or pans below the benches. You want them as stocky as possible, in order to obviate the necessity of staking. Specially popular varieties in pans this Easter will be Golden Spur and Victoria narcissi, Murillo and Tea Rose tulips, white and pink hyacinths. Plants which are a little too advanced can easily be retarded on the floor of a cool cellar. Any which seem at all backward should be given a little more heat, but keep them near the glass, so they will not become drawn up.

Violets for Easter.

The increasing power of the sun will now send violets along rapidly. Particularly is this true of the single varieties. As soon as the plants start to throw up a big crop of lusty leaves, that is a sure sign of the beginning of the end, so far as flowers are concerned. At Easter there is a heavy call for violets, and they will bring much better prices than at present. In order to hold flowers in good condition until that date, it will be necessary to place some shade on the glass to assist in lowering the temperature, in addition to keeping ventilators and doors wide open. Propagation should be started at once. Select strong, healthy plants for stock. You can afford to sacrifice some flowers on these. Tear the plants to pieces, cut away all but a few of the new leaves and shorten the roots. Place them in sandy loam. Cuttings without roots should go in clear sand and if kept shaded and properly watered will practically all root.

Easter Lilies.

The date of Easter is April 8, and this is a reminder that lilies will need close attention between now and that date, to time them correctly. Put the laggards in the warmest house you have, spray and water them freely and close the house early in the afternoon, in order to bottle up a brisk heat, always provided the house does not contain plants which will be injured by such treatment. Plants well advanced should go into a somewhat cooler house. If buds are now ready to bend down they will be on time if given a night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees, but do all the forcing you can now rather than nearer Easter, and remember that while you can get from $8 to $12.50 per hundred for buds and flowers before Easter, they are worth but little after that date. Therefore hurry them along all you can now.

Pansies.

Pansies carried over the winter in coldframes should now have the mulch of dry leaves over them removed. Give them a watering with the hose and firm any which frost may have heaved. Air freely, but keep the sashes closed on cold nights. These plants will furnish early flowers, and plants in small baskets, a dozen in each, will be found salable. The same holds true of myosotis and double daisies. Do not be in too much of a hurry about removing mulch over the plants outdoors. March is a notoriously treacherous month. One day of heat reminds us of the tropics, but is followed by an arctic wave. If your mulch was somewhat heavy and snows have packed it down solid, remove a little of it, but go slowly about uncovering pansies, violas, Canterbury bells, foxgloves, daisies, forget-me-nots and beds of bulbous plants.

Amaryllises.

It is possible to have amaryllises in bloom over quite a long season by keeping the dormant bulbs in a cool, dry house or shed, a few degrees above freezing. Amaryllises are beginning to have more commercial value. One grower wholesaled all his spikes at $12 per dozen this season. This is not an extravagant price for good hybrids, but as many plants produce two spikes they pay fairly well.

The plants should have some of the old surface soil removed and be given a top-dressing of fibrous loam and old cow manure before starting up. Any that are badly potbound should be carefully repotted; be sure to give them good drainage. Give the plants a temperature of 60 degrees when started. It will not take the flower stalks long to appear. Move the plants into somewhat cooler quarters as the flowers open. For shipping it is always best to cut the spikes before the blooms become fully developed. They will open well in water.

Snapdragons.

Snapdragons in the benches now are throwing up a fine crop of stout shoots for spring flowering. If you want fancy spikes, cut out the weakest of these, but if your trade calls for small to medium stalks, do not trouble to do this.

Carnations and Roses at the First St. Louis Spring Show, March 15 to 18.

A General View of the Highly Successful Spring Flower Show at St. Louis.

Plants which have been in the benches since last fall will have well exhausted the soil now, so give them a mulch of sheep manure or well decayed cow manure. This will help to keep the benches from drying out rapidly, as well as stimulate the plants. Snapdragons now carry an abundance of nice, stocky cuttings. Take off and propagate a good batch of these; they will make salable plants for bedding out in May. Many people do not half appreciate the value of snapdragons as bedding plants. As a matter of fact, they are among our most useful summer-flowering outdoor plants.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

The market last week found plenty of everything, except American Beauties and special Russell roses. St. Patrick's day business cleaned up great quantities of white carnations, roses, peas and violets, and other stock sold well. Choice snapdragons come to the market and find a ready sale. Darwin tulips and irises have made their appearance and clear readily.

Various Notes.

Philip Breitmeyer and Frank Danzer attended the shows in the east.

William Carter, of W. L. Rock Flower Co., Kansas City, Mo., stopped off in Detroit, on his way to New York.

Lewis Neubeck, of the L. H. Neubeck establishment, Buffalo, N. Y., is now in the employ of J. Breitmeyer's Sons, at the Park store.

Sassenheim, Holland.—Westerbeek & Klyn, who had three men in America last season, have eight travelers there this year.

Yokohama, Japan.—Robert Fulton, of Henry & Lee, New York, who has been here for several months, contrary to his custom will not return to the United States this summer.

Copenhagen, Denmark.—There still are several millions of Hamburg valley pips in the hands of Danish dealers who have not been able to ship them. It is reported here the German growers will produce few pips in 1917.

Sassenheim, Holland.—It is said that Westerbeek & Klyn established a virtual control of the gladiolus market by the purchase early in the season of practically all the unpledged bulbs in Holland of the varieties called for by the American trade. The U-boat situation has interfered with their plans. They had about 400 cases on the Nieuw Amsterdam when it sailed late in January and returned a few days later.

London, England.—The new British Wholesale Florists' Federation has been before the Imports Restriction Committee of the government to secure the exclusion of flowers of Dutch bulbs, the importation of the bulbs themselves having been stopped last autumn.

Rotterdam, Holland.—The inclination of the government to cause the laying up of Dutch ships rather than expose them to attacks by U-boats is creating a stir in many other countries, but no class is hit harder than the Dutch exporters of bulbs and nursery stock. Only a small part of the usual spring shipments of nursery stock have gone forward, and there still are quantities of gladiolus bulbs to be forwarded, with the fall bulb season only a few months away, and freight piling up every day. The blockade may begin to diminish at any time, but some change must occur soon or the spring nursery stock will not move in time to be of any use to the American trade, and until the blockade breaks the bulb shipments will be in doubt.

NEW FRENCH HYDRANGEAS.

Excellent Easter Plants.

A most instructive exhibit at the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's spring show, held in Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, this week, March 20 to 22, is the group of French hydrangeas grown by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at the Riverview range of greenhouses. The plants, mostly 2 years old, are all in 11-inch tubs. They are in full bloom, well finished and present a handsome appearance. They afford an excellent opportunity for comparison of varieties, new and older, an opportunity that is of great value to growers of Easter plants. The group proves that every one of the varieties can be easily forced into bloom for the earliest possible Easter, March 23. E. H. Michel, hydrangea expert of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has kindly furnished the following notes for the readers of The Review.

Hydrangea Lilie Mouillere.

Baby Bimbenet—Have watched this wonderfully interesting variety for five years with constantly increasing appreciation of its superior worth as a reliable early pot plant. Its compact habit in connection with its free and early flowering propensity makes it unsurpassed for early Easter and market purposes.

Mme. Foucard—Words fail to permit a proper definition of the variations in the peculiar shades of pink or rose that differentiate the various French hydrangeas. Mme. Foucard is deeper in color, rather more red than E. G. Hill; there is more fire in it. Its panicles are compact and somewhat irregular, yet inclined to be conical. As a whole this promises to be a sensational novelty when introduced, as hoped, in 1918.

Louis Foucard—Really great, but not quite so majestic as Mme. Foucard.

Mlle. Lucienne Chaure—A delightfully soothing delicate rose with large, compact, flat panicles of beautifully rounded fringed florets. Exquisite refine...ent is its greatest virtue, yet the plant is vigorous and floriferous.

E. G. Hill—Not a novelty, yet not sufficiently well known nor appreciated. One of the earliest; a positive bloomer. It has great, full trusses of a most pleasing rose pink. Every shoot has a flower.

Mont Rose—A delicate rosy pink; large trusses, freely produced. It blooms from practically every shoot, and, being a constant grower, thus becomes practically everblooming. Add to this the fact that it has been proven unusually hardy and we find we have a sort we can cordially recommend for outdoor planting.

Lilie Mouillere—Wonderfully substantial, fairly early, unusually symmetrical as to growth; color a bright, cheerful carmine.

Mme. Auguste Nonin—A decidedly distinct shell pink and a most vigorous plant; light foliage.

Beaute Vendomoise—A vast improvement on the fertile-flowered Mariesi; the attractive fringe of sterile flowerets around the fertile center make it interesting as well as attractive.

Mme. Leyon—Great, heavy trusses of waxy white flowers are borne on vigorous stalks. We consider it one of the most promising white varieties.

Mousselene, Mme. E. Mouillere, Radiant, General de Vibraye, Mlle. Rene Gaillard, Mme. Maurice Hamar, Souv. de. Mme. E. Chautard and Avalanche are eight reliable standard sorts. They may be depended upon to give satisfaction.

To impress the reader with the value of the above notes it may be added that all the varieties described were grown by Mr. Michel personally.

A Substitute for Azaleas?

When James J. Karins, western representative of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., was asked to select the best novelty from among these French hydrangeas, he chose Mme. Auguste Nonin, on account of the charming contrast between its delicate flowers and pale green foliage.

The thought suggested by these lovely plants is that in their beauty and variety of color and shades of color may be found an acceptable substitute, should need be, for the azalea as an Easter plant. Phil.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

"Show week is always dull"—so say they all. The last week was no exception to the rule, and, to add to its burden, a heavy rain March 17 quenched all financial hopes. The retail demand was extremely light and has been during all of March to date. Any advance in values before Easter seems out of the question.

American Beauties give indications of having reached their top, and it is remarkable how long they have maintained their 75 cent value even for the choice selected. All the other roses are held at about the same quotations as those of the previous week. Hadley is growing constantly in favor. All the novelties hold well for choice flowers and the short-stemmed blooms have not gone lower than $10 per thousand. The street merchants were handicapped by both snow and rain.

Carnations are becoming unusually plentiful, but prices up to date have been maintained. The best are selling at $3 per hundred. In large purchases the medium-grade stock does not sell for more than $10 per thousand. Business is expected to rally after the flower show closes and spring weather comes to stay.

A few longiflorum lilies advanced to 8 cents last week, but most of them find their level at $6 per hundred. Valley holds at the quotations of the last four weeks, the best of it not bringing over $4 per hundred. Gardenias are in surplus now and lower in price, especially for the mediocre shipments, which sell as low as $5 per hundred. There are plenty of orchids and the prices have not changed. Occasionally 50 cents is asked but seldom received. The bulk of them go at $20 to $30 per hundred.

Violets are slightly firmer, on account of the bad weather for the street men, through whom most of the arrivals are now distributed. The surplus of tulips is larger. Only the choice varieties bring prices satisfactory to the growers. The low grades meet with no demand, even from the street merchants. Daffodils are more in demand by the "scavengers," and these, with sweet peas and violets, constitute fakers' stock in trade. Callas are no longer scarce. Freesias are about gone. A few may last until Easter. Southern gladioli soon will be followed by southern daffodils. There is an abundance of pansies, daisies and mignonette, and no diminution in the sweet pea flood.

Various Notes.

The executive committee of the S. A. F. had a happy and harmonious meeting here March 16 and 17. President Kerr impressed all who had the pleasure of meeting him with his practicality and enthusiasm. Ex-president MacRorie came all the way from the Golden Gate and says he will be back again for the August convention.

The Kervan Co. is credited with the first arrival of arbutus.

W. E. Maynard, recently in the nursery business at Great Neck Station, is about to open a cut flower store there.

The big rain storm made St. Patrick's day a sad memory for the 30,000 Irish paraders on Fifth avenue. Many wholesalers disposed of vast numbers of shamrocks. C. C. Trepel said that at wholesale and in his many stores the total sales of small pots were close to half a million.

The plant auctions open later than usual this year, on account of the lack of importations.

for California, to attend to the company's calla and freesia bulbs for next June and later deliveries. On account of the constantly increasing business, the office force has been enlarged.

The directors of the National Association of Gardeners met here March 16, ex-President J. A. Everitt in the chair. Twelve members were present. It was decided to have the national convention the first week in December at Chicago.

William Lackey, superintendent of the Guggenheim estate at Long Branch, L. I., was killed March 10 by two vagrants, whom he was ejecting from the grounds. The slayers escaped.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

The first requisite in planting out is to have the ground in first-class shape for the purpose. Two systems are favored and both are good. Some growers plow the field in the fall and leave it in the rough all winter, so that the frost will get a chance to disintegrate it. Another, and, I think, a better way, is to sow the field down with a cover crop, such as red clover or rye, and turn it under at the spring plowing. This plan has the advantage of adding fiber and humus to the soil, which, in the south, is deficient in both, and no manure is required, although a dressing of fine bone or commercial guano will give added benefits. The soil in most of the carnation belt in the south is of rather a stiff texture and must not be too wet when worked. Where the soil is of a light and sandy nature the moisture is not likely to be bothersome. After plowing, the field should be thoroughly disked, going over it often enough to pulverize the big lumps. This should be followed with a smoothing harrow. The whole must be quite fine, to enable the young plants to make a good start.

Where ground is not plentiful the plants can be set out, 6x8 inches, in beds four feet wide, with an 18-inch walk between each bed. The soil in these walks should be dug out and thrown on the beds, rounding them up to shed water on both sides. A depth of two or three inches is all that need be dug out. Such beds, of course, can only be worked with a small hand cultivator.

When plants are to be worked with a wheel cultivator the rows should be sixteen to eighteen inches apart and the plants eight to ten inches apart in the rows. In setting the plants out it is better to have the balls just a trifle above rather than below the surface. The plants should be well watered before being set out and if you are fortunate enough to get a good shower immediately after planting, the most critical stage is past. A sprinkling system is really a necessity in many states in the south which are deficient in rainfall during early and midsummer months. Such a system is a money-making investment.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Considering that we are in the midst of the Lenten season, the market showed a lot of activity all last week. Some days the trade was really rushing. Stock of all kinds was plentiful and all orders could be filled. All of our local growers are in full crop.

During the week we found the rose crop becoming more plentiful and some fine Ophelia, Russell, Sunburst and Killarneys, for which the demand was large, were seen daily. Carnations are abundant in all varieties. Whites had a big call March 15 to 17 for greening for St. Patrick's day and the price jumped to $4 per hundred on extra choice. In other colors $3 per hundred was the price. Sweet peas are coming in well and an abundance of fancy Spencers is seen daily. There is an overproduction of the common sorts, which have little demand, and sell cheap in thousand lots. The bulbous stock is at its height. Jonquils, Von Sions, valley, callas, tulips and Dutch hyacinths are abundant. There will be plenty of Easter lilies from now on.

The shortage in plumosus and Sprengeri causes a big demand for other greens. Wild smilax sold well last week.

Various Notes.

G. A. Knapp, of Nevada, Mo., president of the Missouri State Florists' Association, was a visitor at the big show last week. Mr. Knapp says the State Florists' Association is in good shape and expects a large attendance at the annual meeting at Columbia, Mo., in August.

Chas. Meier, of Kirkwood, Mo., is bringing in some superb Spencer peas and carnations. The peas are grown cooler than with the majority of the growers and possess great substance.

James North has a pretty flower store at the old stand vacated by Alex. Johnson at the loop in Wellston. Mr. North reports that business has been great all this month, especially in funeral work.

H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. has issued the annual spring catalogue known as the Weber Guide. Frank Weber says advance orders will keep an extra force busy when the weather permits digging.

Young Bros. Floral Co., on Waterman avenue, and Sanders Nurseries Co., on Clara avenue, have pretty blooming displays in their big show houses. They report good business and an excellent demand for plants of all kinds.

The volume of mail orders coming to the St. Louis Seed Co., C. Young & Sons Co. and Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. last week, for seeds, bulbs and plants, indicates a busy season. The fine weather last week stimulated trade.

Ostertag Bros. report a great deal of decorating work for spring openings. J. J. Burke, in charge of the cut flower department, says business is exceptionally good in his department, considering the Lenten season.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Theodore Miller, on Delmar avenue, March 14. For the April meeting, Mrs. J. J. Beneke will entertain the circle at her home, 3648 Humphrey street.

In the stores of the leading downtown florists we see some pretty window displays, especially those of the Mullanphy Flower Co., Grimm & Gorly and F. J. Foster. They say that transient business during the last week was large, special sales being on for each day.

The South Grand avenue florists say that the Lenten season has made little difference to them. M. Eggeling, Windler's Flowers, C. E. Schoenle, C. Bergstermann and Chas. Beyer have attractive window displays daily.

Low prices are crushing nobody but the man who does not believe his goods are worth as much as others are able to obtain.

ANYBODY can sell goods by cutting prices, but once one gets the habit of cutting it becomes the more difficult to get straight prices again.

A HANDSOME vase of Rudolph Fischer's new lavender freesia, Splendens, decorates the editor's desk. It came safely by express in five days from the originator's place at San Gabriel, Cal.

SPEAKING of fancy frills for flower festivals, there were several good ones at this week's rose show at Philadelphia. Among other features, Victor Herbert, the composer, wrote a waltz in honor of the festival and dedicated it to the American Rose Society. It was played for the first time at the opening session of the show, the composer himself conducting the first rendition.

THE daily papers of New York city recently have been giving prominence to the efforts of representatives of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies to cause the discontinuance of the use of flowers at Jewish funerals, and the conversion of the money to charitable uses. Every little while an agitation of this character breaks out in some city in which The Review has readers who are alarmed thereby, but the sentiment attaching to the use of flowers at the time of death is so strong that no such agitation ever has accomplished more than a small part of its purpose, and all heretofore have quickly subsided. The less opposition the sooner the agitation dies.

ONE of the first duties of a show publicity committee should be to provide "features" that will serve as good material for write-ups in the papers. Something original always makes a hit with the reporters—hence, free publicity. At New York's big show this week a carnation named in honor of Major General Leonard Wood, an orchid named for Major General Pershing, a pair of orchids named after the President and Mrs. Wilson, were the "features" provided by the show management as fodder for the newspapers, and as a result the advance press notices of the show were many.

SINCE the nation-wide home-gardening propaganda started, as a means to meet the increasing cost of food, the Department of Agriculture at Washington has been swamped with hundreds of thousands of requests for free seeds. The free seeds provided by Congress are distributed as members of Congress themselves direct, and this year's supply of about $200,000 worth was long ago exhausted. Evidently hundreds of thousands of people who wanted free seeds now will have to expend coin of the realm over the seedsman's counter. It is likely that retail seedsmen this year will find it harder than ever before to handle the counter trade during the few big weeks. Perhaps many a florist will get his finger in the pie, too, providing he tells the people about his seed department.

CLUB PLANS PUBLICITY.

MAKE THE POSTMASTER KICK.

When they advertise in The Review they are pleased with the results and the editor is glad they are pleased. The only kickers are the postmasters. They get tired handling the mail The Review brings to advertisers. Read these:

Please cut out my geranium ad, as I have to return checks and the postmaster is getting tired handling my mail from only one week's ad.—C. W. Seibert, Hicksville, O., March 9, 1917.

Gently remove that impatiens ad. It did the work in short order. Had 2,500 in stock and am now returning the money. Hard luck.—W. W. Rike, Le Roy, Ill., March 13, 1917.

Kindly discontinue writer's advertisement in your "For Sale" columns, rendering bill for same at the next issue. We are pleased to advise that the results have been satisfactory and that we will be glad to insert another advertisement July 1 for the fall heating system overhauling.—James V. Colpitts, Philadelphia, Pa., March 8, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

WHO'S WHO?

It is entirely proper that trade prices be not given to those who are not engaged in the trade as a means of livelihood. The Review does its part by confining its circulation, as closely as is humanly possible, to those in the business. But it would take a Solomon to draw the line. When the government took its last census it classed as florists all those deriving twenty per cent of their annual incomes from the sale of plants or flowers. It is not a rule the wholesale florist could apply. But it shows why there is request for wholesale prices from those whose status is in doubt. There never is any question about the man who is wholly in or wholly out; the question is as to the price to be made the man who is only on the edge of the trade, part florist, part something else.

A BIT OF OLD ROME.

At the National Flower Show in Philadelphia in March, 1916, the Public Ledger offered a handsome silver cup for the best arrangement of flowers suitable for photographing and reproduction as the front page of the Sunday pictorial section of that paper. The prize was awarded to Charles Henry Fox and the picture was a beautiful feature of the Public Ledger of April 6, 1916. It is the title page of this spring's Show Number of The Review.

PARIS GREEN STILL GOING UP.

Paris green advanced 2 cents per pound in the wholesale market during the last week. The causes for the rise, given by the manufacturers, were the high cost and smallness of the supplies of basic materials, principally arsenic. The new price basis for kegs is 34 cents per pound.

SYSTEM FOR FLORISTS.

It has been said that the flower business is a personal affair, not susceptible of systematizing like a department store; that the spasmodic character of the demand and the feast-or-famine nature of the supply make it impossible to do business by rule. But we don't see why it should.

System has been the principal means by which large establishments have been developed in other lines of production and merchandising and it seems improbable that any florist's business will develop beyond the limit of one man's capacity for detail or become a permanent asset until system has been applied to it.

That system has not sooner become a factor in the flower business has been due to three factors: The good margin of profit, which made conservation of resources unnecessary; management by the founder, who was familiar with all details, and limited size of the business, permitting personal attention. But even a small business without system bumps along with many a jolt and jerk that would be avoided if a little thought were given to avoiding the rough places. And today the florists who are making the best progress are the ones who are studying system.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The railroad strike, which lowered threateningly last week, sent a thrill through the shipping business March 16 and 17. Out-of-town buyers, afraid of not receiving their shipments, clamored frantically and all possible means were used to get orders out. City business, though not so keen as shipping trade, was nevertheless beyond complaint and March 19, in fact, saw one of the best days the trade has enjoyed in some time. Reports on St. Patrick's day business vary somewhat in character, but the prevailing opinion has it that business was good; better, however, in the shipping line than with the local trade, the day seemingly being observed more in other cities than here. Many entertain-

Order Plenty for Easter

DON'T be afraid to take hold strong for Easter—it will be the biggest business the Florists' Trade ever has seen. Order enough and order of us—do it today—and then push the selling; we do the rest.

CORSAGE FLOWERS

There has been a big increase in the call for corsages for the Easter parade—be prepared.

We offer colored Freesia, the largest supply of Valley in America, all colors of Spencer Sweet Peas and the cream of the crops of Violets—the largest and best supply of Violets we ever have had at Easter. Order enough.

EASTER LILIES

We can offer special inducements on short to medium Lilies—make it worth your while to handle a quantity.

Our Lilies are packed at the greenhouse, 100 in each wood box, so they reach you without rehandling.

FANCY CARNATIONS

You will find here the largest supply of strictly fancy Carnations in this market—and you know the later the Easter the more important it is to handle only the best grade. All colors.

RUSSELL and ROSES

Our Russells are in a class by themselves, but for that matter our Ophelia, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. Ward and Milady and Sunburst are recognized as without superiors anywhere in this country. Our "select" grade is as good as most houses offer as "specials."

BULBOUS STOCK

Plenty of Tulips, single and double; Jonquils, Daffodils, etc. Order some Darwin Tulips—all the leading Chicago retailers use our Darwins and find them indispensable.

GREENS OF ALL KINDS

Greens are scarce, but we have moderate supplies of even the scarcest kinds and can keep our customers going. Our Ferns are the best in country, $3.50 per 1000.

ments called for decorative stock, while anything that could be dyed green, as white carnations, roses or tulips, sold well. Those who held their white carnations too high found it difficult to clean up, as the buyers do not take thousand lots for dyeing.

American Beauties remain unchanged. The market on other roses appears to be possessed of more snap than the week previous and indications point to an advance in prices. The quality generally is good. The carnation market is not so satisfactory and stock is dragging somewhat, the demand being not large enough to take care of the supply.

The situation on bulbous stock is little improved; in fact, not much change from the week previous is to be noted. Jonquils are plentiful, but sell slowly, as the outdoor stock from the south has arrived. Tulips, except Darwins, also drag. Extra fine Easter lilies sell well, but shorter and poorer quality stock does not sell so readily. Callas sell fairly well, an extra heavy demand being noted March 17. More colored snapdragons now arrive and meet with a fair demand. Violets are plentiful and sell at low prices. Sweet peas give little trouble, as they are popular for corsage and many other uses.

Greens continue scarce.

Easter Prospects.

The weather has been far from spring-like, but the decreased production it has caused has only strengthened the belief that there will be abundant supplies of stock for Easter. Stock that might have been off with a warm, early spring will be in good supply.

There seems to be no possibility of a shortage in lilies. There were larger supplies of bulbs than usual this season and everybody's lilies will be in. The only trouble will be that most lots of lilies are short to medium stem.

Roses will be in good supply and of excellent quality. Carnations will not be in as heavy crop as in some other years, but no one seems to have got excited over carnations so far this year. Violets would have been pretty well over had the weather been warm, and a hot spell might yet destroy the crop, but continued cool weather will mean an unusually good supply for so late an Easter. If violets fail, there will be large supplies of sweet peas, which sell equally well for corsages for the Easter parade. Bulbous stock will be unusually plentiful for an April Easter.

Pot lilies are abundant, many plants being too short to cut. Azaleas are about done, but there are many roses. Bulbous stock in pots, pans and boxes will be the staple of the plant market.

Various Notes.

F. J. Benthey last week placed an order with the John C. Moninger Co. for material with which to rebuild at once about half the tornadoed range at Newcastle and plans are under consideration for not only rebuilding the rest of the place but for adding five houses to it.

It is an open secret that the Lord & Burnham Co. is considering extensive additions to its factory at Des Plaines. The establishment has been doubled in size since the start. The plans now under consideration grow out of the fact that the company's boiler foundries in the east have been working at capacity and the question is as to an addition in the east or the building of a new foundry at Des Plaines. If it is decided to build in the west it will mean an addition of $200,000 to the investment here.

Emil Reichling severed his connection with Peter Reinberg's March 17. Mr. Reichling was in the employ of Peter Reinberg for nearly seventeen years, the last seven years of which he was in full charge of the greenhouses.

Bad weather has hurt the market lately, but that Chicago has not had the worst of it is shown by a report to A. C. Kohlbrand, in charge of shipping for the E. C. Amling Co. One of his shipments March 15 was not tendered for delivery in a Minnesota town until March 19, four days instead of fifteen hours. Snow blockade was given as the explanation.

O. J. Friedman paid a brief business visit to Detroit last week.

In the Atlas block there are twenty concerns engaged in the trade, wholesale and retail florists, supply dealers and a seed store. To them at least it will be of interest to note that the board of review values the ground and 5-story and basement building at $1,137,924. There are some other tenants to support it, but the trade occupies nearly all the basement and second floor and part of the street floor, over one-third the space.

Among other advantages which will accrue to George Fisher & Bro., at their new quarters on the main floor at 183 North Wabash avenue, where they expect to be located by April 1, is the benefit of being able to work by daylight in nearly any weather, one side of the room being almost entirely glass while another side is supplied with two large windows.

A most attractive St. Patrick's day window display was shown at the store of George Wienhoeber last week. The exhibit included carnations and tulips dyed green, hyacinths, shamrocks and other plants, all in old-fashioned high hats made of birch bark. A made-up harp occupied the center position of the window.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Last week we had another holiday of special interest to the trade in Louisville. St. Patrick's day heretofore has been marked by the sale of a few green carnations and a few shamrocks, and in no way could be called an extra busy day. The one just passed has shown a decided change, as all hands were busy from morning until night, and an excellent demand for table decorations and corsage bouquets, as well as for appropriate boxes, was indeed gratifying to the Louisville florists. Green and white combinations were used in all forms of work, calling for quantities of carnations, narcissi, roses and hyacinths. A diminished call for the freakish green carnations has given way for some truly desirable and artistic creations, bringing out the better features of the flowers, instead of making them hideous.

Some extra fine forget-me-nots have appeared on the market and have increased sales to some extent. They are always cleaned up from day to day. Although great quantities of Spencer sweet peas are being sold every day, the demand never meets the supply. As a result many are going to the dump; the wholesale price stands at 50 cents per hundred. From all reports, it is believed that the supply of giganteum lilies will be sufficient for Easter, but at present they are hard to obtain from local growers. By reason of this the old favorites, callas, are coming into their own again, large numbers being used in the heavy funeral work of last week. Along with the spring weather comes an increasing supply of roses and carnations, but it seems the demand keeps pace with the quantities brought in.

The supply of all of the bulbous plants is on the increase, and these are meeting with a splendid sale. Many tulips are used in the numerous funeral pieces prepared daily. Landscape work is now calling the attention of those interested in that line of business. Many handsome orders have been booked, although the season has not opened yet.

Various Notes.

I wish to correct the serious mistake in this column last week. It was stated that Louis Bryant had severed his connection with Anders Rasmussen and gone into business for himself. It is his younger brother who has gone into business.

Mrs. M. D. Reimers had a handsome decoration for a large dinner and dance March 17. The popular green and white scheme was carried out.

An especially fine bench of callas was seen at the establishment of P. A. Reynolds. Large numbers of fine flowers stood above the glossy foliage, although the stock was burned in places from a freeze during the extremely cold weather a few weeks ago. Mr. Reynolds states that he has been most successful with all kinds of bulbous plants.

Mrs. H. G. Walker is rapidly recover-

The Market.

Business was good last week, the principal activity being funeral work, though St. Patrick's day created a brief and vigorous demand for shamrocks, and green carnations, roses, etc. Prices as a rule are well shot in pieces, there being a surplus of bulbous stock of all kinds. The Market.

An unexpectedly strong tone prevails in the cut flower market. Business is active, at fair prices. There is a moderate supply of flowers that generally sell readily. Easter lilies have been somewhat dull. The poorer tulips are neglected. Daffodils sell cheaply, but they sell, often in thousand lots, to many usually moderate buyers. Violets are cheap. Beauties have declined in price, a sure sign of an oncoming crop. Other roses are holding their own in price. Sweet peas continue fine; they realize prices that are moderate considering the extra good quality. White carnations advanced under the influence of St. Patrick's day demand to $4 and $5, a few even to $6 per hundred.

Really good Asparagus plumosus sprays have been selling at a premium.

Easter Plants.

The following description was gathered during a half-day spent at three places devoted to raising Easter plants for use all over the country. The staple varieties of plants, such as lilies, hydrangeas and spiræas, predominated on all three places. For that reason the novelties and specialties are mentioned first in the description of each, less attention being given to the mainstays of the business. The condition of the stock on all these places, three weeks before Easter, leads to the belief that the quality of that of former years will be equaled, and probably excelled.

It seemed hardly possible that the large range of the Robert Craig Co., at Norwood, had been through a period of extremely unfavorable weather conditions, so smiling was the stock in the greenhouses. The all-the-year-around specialties, crotons and dracænas, were in extra fine form. The crotons showed surprisingly bright colors on the young plants, while the dracænas made it evident that roping off must be rigidly enforced in order to reserve enough plants for the larger sizes.

shades of yellow. This novelty of last year is peculiarly suitable for Easter. There is a sentiment about the primrose that is enhanced by the richness of these shades of yellow, some delicate, some striking. It may be remembered that when these yellow primroses made their appearance at the National Flower Show in Philadelphia last March, they received a gold medal. The crowded condition of the hall prevented many people from seeing them, because they were removed to the lobby to make room for the sweet peas. Today these primroses are the glory of Norwood, a sight not quickly forgotten. The next triumph of culture at this place is seen in the Otaheite orange; not just a few of these shapely little plants, with their exquisitely fragrant flowers, but rows, rows and rows of them, as even as soldiers, and all well filled with blossoms. An old friend revived is Impatiens Sultani; it is well liked here. Another reintroduced plant is Pelargonium Easter Greeting.

The roses promise well. There is a great quantity of the rambler type, though Crimson Rambler itself belongs to the past. Robert Craig says Tausendschon is the best. He places R. excelsa next. When asked about the merits of trained roses, Mr. Craig said he favored carefully trained baskets and globes in rose plants, but that he thought the fancy shapes unsatisfactory. There are a few of these fancy trained roses, but most of them are just good, honest plants of the strong-growing varieties, as well as of their dwarf cousins. The timing of roses, that most difficult feat, appeared to be well done, particularly so when considering the dark weather of the last six weeks. Even under the most favorable conditions, a good deal of shifting is necessary where a number of varieties are grown.

The lilies are a clean lot of giganteums, well flowered and well timed. The hydrangeas run from medium sizes to shapely pedestal-grown specimens. The French varieties have evidently come to stay as Easter plants.

Godfrey Aschmann's Easter Stock.

The cinerarias are in particularly fine shape at the well known Ontario street place. There is an assortment of colors and types in the good old-fashioned, half dwarf cineraries that is most pleasing. There are solid colors and bright colors with white eyes, and here and there unusual shades seldom seen in cinerarias, which give variety. The plants are well timed and shapely.

Azalea Indica is a strong plant this Easter. There are lots of them in the popular sizes. Considering the difficulties in Belgium and in transit, it was surprising to find so many good azaleas here.

John Godfrey Aschmann prefers Lilium multiflorum when it comes true. He grows part multiflorum and part giganteum, to give diversity. The former are most free-flowering; the latter most reliable. There are lots of spiræas just

There is a look about the place at Second and Bristol streets that pleases the lover of plants. Things are growing there. The houses are full of good, salable stock.

The azaleas are in strong supply. Three-quarters of them are that good standard variety, sometimes called red, sometimes rose-pink, Madame Van der Cruyssen. The remaining quarter is made up of good standard sorts. The azaleas fill several houses. They were coming in naturally, with little heat.

American Beauty roses have often been talked about and experimented with by the Aschmann brothers. Now they have a fine batch of well-timed plants of this great rose.

The hydrangeas show that the four French varieties grown are highly esteemed. The plants are evenly set with buds that will develop in time easily. Otaksa shares with the French varieties in favor. Spiræas are excellent, considering the unhappy European condition. There was a pretty block of Begonia luminosa. The bulbs have wintered well. Great numbers of potted daffodils and hyacinths were just coming in from outside.

Last come the lilies. There are 8,000 of them, all Lilium giganteum—an extremely nice looking lot of plants that range in sizes from short, through medium, to tall. Perhaps the impression made by these lilies is increased by seeing first what Aschmann Bros. call their culls. They were pretty fair; then their stock of medium height, and lastly their special lilies, which were best of all.

Various Notes.

J. William Colflesh's Sons have a nice lot of Easter stock. Their miniature hyacinths in rimless 8-inch pans are especially good.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has received a large order for plants from Mexico City, suggestive of confidence of peace in that quarter.

Paul R. Klingsporn, of Chicago, has been revisiting the scenes of his youth.

Mr. Klingsporn is manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, vice-president of the Chicago Florists' Club and as an S. A. F. official he visited the New York show.

Edward Dornheim has resigned his position with Berger Bros., to embark in business as a grower with Clarence Alwine at Alden, under the firm name of Alwine & Dornheim.

The M. Rice Co. has been working overtime to get out orders. February was this concern's best early-in-the-year month until now, but March bids fair to eclipse it in volume of business.

Fred Shesky expects to retire from his greenhouses at Holland, Pa., this week.

James J. Karins has returned to Riverton, N. J., from his recent business trip.

Edward Reid has some of the finest peas seen here.

The spring show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held in Horticultural hall March 20 to 22. It was largely made up of Easter flowering plants and bulbous stock, mainly from the private estates around Philadelphia, with a few commercial exhibits.

The Market.

The last month has been an unusual one, the weather having been most erratic. A week ago we were in the throes of a flood; the week before that we enjoyed the heaviest snowfall of thirty years, at a time when we usually have an abundance of flowers of all kinds outdoors. Outdoor flowers have seldom been so slow to open as this year. I have kept a record for the last eight years of the blooming time of the flowers that compete with the florists' products, and, while the blooms were later than usual last season, they are still later this spring. As a result there has been a heavy demand for all the bulbous stock forced in the city. One of the largest growers remarked that his bulbous stock had been his salvation this spring, for without it he would never have been able to fill all his orders. We had a light flurry of snow this morning, March 18. Daffodils are still scarce outdoors, while most of the hyacinths as yet are not in bloom.

It has been too wet for much work of any kind outdoors. The situation is becoming serious, as gardeners and farmers have been unable to attend to their early planting and soon it will be too late for several of the crops.

As to trade conditions, there is a continuous and strong demand for flowers, perhaps as good as there ever was in the history of the trade. Besides, there is an ever-growing wholesale shipping business. The future of the business appears especially bright this spring.

Various Notes.

The death of Joseph Browne has left the Lischey Gardens in a rather uncertain position. The decedent had no son to carry on the business, and his widow is, as yet, undecided what to do. She is continuing the business at present with the assistance of the old helpers. Mr. Browne had a large and growing business and the establishment is one of the oldest in the entire south, having been established long before the war.

of its active head, T. C. Joy, has shown no loss in any appreciable way. In fact, the business never before was so good as during this winter, either in the growing end or in the sales department. The only change in policy is that the concern will discontinue the growing of vegetables, especially potatoes, and will grow no ornamental shrubbery for the present. The company has the widest range of bulbous stock ever seen in the city. The spectator is pleased with the display of forced campernelle jonquils, both double and single, and with the various Barrii varieties. They all force easily and come early. The price of the bulbs is lower than that of the usual varieties grown, but the varieties produce more flowers.

Geny Bros. have had attractive windows of late. Anyone passing their store cannot help but be attracted by the riot of color. They have some good rhododendrons, but their roses and bulbous stock are what make the show. Oscar Geny is gradually improving in health under a line of treatment that he hopes will fully restore him to health in time. He has been partially incapacitated for business for two or three years.

long time. Window displays count, there is no doubt of that. At Haury's one always expects good pot plants and made-up boxes. This does not mean that their cut flowers are not right, for they are, but pot plants have always been their long suit.

I was unable to visit the McIntyre Bros. place, but I understand that their orchids are becoming more of a feature every year. They grow more orchids than any other establishment in the city, and now that the plants are becoming better established they are giving better results. F. B.

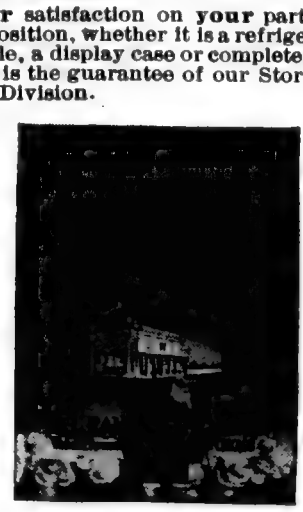
The Market.



There is a plentiful supply of all kinds of bulbous stock in the market. Both cut stock and potted blooming plants are selling exceptionally well, in spite of the Lenten season. Roses are increasing in supply, thanks to the warmer weather and larger amount of sunshine. American Beauties are in larger supply, and prices are much better. Russell roses are fairly plentiful and the prices obtained are good. Ophelia is reaching the market in splendid form; the same is true of Shawyer. Carnations are in large supply, but the prices are holding up well. Easter lilies are increasing in numbers and callas are holding their tremely well; several florists had to reorder on them. They brought 50 and 60 cents.

A good Easter business is anticipated by growers and retailers and great preparations are under way for the day. Heavy orders are being booked for Easter delivery, the stock of one well known grower being entirely sold for Easter. According to the local growers, Easter lilies will not be any too plentiful this year. Azaleas, cyclamens, primroses and rhododendrons will also be on the short side. On account of the present demand, there is not expected to be an oversupply of bulbous stock. Roses will be scarce and prices will be high, the present conditions indicate.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club was held at the greenhouses of the New Haven Floral Co., at New Haven, Ind., March 14, President W. J. Vesey, Jr., occupying the chair. This was an important business meeting of the club. On account of the recent organization of the club, it was decided that the secretary write letters to all eligible members in the surrounding towns, inviting them to become associate members of the organization.

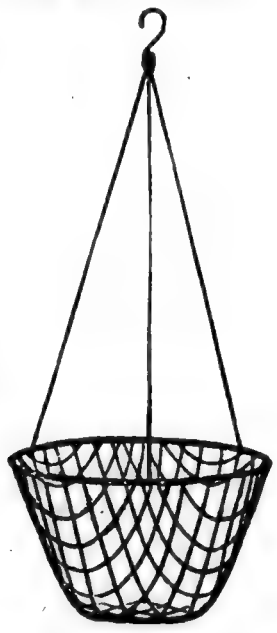
A motion was decided that the club members advertise coöperatively for Mothers' day, and that a committee be appointed by the president to take charge of this matter. It also was moved to hold exhibits of cut flowers at four meetings during the year. The plans for the annual flower show, which will be held this fall, were discussed, and a committee was appointed by the president to take care of the management and details. An animated discussion with regard to raising prices for Easter on all cut flowers, blooming and foliage plants followed, and prices were verbally agreed on by all the florists of the organization. Refreshments were served during the social hour that followed the business meeting, Herman Leitz and Henry Freese performing the duties of hosts. The attendance was exceptionally large. The next meeting of the club will be held at the residence of Judge W. J. Vesey, on the third Wednesday in April, April 18, since the second Wednesday comes during Easter week.

Various Notes.

Mrs. R. W. Doswell is suffering from stomach trouble and probably will submit to an operation shortly. The Doswell Floral Co. is showing some splendid Spencer sweet peas at its greenhouses. It has some excellent stock for Easter, including some fine Tausendschon and rambler roses. The company enjoys a considerable out-of-town trade, and has an advantageous location, opposite the interurban station. Miss Bonnie Doswell is now at the store the entire time.

The Flick Floral Co. had charge of the decorations for the spring opening of a large men's furnishing store last week. Many baskets and vases were filled with Easter lilies, Shawyer and Ophelia roses and spring flowers. Thousands of roses and spring flowers were given away to the public. Miss Marie Markey, bookkeeper for the Flick Floral Co., has been on the sick list.



Mrs. Henry Freese, of the New Haven Floral Co., is confined to her home by a severe attack of tonsillitis and bronchitis.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey recently purchased another collection of orchid plants, at a cost of $5,500. This firm has sold more than $23,000 worth of orchid blooms since last August. Their collection is one of the largest in the country.

Florists who went to New Haven, Ind., last week, to attend the meeting of the Florists' Club, were: Clem Lanternier, E. Wenninghoff, Frank J. Knecht, Mrs. R. W. Doswell, W. J. Vesey, Jr., R. W. Doswell, Will Doswell, Mrs. Richard Blossom and Miss Marguerite Flick. R. F.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Local florists differ in their opinion as to St. Patrick's day business. Some say that it was not up to the standard of previous years, while others claim that their business was exceptionally good. Perhaps this was mostly the result of advantageous location. All the florists seem to feel, however, that the green carnation has lost some of its popularity.

Carnations are more plentiful and bring from $2 to $4; splits make $1.50 per hundred. Most of the white varieties bring $4, thanks to the large demand for funeral work. Roses are still in short supply. Lilies, however, both Easter and calla, are more plentiful and make from $1 to $1.50 per dozen. Sweet peas remain popular and plentiful, with the extra fancies at $1.50. Freesias are nearly over with, but more snapdragons are coming in to fill the gap. Bulbous stock is in good supply and receives great attention. Jonquils are good property at $2.50 and $3 per hundred.

March continues cold and blustery, although the sun has been more regular in its appearance. Most of the Easter stock is now in and the indications are that there will be a full supply of everything.

Miscellaneous stock includes mignonette, and violets, which are equal to the demand, yellow daisies, pansies and calendulas. Potted plants have been especially attractive and popular this season. Hyacinths have moved extremely well, while azaleas, primroses, tulips, begonias and cinerarias have found a ready sale. A new item in the potted class was a few excellent genistas, which sold immediately. Green goods continue in limited supply, but prospects are bright for a larger quantity as warmer weather arrives.

A Visit to Newcastle.

A visit to Peter Weiland's range, at Newcastle, was pleasurable and profitable. There the carnations, in numerous colors and varieties, including P. J.

A Wonderful Easter Novelty

will without doubt "bee" the largest selling florists' novelty that has yet been used.

The "Bee" is the newest, most artistic and attractive thing you can have in your store.

The "Bee" is by nature a flower lover, and wherever you see a "bee" you see flowers. Then why not have a "bee" buzzing around the flowers of milady's corsages, among the potted plants, and on handles of baskets, or on vases and bowls?

The latest table decorations will literally be "bee" hives, as they are used on water glasses, plates; even on the fruit you will find them. Now then, can you fail to see the usefulness of the busy "Bee?" You'll say it is a "Busy Bee" when you see the many attractive ways it can be used. The "Bee" comes on 8-in. flexible wire for working in with your corsages—$2.00 per dozen, $23.00 per gross. Or you can have the "Bee" just alone without wire for $1.80 per dozen, $20.50 per gross. We guarantee this article never to have been shown before current issue of our catalogue. Then too, it's just the most natural new thing in the world—which suggests the coming season. SAMPLE, POSTPAID, 20c - Stamps accepted.

Olinger's new Radium, were in fine condition. Several large houses devoted entirely to sweet peas were a wonderful sight—butterfly sweet peas of all colors and shades reaching clear up to the roof. The people at Weiland's are congratulating themselves that they were out of the recent tornado's path. An employee told how the tornado was headed toward the range, but swerved when it hit the valley. Two girls employed by Mr. Weiland lost their homes and one boy had his legs broken.

The Heller Bros. Co. rose houses were also visited. Russell and Ophelia are especially promising. Several beds of grafted roses are an interesting sight.

Of interest, also, are some new roses which are being tried out.

The establishment of P. J. Lynch, although still standing, is without glass, and the men have been shipping the saved stock back to West Grove, Pa.

Various Notes.

Last week was a rather disastrous one for the florists in the state. Kokomo and Elwood growers experienced a severe sleet storm, while Noblesville, Anderson and Greenwood florists passed through a terrific hail storm. Newcastle, as reported in last week's Review, was visited by a tornado. Indianapolis florists were more favored and suffered only from heavy rainfall and strong winds. Bishop, of Greenwood, lost about 400 panes of glass; Heller, Lynch and Benthey, all of Newcastle, as illustrated in last week's issue, suffered losses; John Rieman, of Indianapolis, had a big plate glass window blown out, damaging considerable stock.

Edward Reinkin, recently proprietor of the Reinkin Floral Co., now is with the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co.

A. F. J. Baur has been in St. Louis attending the flower show there, at which he acted as judge.

The Oilar Flower Store, formerly conducted under the title of Benson-Oilar Co. and recently taken over by Marion Peake, has discontinued business. The entire stock was sold at auction March 13.

L. F. Benson is erecting a store room in front of his greenhouses at Twenty-second street and Park avenue.

John Heidenreich's hydrangeas are in extra fine shape.

Jacob Meyers, formerly with the A. Wiegand's Sons Co., has accepted a position as head gardener and landscape artist on the private estate of James Allison.

John Grande, Jr., has a fine line of lilies for Easter.

The city market enjoyed a good St. Patrick's day business. Plants were in favor and a large number were moved at fair prices. Baur & Steinkamp had quite a run on their little pots of shamrocks.

Pahud Bros. had an attractive St. Patrick's day window, featuring green carnations and green sweet peas, set in a background of smilax. E. E. T.

Canton, O.—A contract for the material and erection of a greenhouse on his property south of the town has been given to the Lord & Burnham Co. by O. C. Barber.

Dillsburg, Pa.—There is going to be a hustle and bustle in these parts about April 1, when T. W. Kerr starts his erection of two houses, each 21x100 feet. The A. Dietsch Co., of Chicago, furnished the materials.

Des Moines, Ia.—Plans have been completed for the erection this spring of a range of houses on Beaver avenue. Materials for the houses and heating plant will be furnished by the J. C. Moninger Co., of Chicago. There is a Des Moines Seed Co. and a Des Moines Nursery Co., but no Des Moines Floral Co., so John M. Kunesh has chosen the last-named title for his business.

The Market.

Business conditions were good last week and worked up to a splendid climax March 17. With rather disagreeable weather intervening, St. Patrick's day trade was considerably larger than in previous years. A large quantity of green carnations, tulips and roses were disposed of, as well as potted shamrocks and other novelties. The Lenten season so far has not made much difference to Rochester florists. Weddings and social functions have slackened some, but funeral work holds up well. The daily consignments are large and an immense quantity of bulbous stock arrives. However, it is cleared nicely and little stock goes to waste. Fine Sir Watkin, Golden Spur and Emperor jonquils reach us and sell fast. Double daffodils have slackened up considerably, but the demand is small, anyway. Tulips of all shades are plentiful. Roses also are quite plentiful and fine stock is seen in Russell, Maryland, Hoosier Beauty, Montrose, Ophelia and Ward. The demand for each variety is quite good. American Beauties are not overplentiful and only the extra long grade is handled. The supply of carnations has been quite large, with a heavy demand on whites. The prices on them are fairly good. Sweet peas are plentiful and sell readily. A shortage on whites and lavenders is still noticed. The demand for orchids and gardenias is not large. Valley has not been obtainable for about a week. Mignonette sells fairly well. Freesia moves slowly. Forget-me-nots sell well. Violets have not moved fast during the week, but the Saturday specials cleared a large quantity. There are many Easter and calla lilies on the market at this season and they are being used extensively for funeral work. The stores are well filled with blooming plants of every description and the demand for them has been quite large.

Various Notes.

The St. Patrick's day windows as decorated by the downtown florists were attractive and undoubtedly brought good returns. George T. Boucher showed potted shamrocks in a harp frame. The Rochester Floral Co. used a large shamrock leaf made of green frieze and filled with shamrocks. H. E. Wilson displayed green pigs, snakes, etc., with vases of green flowers. Keller's setting was of vases of flowers with an Irish harp as the center of attraction. All stores report good business for this event.

James Vick's Sons are unusually busy at this time at the warehouse. The mail order business is considerably heavier than in previous years. The greatest problem that confronts them at their seed farms is the shortage of men. They have purchased additional land and also a new tractor.

Charles H. Vick and Colin B. Ogston were judges at the New York flower show. A delegation of about a dozen florists from Rochester also attended the show.

Among the visitors to the trade this week were Robert Shoch, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, and David Scott, of Corfu, N. Y. Mr. Scott is sending in some fine stock just now. It includes snapdragon, mignonette, calendulas, etc.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held its monthly meeting Tuesday, March 13. The usual business was transacted. Refreshments were served.

The regular meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at the Musicians' Headquarters March 12. It was carnation night and beautiful specimens of White Wonder, Nancy and Delight with stems thirty-four inches in length were exhibited by Harry Merritt, of Irondequoit. The report of the Retail Florists' committee was given. The raise of prices for the renting of palms has been contemplated here for some time and it has been adopted, the raise to take place immediately. The larly when other economic conditions are considered. Prices are about the same as those of a year ago, but with everything the florist uses advanced in price, profits are necessarily reduced. The outlook, however, is not at all bad and everyone is optimistic over the coming Easter trade.

Roses are quite abundant and are of extra fine quality. Few Beauties are seen, but the demand for them is not what it was a few years ago and they are not missed as they would have been before the advent of Hadley, Russell, Ophelia and other present-day leaders. Double White Killarney is now extra fine. Ward is also a popular spring rose. Prices are about the same as last week. Carnations have averaged a little better than a week ago. There was a good call for whites March 17 for dyeing purposes. I am glad that some of our best retailers decline to handle these mutilated flowers. It is discreditable that so many continue to carry them with their natural flowers. Violets are abundant and average 50 cents per hundred. So are English primroses. Dutch bulbous stock is at flood tide. A few varieties of these not seen at every stall are poetaz, Sulphur Phœnix and Glory of Leiden narcissi and Muscari Heavenly Blue.

The supply of snapdragons is increasing, but pink is the only color in much demand. Lilies are not abundant; Formosa is seen on some stands. These, as a rule, are of poor quality this season, with shorter stems and smaller flowers than usual. Valley is abundant, but of poor quality in the main. There is a feeble demand for gardenias, but cattleyas move fairly well.

Green stock is temporarily scarce and sells well. For St. Patrick's day a fair number of shamrocks were offered and sold, but the demand for these seems to show a steady decline.

Various Notes.

The big spring show at Horticultural hall, which opened March 21, promises to eclipse any Boston has held in the past, and a record attendance is assured. Work on Farquhar's garden is now well advanced. This will be one of the great features of the show and seems likely to surpass all the company's previous efforts. Entries in all classes are more numerous than ever and the committee will find it difficult to properly house everything. In addition to special music, practical horticultural talks are being arranged for, competent men forming an information committee, whose duty it will be to answer all questions. Some fine novelties are promised for this show.

Henry R. Comley is showing some extra fine amaryllises, clivias and Roman anemones, which he has a large call for, and large-flowered gladioli, magnolias and other flowers not seen in the average store. Business here has been good during the last winter. Mr. Comley spent a few days in New York during the Grand Central Palace show.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has 10,000 lilies in fine condition for Easter.

A. M. HOSP, Leading Florist

He is cutting a fine lot of valley daily. He grows cold storage giganteum lilies in quantity and has a supply of these the year around.

At Penn's March 17 one window was loosely and charmingly arranged with ericas in baskets, with a background of white marguerites in pots. Other baskets, of hyacinths, irises and hydrangeas, were effective. This week they are featuring photographs of weddings and show a fine lot of brides' bouquets. Many orders have been booked by this store for Easter weddings and still more for June. Penn's have a fine exhibit at the spring show this week.

Neil Boyle, of Malden, had numerous visitors to his greenhouses March 18 to see his Easter lilies. Of these he has 15,000 in splendid condition. His rose houses looked well, Double White Killarney, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty being specially good.

Visitors to the New York spring flower show were less numerous this year, on account of Boston having a big spring show of its own.

P. Welch and one or two others went to the Philadelphia rose show this week.

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, is one of the local growers who flowers Marguerite Mrs. Sander unusually well in A large attendance is anticipated at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club field day with the W. W. Edgar Co., at Waverley, March 24. All going by electric road should take tunnel trains for Cambridge at 1:30 p. m., changing at Harvard square for Waverley cars, which stop in front of the greenhouses.

Wax Bros. are already booking some good wedding orders for both Easter and June. Their window display includes everything that is new and up-to-date among flowers.

At Horticultural hall March 17 a lecture on orcharding in the south and west was given by Prof. F. C. Sears. The closing lecture of the year, on alpine plants, an illustrated one, by Mrs. Louis Chanler, of New York, should prove interesting on account of the increase in the popularity of these plants.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, June 19 to 21, 1917.

TAKING it by and large, the seed business never was better than it is today. That it will be a big season is certain.

SEEDSMEN find it difficult to supply many of their wants, but the great body of planters has no trouble—there is "something just as good."

IT is estimated by a well informed Hollander that the failure to receive the spring importations will keep about 8,000,000 gladiolus bulbs off the American market this season.

EVERYBODY has planted or plans to plant potatoes this season. In the southern states the acreage is estimated by the Department of Agriculture to have increased seventeen per cent.

ONE man's guess is as good as another's, but the opinion seems to prevail in New York that there not only will be no spring importations from Holland but that there will be no Dutch bulbs this year.

No shipments of gladiolus bulbs or nursery stock have left Holland since those packed at the middle of January, for the Nieuw Amsterdam January 28. If these finally reach their destinations one can imagine the condition bulbs, boxwoods, etc., will be in.

THE prices of Holland bulbs have begun to waver. Regardless of the size of the crop, the United States is the only country in which it is possible to book advance orders and some of the salesmen have found the pickings so poor they are willing to talk price.

THE home garden movement, and the vacant-lot, community-gardening agitation as an offset to the high cost of living, has brought such increased demands for free seeds that the share of the government purchases available to the Department of Agriculture has been exhausted.

THERE is a strong demand for canners' kinds of peas and many canners are ordering the seed to be shipped by express. Probably the largest express order for seeds sent out in some time was received by the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, last week, from an eastern canner who ordered an entire carload of peas to be sent by express, the charges on which amounted to over $600.

CHICAGO is the great onion set center and the approach of a new crop year is sending the operators into the country to arrange for acreage. They find the growers reluctant to close, even at prices considerably above those of other years. Last year's small crop paid little profit to the growers, but the operators have made large profits, with the result that many men who plant for the crop think they should have an assured minimum and a better price if conditions warrant it at the date of delivery.

WILLIAM C. LANGBRIDGE, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., who has been seriously ill in a New York hospital, is reported to be convalescing.

NOTHING like the recent lack of communication has been known since the Holland salesmen began visiting America. The head of a corps of eight salesmen has had no mail from the house since January 10. He knows the house had 600 cases of goods on the Nieuw Amsterdam and had a cable that they had been transshipped to the Waaldyk, which sailed, but nothing further has been heard, either from the house or from the Waaldyk. Under the circumstances the travelers here know little of the course of the markets in Holland.

BRITAIN PROHIBITS EXPORTS.

A cable March 13 brought word of additions to the British embargo list of May 10, 1916. The list of articles the exportation of which to any destination now is prohibited includes the following seeds: Carrot, cauliflower, kohlrabi, mangold, onion, parsnip, swede, turnip. The exportation of raffia also is forbidden. Palm seeds can be exported only to British colonies.

Heretofore carrot, kohlrabi, mangold, onion, swede and turnip seeds could be exported to British colonies.

FRENCH BULBS.

The Union Horticole reports that the crop prospects on French bulbs are more uncertain than ever before. They cannot give any definite forecast of prices, as they sometimes have done in previous years, except to say that Paper White grandiflora, 13-ctm. and up, probably will start selling at 30 francs per thousand and white Roman hyacinths, 12-ctm. and up, at 130 francs per thousand. Nothing definite, however, will be known until the syndicate meets sometime in April.

Hollanders interested in the buying and selling of French bulbs have until now not been allowed to enter France this season, which would, of course, restrict the early buying up of stocks by Hollanders, and its usual driving up of prices. Early buyers naturally imparted a certain confidence to the French growers that their stocks were in good demand, and due to the absence of these early buyers this year, it is quite possible that the syndicate will fix the prices at a more reasonable figure than is now indicated.

NEWS OF IMPORTS WITHHELD.

Since the break in diplomatic relations with Germany, the federal government, so far as it has the power to do so, has established a censorship on news which might be useful to the officials in Berlin. In line with this policy, the Treasury Department has ordered that manifests of incoming ships, including American coastwise, be withheld. This order will make it impossible for The Review to continue to publish reports of the imports of European bulbs, plants, seeds, etc., which were taken from the manifests of ships arriving in American ports.

The order is being objected to strongly by persons in the trade in New York and other cities on the Atlantic seaboard. Heretofore they have been able to secure this information by telephoning the officials at the customhouses. Now that the ban is on, an appeal will be made to the Treasury Department to release information contained in the manifests.

Monthly statistics on imports and exports will be continued by the government, but that will be the extent of the shipping news given to the public.

NASHVILLE NOTES.

The seed business opened rather slowly this spring, because of the unseasonable weather, and has never been heavy at any time this season, according to Nashville seedsmen. The demand thus far has been heaviest for garden seeds in small lots for the family garden. While farm seeds have moved slowly thus far, judging from sales to date there will be more vegetable gardens in this vicinity this summer than ever before in its history.

Mr. Wood, the head of the Cumberland Seed Co., has been ill for some time and is not able to give much attention to his business yet. His son is handling things in the interim.

McKay, Reese & Co. report that cow peas and soy beans are harder to get than they have been for a number of years and that even the present high prices are bound to go higher when planting time arrives.

C. C. Waggoner & Co. are developing a mail order business this year. They are the only mail order seed house in Nashville. F. B.

BALTIMORE.

Five in One.

March 12 I took a walk up North Charles street to the "300" block. The object of my promenade was to make an engagement with John Cook to look his houses over, and afterward to tell something of them; but I found that Mr. Cook was still in Florida, where he has been all winter for his health. So this treat will have to be put off for a time. However, Miss Cook was in charge, and I think she is as much of a rosarian as her father. She may not know so much about producing new varieties, but, believe me, she does know all about the qualities of a rose from a saleslady's standpoint. She showed me two vases of roses of their own production, which could not be surpassed. There was Francis Scott Key, about the same shade as American Beauty, with fine stems and splendid foliage. It is better when it is full blown than in the bud, and she assured me that its keeping qualities could not be beaten. Another was My Maryland, that fine salmon pink. Too much cannot be said of these two varieties. There was a window display that was most attractive. It was the first balmy spring day of the season, so spring flowers were featured exclusively, arranged is baskets and harmonizing in colors. The arrangement of the whole denoted the work of an artist. The thing that struck me most forcibly was that, while the whole effect was good, there was no crowding.

In this block there are five florists, so that it might well be called the "flower" block. They are Feast & Sons, Halliday Bros., E. A. Seidewitz, W. J. Halliday and John Cook. But time would not permit me to call on all of them, so I just took notes of the windows in passing. Mr. Seidewitz had an attractive window with an oil painting in the center. The subject was "Tulip Time in Holland." It was a field of tulips with the proverbial Dutch windmill in the distance, by Mr. Seidewitz. W. J. Halliday had a window in yellow, in which jonquils predominated. Feast & Sons had primroses and azaleas, with a large vase of Harrisii. Halliday Bros. had Harrisii lilies, snapdragons and violets.

When you put five florists with the reputation of the above in one city block, you can imagine that the display effect is striking, one that flower-lovers would go some distance to see.

Various Notes.

The annual election of officers of the Florists' Club for the ensuing year, held Monday, March 12, resulted as follows: President, F. C. Bauer; vice-president, J. A. Nuth; secretary, N. F. Flitton; financial secretary, G. Talbott; treasurer, F. G. Burger; librarian, C. W. Wagner. After the election the thirtieth anniversary of the club's organization was celebrated with a banquet at the Hotel Rennert. The tables were adorned with carnations. I. H. Moss was toastmaster.

Prof. T. B. Symons, of the faculty of the Maryland Agricultural College, in his remarks urged the florists to develop a bulb industry, the foreign supply having been greatly demoralized by the European war. Besides Prof. Symons, who was the principal speaker, R. L. Graham, Richard Vincent and others spoke. The menu was a credit to the Hotel Rennert and was much enjoyed by everyone present.

Friends of Will and Harry Lehr will be sorry to hear of the death of their father, William F. Lehr, who passed away at the ripe old age of 92 years. Mr. Lehr started business in this country in 1850, having learned the trade in Germany, where for a time he was gardener on one of the estates of Bismarck. After coming to this country he located outside of Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, where the boys now have one of the finest rose ranges in the state. Tate.

Time-tested Varieties

VARIETIES that have won their place high in the favor of flower lovers, and held it against all comers, season after season.

What we say about them might be biased; what others say, is not. We are continually getting such letters as this:

THE CONARD & JONES CO., WEST GROVE, PA.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

While the Lenten season does not make so much difference here as in some sections, there was some falling off this week, not only in local but also in shipping business. The business lacked snap and some stock had to be dumped. White carnations sold well for St. Patrick's day, the custom of dyeing these and other flowers green seeming to gain in popularity, rather than lose. Regarding stock, it is in much the same condition as last reported. Violets have dropped off, both in supply and demand, and Cecile Brunner roses are coming in more heavily and are useful for corsage bouquets.

Indoor roses are better than they were and the quantity in the market is more commensurate with the demand. Prices may rule a little lower for a time, but Easter, of course, will have a hardening effect on the market. So far it looks as though Easter lilies will be about equal to the demand, there being about enough good stock to supply it. The poorest stock, no doubt, will be in abundance. Spiræas and azaleas also will be to the fore, but there will be no great surplus of either, according to present appearances. Greens of the better kinds are still on the scarce side.

Various Notes.

W. Armacost & Co. have purchased five acres of additional land to the east of their greenhouses. This, with the two acres recently covered with lath houses for growing plumosus, brings the total area up to seventeen and one-half acres. The new land at first will be used as a dump for the old soil and providing new soil for the rose houses, but the intention is to build on it.

The Redondo Floral Co. force is working overtime on decorations. Will Linsenbard, who has been with the firm for several years, has the sympathy of all in the death of his father, who passed away this week at the ripe age of 80 years. Prima Donna roses are great favorites here and large numbers of them are handled daily.

F. Borden puts on quite a few frills, thanks to his ability to reduce the H. C. L. He is a vegetable grower and a non-smoker.

Always looking for opportunities to better its service, the H. N. Gage Co. has secured seven and one-half acres of the rich bottom land in the San Gabriel valley, not far from Covina, for bulb growing. Great as their success has been at Montebello, the Gage brothers realize that there are some soils better suited to certain classes of bulbous stock, and this has led to the new addition. The ground has a house on it and pipes for irrigating it have already been laid. H. N. says that the company is completely sold out of the big lot of ferns grown in the new houses, but that their men are constantly bringing in new stock and will soon have plenty of finished plants again.

After filling an important position in the art department of one of the large film companies here, C. Lewis has returned to L. H. Freeman's store, where he will remain probably over Easter, unless he is called back to his work in the pictures.

J. D. Meriweather, manager of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, at Fresno, was in the city this week.

Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge, Ill., has arrived here for a short visit, looking well and hearty.

J. Onishi, of the United Flower & Supply Co., of San Francisco, is in the city.

Forced bulbous stock in pots is especially good now at Wright's Flower Shop, the Darwin tulips showing fine color and length of stem. A large demand for baskets has been noted here of late.

S. Murata, of S. Murata & Co., is going around with a smile these days, the occasion being the arrival of a 10-pound baby girl at the Murata home at Montebello. At the store the usual large shipments of cut flowers and plants are leaving daily.

As usual, the Hillcrest Nursery, in South Ardmore, has a fine lot of Easter lilies, timed apparently to the day and full of blooms. Grown wide apart, the plants have held every leaf and are dwarf and most satisfactory in every way. A nice stock of Begonia Rex also is on hand here.

Though not saying much, the L. A. Floral Co. is doing a good shipping business these days, considering the fact that it is Lent. P. Miller, of this concern, reports quite a run on indoor-grown giant African marigolds, which sell at a good price.

Arnold Ringier and Mrs. Ringier, of Chicago, left here March 15 for various points by slow stages, en route to Chicago. Mr. Ringier was feeling fine and said the rest and change had done him much good. Mrs. Ringier, who was unfortunately confined to her bed for a good deal of the time while they were here, has quite recovered her health.

Everyone feels sorry for the well known members of the firm of Morris & Snow, seedsmen, whose place of business on Main street was completely gutted by fire on the morning of March 15. The fire was in the old Rosslyn hotel building and, as nearly as a spectator could judge, Morris & Snow's store seemed to have the worst of it. Coming as it did, right in the middle of the firm's busiest season, makes it all the more regrettable. Apparently nothing but a few bags of seeds were saved.

The Broadway Florist establishment is a busy place these days. Since taking hold of this, the enterprising proprietor, D. Stathatos, has made a wonderful change in the appearance of the place, and, judging by the appearance of things and the large staff that is kept busy all the time, he does a large business.

Albert Beverley, of the Mission Oak Nursery, of Santa Barbara, drove down to Los Angeles this week and returned March 15. He is a considerable buyer of stock, both here and elsewhere, and this, as well as his genial personality, always assures him a welcome.

Hills' Nursery had the contract from a local bank for several thousand shamrocks in small pots. These are given away the day before St. Patrick's day to all comers.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Preparations for Easter are beginning to assume large proportions here, and all branches of the business are looking forward to a prosperous season. Eastern shipping orders received augur well that more California flowers will be shipped east this Easter than ever before, and the local retailers consider conditions favorable for a fine business. The growers hope to have plenty of good stock. From present indications there will be a fine cut of roses. The supply has improved both in quantity and quality during the last week and continued improvement is expected until after Easter. A few long-stemmed American Beauties are arriving, after having been off crop for some time. There is an abundance of medium and shorter stock. Russell holds an enviable position, the blooms being about the finest ever offered in this market. It clears without any difficulty, at firm prices.

There is some difference of opinion regarding carnations. The supply has been lighter since the first of the week and the average quality rather poor. Some hold that the crop is going off and that the supply will be none too plentiful for Easter, while others attribute the deterioration to the fact that the growers were holding back for St. Patrick's day. Good white stock has been at a premium.

Lilies are excellent and it is hoped the quality will hold up for Easter. No fear of a shortage is felt, as various growers have large supplies in sight. Outdoor stock is late this year on account of the cold weather. Usually there are generous offerings of outdoor sweet peas by this time, but they are just now beginning to appear. Few outdoor freesias have arrived as yet, which is late for them, too. The daily consignments of daffodils are large, but they seem to find an outlet at fairly good prices. Tulips and hyacinths, both cut and potted, are in good demand. Lilacs are late. Violets are in lighter supply, but they will last some time yet. Few orchids are available at present and there is some uneasiness that the Easter supply will be inadequate. Heavy offerings of blossoms clean up daily.

Various Notes.

Avansino Bros. are cutting about 30,000 daffodils per day and some days as many as 40,000. Besides their own store, they supply a good many of the other houses. They expect to begin bringing in Japanese tree peonies about April 1, being the only growers of this variety in the Bay district. Their lilacs will be ready about Easter and promise well.

Henry Avansino, whose ability as a buyer is unquestioned, never misses a day in visiting the flower market. Whether he needs stock or not, is off duty or on, he manages to take note of the supply, demand and prices. He says it is force of habit. Maybe that is the reason for his comparatively few "bad" buys.

Albert O. Stein reported a nice lot of St. Patrick's day table decorations. He says San Francisco society continues to entertain and be entertained, despite the high cost of living. Two big weddings furnished an outlet for quantities of blossoms and spring flowers. At this store the better selling roses are said to be Russell, both short and long-stemmed, Ophelia and September Morn.

F. J. Bertrand, manager for B. M. Joseph, reports business holding up well. He considers prospects fine for Easter business and is making preparations accordingly.

N. Peterson is bringing in splendid Pink Sensation carnations.

Frank D. Pelicano is wearing the "smile that won't come off," since he became a grandfather. His daughter, Mrs. A. Costa, gave birth to a daughter March 9, and he is now being hailed as "Granny" by his many friends.

The Misses Hannon have no complaints to make about business, as decorative work and store trade are both holding up well. Last week a large wedding at San Mateo helped out.

The Art Floral Co., of which P. Vincent Matraia is president and general manager, is now operating the stand in the Clift hotel, on Taylor and Geary streets, in conjunction with its store on Powell street.

T. Mosco has discontinued his store at 20 Geary street and is now conducting a stand on Market street, near Kearny street.

Miss Rothschild, of the Bellevue Florists, says the hotel business is holding up nicely. Last week a large wedding called for a good many flowers. The bride carried a Dolly Varden bouquet of orchids and valley and the matrons of honor had bouquets of the same style. Blossoms and hyacinths in leghorn hats were used on the tables.

MacRorie & McLaren recently purchased the Lake Merced Nursery, with the intention of using it to grow cut flowers for their retail store, which has already worked up a good business, though only established a few months ago. The firm has planted a large acreage of asters and delphiniums and has about fourteen acres yet to plant to various other flowers, besides the greenhouses. One of the largest shipments of ornamental nursery stock ever sent east from San Francisco was forwarded a few days ago by MacRorie & McLaren. In the consignment, which amounted to five carloads, were 5,000 flowering cherry trees and other ornamental stock.

The nursery of the E. W. McLellan Co. is now one of the show places of Burlingame, the fashionable residence suburb down the peninsula. The place is divided by streets and along the sidewalks are flowering fruit trees in full blossom. Between the greenhouses are large beds of daffodils, hyacinths, etc., making a riot of color. The rose houses are the principal feature, however. Four large houses of Russell are in splendid condition, supplying practically all the excellent stock being offered in the local market. The American Beauty houses are in equally fine shape.

Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., of Chicago, left for Los Angeles March 12, after spending several days in the San Francisco bay district.

The Walker-Hubbard Nursery Co. has been incorporated at San Fernando, Cal., with a capital stock of $75,000, by T. J. Walker, J. L. Walker, C. D. Hubbard, A. D. Odney and H. A. Decker.

The Berkeley Chamber of Commerce has announced a plan whereby residents of that city will be called upon to send flowers and blossoms to the churches in the principal eastern cities during the Easter season, the idea being that this section of California can offer no better advertisement at this time of the year than through her flowers. H. S. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business last week was fully up to expectations. The observance of Lent, no doubt, has its effect on the demand for flowers for social events, but several of the larger retailers say they cannot notice it. Green carnations and shamrocks were offered St. Patrick's day. The shamrocks were in the smallest thumb pots. There is no surplus of cut stock except Easter lilies, and one or two large funerals would clean them up. Home-grown violets are now plentiful, but not sufficient to fill all demands.

Various Notes.

Niklas & Son showed some blooming French hydrangeas, the first of the season.

The home of C. Tonseth was damaged by fire on the morning of March 12. Mr. Tonseth extinguished the flames without the aid of the fire department. His loss, estimated at $250, is covered by insurance.

S. P. Rolph grows violets at his St. Johns establishment and is marketing some excellent flowers of Princess of Wales. He says his plants suffered from drought and the attendant red spider last fall, so that they have not been producing as many blooms as usual.

Gustavus Weinstein, formerly with the Rahn & Herbert Co., has taken a position as grower with the Wilson, Crout & Gehr Co. This position was left vacant by the removal of A. Alenius to New Mexico.

W. E. Wood has returned from a trip to the cities of Puget sound.

Carl Ruenitz reports business satisfactory. He is operating his store on upper Washington street, most of the time alone. His daughter assists when needed.

E. Rosaia has several plots of ground in vegetables in the Alameda park district. He also grows Princess of Wales violets and Minnie Burgle dahlias. He is a member of the Rosaia family which is well known in the trade on the Pacific coast.

Wielemann Bros. are marketing a heavy cut of carnations from their range at Gladstone.

The Market.

The retail market has shown a pleasing turn for the better, after a week of dullness. All kinds of stock are moving well, with, as is to be expected, bulbous stock leading in favor. Local roses are putting in an appearance, with the result that standing orders for shipments from eastern points are, in many cases, being canceled. Local Ophelia roses are good in quality, as also are Richmond and Hoosier Beauty. Killarney and White Killarney will need more bright weather before they are up to grade.

Carnations are plentiful, with the quality both good and bad. The dyeing of white carnations has helped to move a considerable number of blooms, the growers benefiting mainly.

Various Notes.

H. L. Olsson had a fine trade in shamrocks in 1-inch pots, shipping them to points as far away as California.

Peters Bros. have engaged a new foreman, E. Sinclair. Mr. Sinclair has been in the employ of Adolph Donart, at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, for about three years. Before that he was with S. W. Coggan, at Battle Creek, Mich. He has also been with several of the leading Chicago growers. His experience will make him a valuable man in his new position.

Harry Saunders, formerly with Brown Bros., of Vancouver, B. C., has been engaged by Adolph Donart as greenhouse foreman.

The woods seem full of salesmen endeavoring to unload their wares. Recent visitors included W. D. Desmond, traveling representative of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Arthur Zirkman, who smiles and sells for the Rice Co., Philadelphia; F. W. Treadup, who is making his western bow for the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. L. B. H.

Walla Walla, Wash.—Frank Geck and Oscar Barteloot have incorporated the Blossom Floral Co. at $10,000.

Vashon, Wash.—Lewis Beall spoke on vegetable forcing at the Bellevue meeting of the Western Washington Horticultural Association.

Farmington, Utah.—Robert Miller, president of the Miller Floral Co., is enjoying himself in Los Angeles and vicinity for a little while.

Aberdeen, Wash.—The Grays Harbor Floral Co., which operates a store here, has purchased a site for greenhouses at a point between Aberdeen and Montesano.

Walla Walla, Wash.—A greenhouse has been erected near here by Herbert Osgood, who says he intends to blossom out as a full-fledged florist when his flowers bloom.

Bellingham, Wash.—Having moved to a larger, handsomer and better located store, Fred F. Horst, of Horst's Floral Shop, 1309 Dock street, says he is ready for and equipped for a record-breaking Easter and spring business.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE Rowan Wholesale Nurseries, Dansville, N. Y., have been incorporated with $30,000 authorized capital stock, by J. E. Nagle, J. A. Rowan and M. E. King, Jr.

THE handlers of the usual spring importations of boxwoods and other Holland plants almost have despaired of receiving the stock in time for this season's trade.

DOWN south the nursery trade has had one of the largest seasons on record, but in certain sections the February freeze entailed losses which will cut a big hole in whatever profits were afforded by the relatively low prices.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, of the Peterson Nursery, Chicago, recently returned from Buffalo, where he had gone with other representatives of Chicago evangelical organizations to obtain first-hand information of the Billy Sunday campaign in that city.

THE railroad situation is serious for the nursery trade. For months the movement of cars has been unusually slow, and there have been many local embargoes. About March 14 shipping was practically suspended because of the effort to clear the roads for a strike.

THE nursery trade in the north is waiting anxiously for the frost to come out of the ground. There have been few spring-like days and the season probably will be late. A late season almost always is a short season and a short season seldom is as good as it might have been.

TENNESSEE NOTES.

The nurserymen of Tennessee and, in fact, of the entire south, report that they have had an exceptionally good year. Most stocks are sold up closely, there being less surplus than for years. There is a feeling that nursery stock of all kinds will be much higher next season, as there is bound to be a shortage caused by the failure to receive French seedling stock.

A freeze March 19 is reported to have cut the plum crop short if it did not entirely destroy it, over a considerable part of the state. Peaches were not generally open yet, and so are unhurt.

THE HIGH BUSH CRANBERRY.

Viburnum Americanum, the so-called native high bush cranberry, also confused under the name of Viburnum Opulus of Europe, is a tall growing, spreading-topped shrub with handsome, light gray bark, large palmately-shaped leaves on thick red stems, broad, flat-topped, showy flower clusters having an outer ring of ray or neutral florets followed by large, lustrous orange-scarlet fruits on long drooping stems. It is widely distributed in nature, from the northeastern United States to Alaska. In nature it varies greatly in foliage and fruits. Some plants have smaller leaves on long stems and others have large leaves on short, thick stems. Some bushes have small, oval and pointed berries; others have large, round berries, while again others have small, round berries containing little juice.

As a red-berried shrub, Viburnum Americanum has no equal for northern planting, say A. H. & N. M. Lake, of Marshfield, Wis. Its berries begin to color about August 1, at which time its leaves begin to assume brilliant autumn color, and it is at the height of its beauty and decorative value all through the autumn months. After its leaves have fallen its bright red berries on the naked stalks covered with light gray bark are decorative throughout the winter months, giving warmth and cheer to the landscape and in addition furnishing a great amount of food for winter birds and for the migratory birds in early spring, when insects are scarce.

Viburnum Americanum and Ilex verticillata are our two best shrubs, affording berries for our winter birds, and each should be freely planted.

Viburnum Americanum is easily and readily grown from the seeds, which should be cleaned free from pulp, stratified in damp sand and held damp in a cool cellar until the following August, nearly a year after being ripened. They should then be planted, covered lightly with soil and immediately given a mulch

CEDAR AND BIOTA.

Please let us know when and how to propagate Cedrus Deodara. This cedar seems to be scarce and we can procure cuttings off it from several large trees here. Also, please tell us when and how to propagate Biota aurea nana.

O. G. G.—Ala.

Cedrus Deodara comes freely from seeds, which should be sown in spring in pans or flats in a greenhouse. Biota aurea nana is best propagated from cuttings inserted in the late fall or early winter, in a cold greenhouse. C. W.

Erie, Pa.—Fred X. Williams says he expects to retail flowers at Detroit, Mich., next month.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Bright weather, plenty of flowers, reasonable prices and plenty of work put some activity into business last week. Flowers of all kinds are of good quality. An unusual number of deaths in the city have given the florists plenty of funeral work.

Various Notes.

Ernest Chamberlain has been busy with an unusually large quantity of funeral work.

Robert H. Woodhouse is still on the sick list. He was not so well last week and his physician feared pneumonia.

William E. Mosher reports business good. Mr. Mosher anticipates an unusually large Easter trade and is preparing for it accordingly.

Fred C. Covill has installed a large refrigerator. It enhances the attractiveness of his store.

Edward M. Peirce had a severe cold last week, but at the present writing he is much better. Mr. Peirce has some of the finest cinerarias in the city.

William P. Peirce reports business increasing. He expects a large Easter business. This will be his first Easter in his new store. W. M. P.

Missoula, Mont.—The Missoula Nursery Co. has become the Missoula Floral Co., under the proprietorship of David A. Brown. C. F. Dallman, the former owner, sold out to Mr. Brown last year, but the transfer did not take place until this month. The new owner was an employe of Mr. Dallman for twenty-five years.

ATLANTA, GA.

How deceitful the elements can be! A warm, moist January had awakened the dormant life in all growing things, and one had visions of springtime in the old gardens of the south. Then, with barely a half-hour's notice, a frigid wave arrived and in less than two hours sent the temperature tumbling from 50 down to 8 degrees above zero.

It was not to be expected that outdoor stock would survive so severe a chill. A check of the damage done showed that nearly all shrubbery and bulbs were destroyed. Some of the florists lost practically all their stock.

Inasmuch as roses and many other kinds of plants must be replanted, the growers of young stock should reap a good business. The producers are working hard and have good stock to offer. There is a scarcity of some plants. Carnations now are in abundance, following a winter of inadequate supplies.

The florists here note with regret the destruction of greenhouses at Newcastle, Ind., by a tornado. Such things are most discouraging to those who are striving hard to win success in the flower business.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, which was held last week, was a busy session because of the diversity of topics considered. The suggestion made by citizens that the society obtain a field and give information relative to planting to children, was placed before the meeting, but nothing definite beyond the appointment of a committee was done. A discussion relative to the ultimatum of laborers and assistant gardeners for a raise in pay and shorter hours, resulted in various opinions being expressed. The society took no definite action. President John B. Urquhart and William MacKay, who attended the Davey convention at Kent, O., made an interesting and instructive report. Announcement was made that ten more special prizes have been received for the fall show, principally from growers, one of them for $150. The show will be held in the Convention hall, Newport Beach, September 5 to 7.

Andrew K. McMahon was out last week for the first time since injured by an automobile a month ago.

Easter Plants

We have our immense stock of Easter plants now ready to ship out, and we recommend the immediate placing and shipping of orders. Don't delay—place your order at once with ASCHMANN BROS. and have good stock to sell your customers this Easter. Personal selection and growing of stock has enabled us to offer to the Trade as fine an assortment of plants as can be seen anywhere, of good commercial sizes and at the right price for good stock.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Easter stock is coming into the market in liberal quantities, potted plants and cut flowers which recently made their appearance for the first time being much more plentiful. Prices last week as a rule were reasonable, except those of white carnations, which began to mount when the St. Patrick's day demand made itself felt. Business on the Irish holiday was satisfactory, most of the florists finding a good sale for their potted shamrocks and novelties.

Business is good but not rushing. The growers are nursing their Easter stock along, and it seems that there will be some top-notch goods for the day.

Various Notes.

Henry Leahy, of Elizabeth, recently had a clever window of his own making. On an easel in the center of the window was a picture frame, which was trimmed with gorgeous ribbons. The canvas, or background, was green burlap. The "picture" itself consisted of a spray of pussy willow and flowers. At the foot of the easel was a palette and paint brush, the colors on the palette being represented by a pansy, a daisy and so on. A card told the spectators that here was "Nature's art." R. B. M.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business is excellent in all lines. There is much funeral work each day and a good call for flowers for weddings and the sick. Roses and carnations are plentiful and sweet peas are good. Tulips, hyacinths and other spring plants are in good supply and demand.

Various Notes.

The members of the Evansville Florists' Club spent a pleasant evening at the C. L. Niednagel place March 14. The members inspected the Niednagel roses, which are extra fine. The members voted to go to Henderson, Ky., April 11, upon invitation of C. A. Morgan, for the next meeting.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are experiencing a big rush of business. They have plenty of stock of all kinds.

The Blackman Floral Co. force has been stepping lively each day. The cut of roses and carnations is fine.

Karl Zeidler is cutting many roses and carnations. He has a large supply of ferns and blooming plants.

C. E. Gysemans has his new house filled with seedlings of plants he intends to grow this season. E. L. F.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The market last week showed a slight tendency to improve. Stock in general was plentiful but there was no surplus, and the clean-up was quite an improvement over that of the week previous. St. Patrick's day made the demand for white carnations heavier than usual, and while most orders were taken care of there was some scarcity of this stock. Prices on all carnations seemed to increase more than those of any other class of stock, and the market held firm at $3 for the colored and $2 for splits, while white carnations brought $4.

The supply of roses is large and the quality is exceptionally fine. The demand showed some improvement and was steady and strong almost the entire week. Bulbous stock continues to sell well and is cleaning up nicely at fair prices. Orchids are in good supply and there is no surplus. Violets are still plentiful and are cleaning up fairly well. Sweet peas do not seem to be coming in quite so heavily and prices are somewhat better. Some fancy stock is coming into the market daily and is finding a ready sale.

Easter is only a short way off now and orders are already being booked for that day. Plant orders, especially, are coming in strongly, showing that the retailer is inclined to stock up now rather than wait until the last minute and take chances of not getting what he wants. Despite the difficulty of importing stock, it looks as though the Easter business would surpass all previous years.

Various Notes.

Archie MacDonald, manager of the flower department of Gimbel Bros., left March 14 for New York and other eastern points. He combines business with pleasure and will take in the New York show while in that city. He expects to be away for a week or more.

W. M. Reid, representing the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, was in the city March 13. Mr. Reid struck town on the tail of a blizzard and stated that it was the first snow he had encountered this winter, as he has been traveling in the south since fall. Lucky man! is all we have got to say. H. J. S.

Do It Now!

Go over your Rose Houses carefully and estimate the plants you need for replanting this Spring, and place your order. Roses are going to be scarce. The Manetti situation is such that those who get it are fortunate, and the demand is far greater than the limited supply. We have sold over 100,000 grafted Roses in the last two weeks. We have 200,000 more to sell. There is considerable building contemplated. "Changing from Carnations to Roses" is a frequent explanation made when placing an order. If you are short at planting time it will be your fault and not ours. The growing of grafted Roses is an industry in itself. At Cromwell the large quantity of Roses grown for cut flowers makes it possible to get scions that are first-class. We want your Rose Plant order, and we want to be able to say "yes" to your inquiry. Estimate your requirements and write us.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Glen Cove March 14. Quite a number of members were present, considering the inclement weather. James Holloway gave an interesting report of his recent visit to the Davey tree convention. W. J. Collins, of Boston, and Richard French, of New York, were elected active members. The exhibition tables were well filled, with strong competition in all the carnation classes. The president appointed Messrs. J. Duthie, Twigg and Noonan to act as judges. Their decisions were as follows: Frank Watson, first, for twelve pink; James McCarthy, first, for twelve white; Peter McDonald, first, for twelve mixed carnations. The most meritorious exhibit, for which a special prize was offered by P. W. Popp, was that of John F. Johnson, who had a fine display of polyanthus, well flowered, in 6-inch pots. A certificate of culture was awarded to John W. Everitt for three heads of Lettuce Golden Ball and a special mention went to Peter McDonald for a pot of Antirrhinum Silver Pink.

It was decided, if the trustees could procure the exhibition hall, to hold the annual dahlia show October 9 and the chrysanthemum show November 1 and 2. Exhibits for the next meeting, which will be held April 11, are: One pan of bulbs, one Easter lily plant and one hydrangea plant, in pots not to exceed eight inches.

Greenhouse Heating.

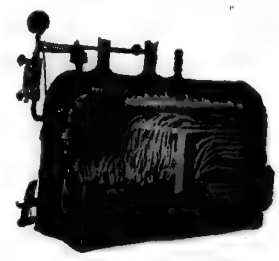
SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

FREIGHT RATES ON COAL.

The Supreme court of the United States having decided that a train crew hauling coal is entitled to ten hours' pay for eight hours' work, the railroads are coming back at the public, beginning with the consumers of smokeless coal, who include many florists.

Proposals to increase rates on bituminous coal from Virginia and West Virginia fields to the Atlantic seaboard from 5 to 10 cents a ton, and from fields in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore about 5 cents a ton, have been filed by the railroads with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The railroads also have notified the commission of their intention to advance coal rates to great lake ports from 5 to 15 cents a ton. The advances would become effective between April 1 and April 16. The proposed increases probably will be suspended for investigation after a hearing by the commission March 22.

USE 1½-INCH OR 2-INCH PIPE.



Please tell me how to pipe my greenhouse. It is 18x30 and runs north and south. The north end has no glass. The other end and both sides are boarded and papered from the ground to a height of three feet. Above this there are two and one-half feet of glass in the sides, making the total height of the walls five and one-half feet to the eaves. The south end is glass from the 3-foot board wall to the ridge, which is nine and one-half feet from the floor. The boiler pit is seven feet deep and is at the north end of the house. There is a building, 10x18, at the north end of the house. There will be four benches in the greenhouse, running north and south.

How much piping will be needed? What size of pipe should be used and what size of hot water boiler will be required? Would it be of any benefit to run the smoke flue from the boiler to the south end of the house, to the chimney? The outside temperature here is occasionally 5 degrees below zero, and once in a good while it drops to 30 degrees below. F. H. W.—N. Y.

For the house described, a boiler with a rating of about 400 square feet will be required for a temperature of 60 degrees. To supply the radiation we would run a 2½-inch flow pipe upon each plate and another about two feet below the ridge. Either 1½-inch or 2-inch pipes may be used for the returns. Eleven of the 2-inch or fourteen 1½-inch will be required. We would run three of the former or four of the latter under each of the side benches and the others under the middle bench.

While the smoke pipe is sometimes run through small houses, we do not consider it worth while. The chimney should be eight inches square inside and twenty-five to thirty feet in height.

WHAT IS THE PRESSURE?

We are enclosing a rough sketch that shows the arrangement of our boiler and tank and we shall be greatly obliged if you will tell us the number of pounds of pressure on the system. A 5-inch pipe connects the boiler with a 50-gallon iron tank. Another 5-inch pipe leaves the tank and supplies the various houses. You will see by the sketch that the main return is a little below the top of the boiler. The circulation is rapid and we are curious to know the amount of pressure.

W. & C.—Mass.

The sketch indicates that the water level in the expansion tank is twenty-one feet above the top of the boiler, and, as the level of the returns is slightly below the top of the boiler, we judge that the pressure on the returns is not far

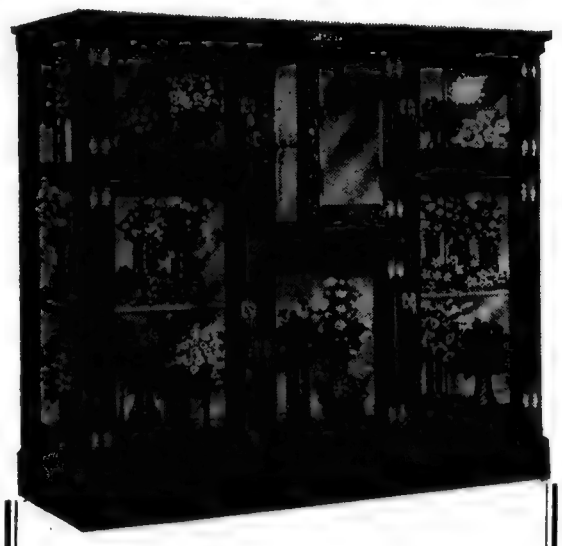
LANCASTER, PA.

Eight Reading, Pa., florists honored the Lancaster County Florists' Association with their presence Thursday, March 15. They arrived at 11 a. m. and were met by Elmer J. Weaver, Albert M. Herr and H. K. Rohrer. At 11:45 a. m. the visitors and club members went to Christiana and called on Maurice J. Brinton. Carnations are grown extensively at the Brenton place. Much bulbous stock also is grown. A planting of 50,000 Spanish irises, showing buds, was fine. Some exceptional Emperor daffodils were noted. In the everyday production of lilies for the wholesale market, Mr. Brinton's establishment ranks with the best in the country. A large, new Lord & Burnham Co. house for lily growing was inspected, after which Mr. Brinton entertained the party at a nearby restaurant.

Our next call was on Charles M. and Elmer J. Weaver. At the former's establishment sweet peas are all aglow, with vines fifteen feet in height. Three houses, 40x300, are planted to them. Preparations were being made to set out an extensive planting of asters.



At Elmer J. Weaver's, peas, carnations and calendulas are the principals. The peas are most vigorous, the calendulas almost cut out and carnations in full crop. Mr. Weaver's own seedling, white, of which several beds are planted, is a free-flowering, strong-stemmed variety. Next season Benora and Pink Delight will lead the procession here.

The B. F. Barr & Co range was next visited. There much potted Easter stock is coming along nicely. The houses of mixed stock for cutting, such as white and yellow daisies, calendulas, wallflowers, snapdragons, cornflowers, primulas, forget-me-nots and callas, are not to be surpassed for variety and general excellence of stock. The houses of roses are in fine order. In carnations are Gorgeous, of which no blooms have been sold under $1.50 per dozen; Mrs. Ward, Alma Ward, Delhi, Matchless and Harry Fenn. They all are in the best of condition. The house of sweet peas contains some extra fine blooms. After inspecting the new, mammoth packing shed, the party returned to Lancaster, where the visitors and a number of the club members had dinner at the Elks'.

At 7:30 p. m., in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Thos. R. Fries spoke on "Forcing Bulbs." Mr. Fries' paper was interesting and valuable talk to all. Albert M. Herr, chairman of committee endeavoring to secure better express service, reported progress. A motion was carried to have the armory flower show fund revert to the club treasury, on account of the state's decision to build an armory for military purposes only and not to be used for flower shows, conventions, etc.

At the next meeting, April 19, J. Wade Gayley will speak about his experiences with carnations. Mr. Gayley is one of our successful growers.

The florists who came from Reading were: Fulmer Lauch, Stanley Giles, Jacob Bauder, John Downing, Layton Butts, Fred Frank, Lee Arnold and Alfred Landon. H. K. R.

"Kindly send us by express 20,000 Paper Pots, size 3-in., for which I enclose check." George Foulsham, Supt., Lenox, Mass.

(Mr. Foulsham orders our Paper Pots regularly every year and says, "We grow sweet peas and all our annuals in them.")

"Send by freight 5000 3-in. Square Paper Pots, 8000 4-in. Square Paper Pots." G. E. Hunt, Florist, Rutland, Vt.

"The THOROUGHLY DEPENDABLE QUALITY of the material in your Paper Pots commends them to users everywhere.

"Growing and shipping in same pots saves all kinds of labor." The Dalles Floral Company, The Dalles, Oregon.

Gentlemen: * * * We would say that we used all the Paper Pots we got from you to raise tomato plants.

Our weather is often very severe late in May, therefore we have to keep them inside and we were certainly very satisfied with the splendid results obtained from the Paper Pots.

In fact, WE DID NOT HAVE HALF ENOUGH TO FILL OUR ORDERS. WE CHARGED EXACTLY TWICE THE AMOUNT we did other years and yet our CUSTOMERS INSISTED ON HAVING THOSE IN PAPER POTS.

In our hot sun they never wilted.

We reserved a few for Primulas and certainly have some fine ones.

It was easier to keep them watered and growing during the hot months. Wishing you success, Blackadar & Co., Dauphin Nursery and Greenhouses, Dauphin, Manitoba, Can.

"I used five thousand of your 2-inch Paper Pots and was very pleased with them.

"I grew Tomato plants, Salvias, Garden Pinks, Asters and Pansy plants.

"EVERYTHING DID FINE.

"I sold the plants on our city market.

"Customers were well pleased with the Paper Pots because they make a neat package.

'I got the same price for plants in Paper Pots as in the same size clay pots and I GREW LOTS MORE PLANTS IN THE SAME SPACE."

William Dew, 202 Hillside Ave., Des Moines, Iowa.

"I raised Tomatoes, Cabbage, Eggplant and Peppers in the Paper Pots. From about 2,700 Tomato plants I picked 1,140 MARKETABLE CRATES of tomatoes, which brought me $600."

D. B. Moses, Purchase, New York.

"We raised vegetable plants and asters in your Paper Pots. They gave BETTER PLANTS THAN THOSE IN CLAY POTS AND SOLD AT DOUBLE PRICE. We expect to use them for carnations this year."

Mt. Gilead Floral Co., Mt. Gilead, Ohio.

"I grew Cannas, Verbenas, Pansies, Violets, Geraniums, etc., in the Paper Pots.

"The plants did not become root bound as soon as in clay pots.

"The plants did not take half the water.

"They were TWICE THE SIZE of those in clay pots." J. E. Kallenback, Amacillo, Texas.

"The Paper Pots bought of you last Spring gave very good results. We potted Geraniums in most of them, and they sold well OWING TO THE FACT THAT THEY WERE BETTER PLANTS THAN THOSE IN CLAY POTS."

C. F. Fonse, Mt. Union, Pa.

"SOLD FINE. I was very much pleased with them. Used them mostly for tomato plants and Greenhouse bedding plants.

"WOULD NEVER BE WITHOUT THEM AGAIN." E. H. Hitchcock, Tamar, Mo.

"I grew Tomatoes and Aster plants in the Paper Pots I bought of you last Spring.

SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION

Dear Sirs: The Paper Pots purchased of you were for use in the Formal Gardens of the * * * San Diego Exposition.

These pots proved a grand innovation, wherein I have been able to replace and rotate all kinds of plants during the entire year.

After young plants, either from seed sown in the Pots or picked from flats, were fairly well established I plunged the pots where I wanted the plants to remain, and they went on as if to the manor born.

The loss was simply unobservable.

This covered Canterbury Bells, Asters, Linarias, Gaillardias, etc.

The Pots, being square, took up less room in the flats, being light are easily transported to the garden, the paper rotting gradually in the ground the roots are never retarded or disturbed.

Congratulating you, I am very truly yours, F. Edward Gray, San Diego, Cal.

"We used your Paper Pots for Tomatoes, Geraniums and Ferns.

"They gave very much better plants than those raised in clay pots." Leafley & Meyer, 905 G. St., Northwest, Washington, D. C.

DIRT BANDS

CREASED DIRT BANDS

1—Should a Dirt Band be CREASED and the ENDS held together until it is set in place? Yes. OUR DIRT BANDS ARE CREASED, CUT AND SCORED BY MACHINE TO THE EXACT SHAPE and the ENDS HELD TOGETHER.

NOT "LOCKED"

2—Should the ends of Dirt Bands be "LOCKED"? NO. Because "locking" does not serve any purpose and is a serious detriment.

If the ends are "LOCKED" the band has to be TORN OFF when the plant is taken out.

After the bands are filled and watered the soil settles tight against the insides and they cannot be unlocked.

TEARING the ends of the bands apart will break many of the "balls" or cubes of soil.

Get a "locked" band, lock it and try tearing it apart.

Ours are made to SLIP APART easily, without tearing, to let the plant out.

Our bands are made of the same special, tough paper that has been PROVED 5 YEARS to be perfect for the purpose.

They are the BEST Band on the market, but also the CHEAPEST.

Mr. H. B. Weaver of Bird-in-Hand, Pa., grows Carnations, Mignonettes, Sweet Peas and other cut flowers. He says of our Dirt Bands: "I believe any one using these bands will become a regular customer"

(He got 5000 Dirt Bands in 1913, 60,000 in 1914, 70,000 in 1915, 50,000 in 1916 and has just ordered 60,000 for 1917.)

Mr. J. M. Gager, Willimantic, Conn., says: "The crop from the plants raised in your Dirt Bands PAID ME THE BEST of any crop of tomatoes grown SINCE I HAVE BEEN IN THE BUSINESS."

(Mr. Gager has just ordered 10,000 4-in. bands for this year.)

Mr. Herbert W. Coulter, Avon, Mass., says: "I am so well pleased with the Dirt Bands that I DO NOT SEE HOW A MARKET GARDENER CAN AFFORD TO GROW PLANTS WITHOUT THEM."

"I have now about 14,000 Carnation plants started in 2-inch Bands, which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

"I also have about 20,000 Aster plants transplanted in 2-inch Bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND as would be the case if I used 2-inch pots.

"I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER."

Yours truly, H. B. Weaver, Bird-in-Hand, Pa.

"I used the Rochelle Dirt Bands for early Tomatoes and Cucumbers with VERY GREAT SUCCESS.

"The plants grew well and did not mind the shift from the frames to the open. I had an IMMENSE CROP of both tomatoes and cucumbers and both started picking fully 15 DAYS BEFORE THE USUAL TIME in this section. I shall use them more extensively this season."

Chas. H. Weaver, Choice Fruits and Vegetables, Dunnville, Ont., Can.

"I find your Dirt Bands very good for the growing of Carnation plants.

"I am enough pleased with my one season's experience with the Dirt Bands TO CONTINUE TO USE THEM EXCLUSIVELY."

Wm. H. Feierbend, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

"We used your Dirt Bands for tomatoes, asters, beans, sweet corn, squash and melons.

"WE GOT GOOD PLANTS."

W. H. & W. N Gage, Cochituate, Mass.

"We raised tomato plants in the 5-inch Dirt Bands you shipped us. Plants become root bound quicker in clay pots and REQUIRE LONGER TO START OFF after setting in the field. BANDS WILL GIVE BETTER PLANTS THAN POTS." F. B. Murdoch & Co., Kingston, Pa.

"We have used your Dirt Bands with great success in forwarding vegetable and flowering plants."

C. R. Clarke, Supt. of Farming and Gardening, Boys' Industrial School, Lancaster, O.

"I used your Dirt Bands for tomatoes, peppers and eggplants; also for mignonette, heliotrope and helichrysum.

"I and my trade were pleased wtih them.

"I shall use more the coming season."

Chas. C. Roberts, Lansdowne, Pa.

To show the wide use of our Pots and Bands by Government, State, City and Public Institutions we might say that while we are writing this advertisement (Feb. 17th) one mail, just opened, brought us orders from South Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station, Brookings, S. D. (they got 10,000 of our Paper Pots last year and expect to use 20,000 this year) and Board of Regents of Normal Schools, Whitewater, Wis., and inquiries for prices from New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, and University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

We have probably sold 5 times as many of our Square Paper Pots and Dirt Bands as all other firms put together.

The Market.

Business has been quiet during the last week. With the city traffic more or less tied up by severe snow storms, and out-of-town lines and railroads unable to operate, there has been little business among the florists. This was lucky to have happened at this time, as no shipment of flowers could be received and the local greenhouses were able to supply the market. There is little entertaining during the Lenten season, and little funeral work was done during the week. March 17 green carnations, tulips and shamrocks were in demand. While business in this line was pretty good, there were many left over, the supply being greater than the demand this year. Some artistic decorations by the various dealers were to be seen and many new and artistic ideas were used in window displays as well as baskets, etc., for home use.

Much preparation is going on now for the Easter trade. The first orders are already coming in for remembrances to be sent to friends. A good supply of stock will be on the market. Some growers are meeting with much success in holding back lilies for Easter trade, while others are finding their stock pretty well advanced and will have much difficulty in keeping it back.

The stock of cut flowers remains the same as the previous week. Some splendid Ophelia roses are coming in. The spring flowers are still much in demand, but the supply is great. Prices have not fluctuated at all this week.

Various Notes.

The Hiawatha Gardens have lovely rose plants.

E. F. Lemke has some splendid yellow cernations and marguerites. He has some fine forget-me-nots and the long benches of these are a beautiful sight to the visitor to these greenhouses. He has also a splendid stock of violets and geraniums. The latter will make fine stock for spring planting. Unusually lovely pansy plants are being raised in this greenhouse and the blooms are large and of many handsome colors.

Spiræa is scarce this season, and those who have it in stock have not the fine plants that are usually obtainable for Easter trade. They seem green, as if from lack of sunshine, or imperfect roots at the first planting.

Pamel Bros. have opened a new florists' supply house at 213-214 Loeb arcade. Located in the central part of the business district, they are expecting a good trade from the many nearby florists. There will be a complete line of wholesale supplies as well as ferns and other greens.

At the annual meeting of new members of the Garden Club, Saturday, March 17, it was noted how keen the demand is now among Minneapolis gardeners for vegetable seeds. This is unusual as compared with other years. The club now has almost 3,000 members and splendid work is expected. Window boxes are to be given the members to increase the desire to have attractive looking homes. The Real Estate Board has been asked to allow the use of all vacant lots it has. A campaign is going on to secure these for the raising of vegetables, which, when prices are so extremely high, seems a splendid idea.

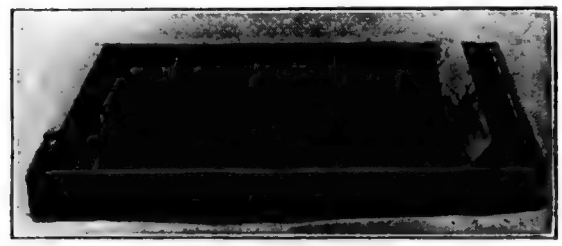
Lancaster, Pa.
Standard Thermometer Co., Boston, Mass.
Gentlemen: Please send me 25 record plates like the enclosed sample, and I want to say that the machine, bought a good many years back, is keeping up its good work right along. I think it a very useful adjunct to good plant growing, and it should be in every greenhouse, as reference to it may often tell what is wrong with a batch of plants. Very truly yours,
ALBERT M. HERR.



The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.
The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

There is an abundant supply of all kinds of stock in the market, with the exception of one or two items. Generally speaking, business has not taken on any more life.

American Beauties as yet have not become more plentiful, but no difficulty is experienced in procuring quantities of other varieties of roses. Both long and short-stemmed blooms are in ample supply. Carnations also are quite plentiful, the whites last week having a large demand for St. Patrick's day, on which day all of them were consumed. Bulbous stock continues to arrive heavily. Sweet peas are extra good; also snapdragons.

There has been a noticeable increase in business over that of the corresponding period of last year, both retailers and growers having been benefited.

Club Meeting.

The Buffalo Florists' Club held its annual meeting March 13, at the Hofbrau. The following officers were elected: President, H. Elbers; vice-president, Mark Palmer; secretary, William Legg; financial secretary, Oliver Klingenmeyer; treasurer, Edward Stroh. W. J. Palmer, L. H. Neubeck and W. Eiss were elected trustees. Eight new members were admitted.

L. H. Neubeck acted as toastmaster at the dinner in the evening. W. J. Palmer and Charles Schoenhut gave talks on the newly organized Retail Florists' Association. Mr. Walker, with the assistance of O. C. Gillies, gave an illustrated lecture on civic improvements, which proved to be most educational. H. E. Bates, of Rochester; G. Hamilton, of London, Ont., and M. Oldfield, of Grimsby, Ont., were among the other out-of-town guests.

Various Notes.

The staff at the C. F. Guenther establishment, of Hamburg, are busily engaged shipping the new chrysanthemum, Hamburg Late White, which seems destined to be one of the coming popular varieties.

John Preisach, of Corfu, is shipping some extra good sweet peas, which meet with a good demand.

There are only fourteen days left between now and Easter Sunday, so that means everybody must get busy to be prepared for a record-breaker.

Edward Slattery was in New York several days last week. A. E.

The Market.

Business is fair. The demand at the end of last week effected a substantial clearance in the market. The call for white flowers for coloring was particularly large, while the demand for other stock was good. The call from out-of-town buyers was heavy.

Roses are cleaning up well. The supply is not quite so heavy as it was and meets with an excellent demand. Carnations are selling satisfactorily. Easter lilies are plentiful. Sweet peas are in heavy supply. Excellent tulips, daffodils and hyacinths may be had. Other offerings are callas, rubrum lilies and snapdragons.

The smilax supply is running short of actual needs. Wild smilax has been meeting with a good demand.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has furnished large quantities of wild smilax for store openings, both in and out of the city, and has booked good orders for this decorative material for Easter.

Thomas Windram has been sending some excellent carnations to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

The Clifton Floral Co. will open a flower store at 288 Ludlow avenue, Clifton, during the coming fortnight.

Among recent visitors were W. E. Rodgers, of Dayton, O.; William Thomas, of Richmond, Ind.; N. N. Emitsloef, representing the George Wittbold Co., of Chicago; H. L. Green, representing the Expanded Wood Co., of Evansville, Ind. C. H. H.
